A Troubled World.
Shark and Whale.
Imaginary President.
Learn To Cut.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 28.

A TROUBLED WORLD we live in.

Assorted financiers indicted in Chicago.

Prisoners in a California prison at Folsom try to seize the prison and kidnap the warden, using home-made guns. They fail, the ring-leader kills himself.

THE WAR goes on in China, with real killing, real wounds and real agony. China reports occasional "Japanese held in mountain passes, by Chinese troops," or "Manchukuo cities recaptured by Chinese." But a real picture of Japan's war against China is like a picture of the thrasher shark, attacking one of the giant whales in the Arctic Ocean.

The whale is one hundred times as big as the attacking shark. But the shark is born a fighter, the whale is not, and it is only a question of time.

NEW YORK'S Stock Exchange had a fainting spell yesterday, a certain number of citizens having reached the conclusion that this is the wise time to throw away securities. Before long they will be telling their friends:

"I had them, but did not know enough to hold them, although I was in shape to do it."

MILLIONS throughout the world, those of the Catholic faith especially, will be encouraged by the earnest statement of Pope Pius, addressing 600 clerks of savings banks from the province of Lombardi. The Pope praised thrift, provided always it did not "degenerate into avarice," pointing out that exercise of thrift involves another thing even more important, exercise of one of the cardinal virtues, temperance of life," which means, "control of one's self."

A MOVING PICTURE, finished in Hollywood at 4 o'clock yesterday morning, in the Metro-Goldwyn-Meyer studios, will interest millions of Americans and stir up considerable thought. It will interest especially the new President of the United States.

"Gabriel Above the White House" is the title of the picture, and story.

THE STORY told in pictures is truly imaginary, but a million Americans will wish for it to come true.

A new President has been inaugurated, as many have before, and enters the White House to keep promises made privately, after having made numerous promises publicly that are not supposed to be kept.

A professional politician, the new President feeds platitudes to newspaper correspondents, takes nothing seriously except his own career and the deals made with friends.

THEN COMES an accident, the practical-politician President is knocked on the head, at exactly the right spot. When he recovers, his attitude is changed. He becomes a President for the people of the United States, instead of being a President for the bosses. His secretary thinks the Lord must have sent down the angel Gabriel to work the change. He dismisses instantly one of his cabinet, who suggests calling out the Army to suppress the unemployed. He has previously told reporters "unemployment and crime are local problems," but now discovers that those are problems of the United States government. Formerly he told reporters, "The President must not be quoted." Now he says, "The President may be quoted, and I want him to be quoted."

HE ADVISES his cabinet to read the Constitution of the United States, telling them, "You will find that the President has a great deal of power and I mean to use that power."

He does use it.

In fact, he becomes the PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES, not the president of any particular clique or group, or set of bosses and financiers in the United States, and dies at the right moment.

It may be called a very improbable picture, but people will like it, and you want to see it.

AT A SMALL side table in the lunch room of a big moving picture "lot" sit two young women, very businesslike, eating too rapidly, and talking hard.

Mrs. Ida R. Koverman, who knows and bosses moving pictures as she used to do in politics, says:

"There are the two best 'cutters' in the business."

One of the young "cutting" ladies is Margaret Booth, the other Blanche Sewall, with a straight up and down forehead that reminds you of the high chalk cliffs of England.

THESE TWO look over the miles of moving picture films, before you see them, and cut out the unnecessary. They cut, cut and cut, like the old Greek lady with the shears. Twelve whole reels they cut from 23 reels in a recent picture. And every cut was an improvement.

Cutting pictures often cuts into the hearts and vanity of stars and little picture people, eliminating what the actors think are their best lines and best grimaces, and borrowing

LIMIT GIVEN MONACA'S 'OWNER'

Park Wields Club, Calls Haley Story 'Impossible'

District Attorney Andrew T. Park's "big stick" fell on one P. J. Haley and knocked his "debt of honor" story into a cocked hat today as the grand jury wound up its probe into affairs of the Monaca Club.

Haley, taken from the grand jury room at Park's orders, was arraigned before Presiding Judge Samuel H. Gardner and resentenced to serve one year in the County Jail without parole, the maximum penalty provided by law. Last week he was sentenced to nine months with a provision for a parole after four months if the $500 fine and costs were paid.

STORY 'IMPOSSIBLE'

Haley, Park told Judge Gardner, insisted upon telling an "absolutely impossible" story in view of substantiated contradictory evidence, and the grand jury became incensed.

B. Robert Averbach, counsel for Haley, argued against the re-sentencing of Haley and asked is the District Attorney was taking this action as a result of something that had developed since Haley and the 10 other employes of the club were sentenced last Thursday.

Park answered that was not the case. He said Haley had persisted in relating the same story he told the court last week that he "had just taken the club over to pay a debt of honor" for a hitherto unknown John Bovard, who, Haley said, had been the original owner. Bovard, Haley said, had died last December.

WIDOW TESTIFIES

Mrs. Irene E. Bovard, widow of the man intended to "take the rap" in his grave, testified earlier in the day.

It was after her appearance before the grand jury that Haley was called.

While Haley was being resentenced by Judge Gardner, four other employes were called one by one into the grand jury room to tell their stories. They were Barney Samuels and James J. Blair, gamblers, and William O'Day and Ray Sinneway, waiters.

From the grand jury room they were returned to jail, where each is serving a four—months' maximum sentence on charges of violating the liquor laws and gambling.

Park did not indicate what he would do about these men, who also "stuck to their stories." He said:

"They may be telling the truth as far as they are able to. I do not say they know anything more than they have told, but we will investigate them thoroughly before we do anything. If we find they are not telling the truth, I will ask Judge Gardner to resentence them too."

Keaton Confesses To Secret Marriage

EL PASO, Tex., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Buster Keaton, film comedian, said today he was married six weeks ago in Hollywood to May Scribbens. He is accompanied by his bride on a trip to Mexico City.

Carnegie Made Use Of Depressions

Andrew Carnegie took advantage of the low prices in the industrial depression of the nineties to extend and improve his steel properties. It was the same policy which, when pursued in the depression of the seventies, had laid the foundation for his success.

It was in the nineties that he acquired iron ore holdings in Minnesota from Henry W. Oliver and John D. Rockefeller. How Oliver came to be interested in ore properties and how Carnegie beat Rockefeller in an ore deal are told in today's installment of Burton J. Hendrick's life of the steelmaster. It will be found on the first page of the second section.

SENATE GETS BLUE LAW MODIFIER

Dry Repeal Measure Also Put Before Upper House

HARRISBURG, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Prohibition repeal and Sunday afternoon sports crashed the gates of the Senate for the first time today.

From its law and order committee, that branch of the legislature received for passage one bill to set up a state convention and to vote on the Eighteenth Amendment and another to legalize Sunday activities prohibited since 1794.

Both measures receive first reading action late today and probably will be voted upon finally Monday night.

BILL AMENDED

The blue law bill was amended from the form in which the House approved it two weeks ago. It now provides for repeal of the ban against outdoor sports between the hours of 2 and 6 p. m., but gives the cities, boroughs and other municipal sub-divisions power to regulate them by prescribed license fees.

Local referenda, under the revised Schwartz bill, will be necessary only where citizens of the community object to the license fees.

Local referenda, under the revised Schwartz bill, will be necessary only where citizens of the community object to the license or refusal to license Sunday afternoon sports. In that event, the result of the vote of the electors decides the local policy.

The license fees specified are: Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, $100 per game; Scranton, and third class cities $50 a game; boroughs and townships, $25 a game and for free contests, $1. Individual

STATE LEGISLATURE'S ACTION PROVIDES AID FOR EAST

Not a single Pittsburgh bank had taken advantage today of the state's permission to restrict withdrawals.

Conditions throughout Pennsylvania apparently were extremely good. Here and there a few scattered districts availed themselves of the opportunity.

Gov. Pinchot, after signing the resolution adopted by both houses, declared no banking holiday would take place in Pennsylvania. He said the number of banks taking advantage of the new plan would depend on the co-operation of depositors.

Moratorium Averted by Relief Plan

HARRISBURG, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—A moratorium avoided by swift legislative action, Pennsylvania banks today have the right to regulate deposit withdrawals.

With the approval of the Secretary of Banking, individual banks are permitted to fix the percentage depositors may check out of accounts existing prior to today or any future date on which the banks may ask for the emergency power.

Deposits made after banking institutions have obtained this authority are not subject to restriction. They must be kept in separate, 100 per cent liquid accounts, subject to withdrawal in full on demand.

Late this afternoon only a few scattered towns had reported any action by banks on the new plan. These included Erie, Johnstown and one bank in Greensburg.

QUICK SUPPORT

Adopted at midnight after a day of continuous conferences, the plan received quick and unanimous support of both Senate and House.

Gov. Gifford Pinchot signed at once the concurrent resolution which, he said, "makes it unnecessary to declare a moratorium."

Bills which will convert the emergency resolution into statutory law moved quickly toward enactment.

Normal Legislature activities were at a standstill as the General Assembly gave the right of way to the plan evolved by state officials, legislators and bankers.

Indorsement in all quarters was unanimous and the legislators, by adoption of the resolution, pledged themselves to expedite the supporting bills.

In signing the resolution the Governor said that "conditions which have arisen from causes largely outside of this commonwealth have made this action necessary." He added:

"Unquestionably only a small minority of the banks of Pennsylvania will at this time find it

Assurances Given Here By Leaders

Not a single Pittsburgh bank has announced its intention of taking advantage of the right to limit withdrawals, it was said today at the office of the Department of Banking.

Banks here have been increasing their liquidity during recent months in order to be able to meet any contingencies.

The announcement of the emergency action taken by the Legislature last night did not result in any abnormal conditions when Pittsburgh banks opened for business this morning.

Bankers this afternoon said that withdrawals did not appear any heavier than usual at the end of a month.

The move for the legislation allowing banks to restrict withdrawals of deposits to specified weekly percentages was attributed to conditions elsewhere in the state.

PITTSBURGH BULWARK

Of all the states, bankers hold Pennsylvania to be one of the strongest financially. Pittsburgh, they say, is the bulwark of the state.

No Pittsburgh interests were concerned with the appeal that brought Gov. Gifford Pinchot to urge the Legislature, last night, to grant the restrictive powers.

Similar action was passed by the Legislature of New Jersey last week without ill effects, they argued.

A. E. Braun, president of the Pittsburgh Clearing House Association and of the Mellon-controlled Farmers National Bank, predicted continued full payment on demand to depositors. He declared:

"The Pittsburgh Clearing House Association has made no request for emergency legislation designed to limit withdrawals of deposits.

"The suggestion which resulted in the Legislature's action tonight evidently originated elsewhere in the state. Therefore, I believe that Pittsburgh banks will continue to pay deposits in

JAPAN RUSHES FLEET TO CHINA

TOKIO, Feb. 28.— (INS.) — Forty Japanese destroyers, cruisers and gunboats have been ordered to proceed to South China to protect Japanese residents there, International News Service learned today.

Some of the warships have been ordered to go all the way from Chingwangtao to Canton, while others will cruise up the Yangtze River, in the central part of China.

Fears of outbreaks against Japanese nationals have caused officials grave concern here. It was said the Chinese were continuing the erection of strong fortifications throughout North China, particularly around Tientsin.

The dispatching of warships as far south as Canton will place Japan in a position to strike im-

Liebold's friends and Ford officials said he had been under a "terrific strain" for several weeks, working for the manufacturer on plans for easing the financial situation in Detroit.

The only thing in the way of a clue to the mystery coming to police were a report that Liebold's car had been seen upstate, and

MAYOR CERMAK AIDED BY SLEEP

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Dr. Karl A. Meyer said this afternoon a complete examination of Mayor Anton J. Cermak showed the pneumonia area in his right lung had not extended since yesterday. Dr. Meyer dictated a bulletin which read:

"Mayor Cermak's condition continues comparatively satisfactory. He has had three hours of refreshing sleep. His pulse is 120, respiration 34. Temperature not taken."

The bulletin was dictated at 1:05 p. m.

The respiration rate of 34 was a drop of two points since the previous bulletin a few hours earlier. Dr. Meyer said this was "a very good sign."

Dr. Frank Jirka, one of Mayor Cermak's physicians, said an oxygen room had been ordered from New York and would be rushed here by plane to aid in the efforts to save the Chicago chief executive's life.

Dr. Jirka said Mayor Cermak, shortly before daybreak, asked for a bottle of near beer, indicating his improved condition. The request was not granted.

Asks Ban on Speaker After Cermak 'Slur'

FARRELL, Pa., Feb. 28.—With Mayor Anton Cermak, of Chicago, in a serious condition today, Mayor J. A. Franek today said he would ask the school board to stop Cameron Ralston, National Reform lecturer, from addressing a mass meeting in the high school auditorium this evening.

Mayor Franek took exceptions to a statement credited to Ralston to the effect that Cermak could not recover from his wounds because he used alcohol.

1 DEAD, 4 HURT IN SCHOOL FIRE

A volunteers fireman was killed and four other members of the Turtle Creek Department are in the Braddock General Hospital, as an aftermath to the fire that demolished the borough's public school in Penn avenue last night.

Fireman Letham

Clyde Letham, 38, of 914 Penn avenue, was crushed to death when a fire escape, from which he and his four companions were playing a stream of water on burning debris, was hurtled to the ground as the wall gave way this morning.

Letham was the father of two children. For several months he had driven the fire truck for the department.

Billy Whitla's Uncle, Sharon Banker, Dies

SHARON, Pa., Feb. 28.—John Forker, 70, banker, died of pneumonia today. He was an uncle of "Billy" Whitla, kidnaped in 1909, who died recently. A brother, Harry, and his sister, Mrs. Julia Buhl, who recently figured in a blackmail scheme and kinaping plot, are both ill.

Borkowski Service Station Destroyed

The station was built by Mrs. Borkowski after her husband, John, Tyre miner, was beaten to death by coal and iron police during the coal strike four years ago.

'Magic' Seed Donated To Cure Cermak

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Remedies ranging from magic healing to flaxseed wine have been recommended by persons all over the country for Mayor Anton J. Cermak, dangerously ill here from a bullet wound and subsequent complications, attending physicians said today.

A flower seed wrapped in tissue paper was sent by a woman in Chicago, who said:

"Place this flower seed on Mayor Cermak's chest for half an hour, and his illness will be driven out. He then will recover."

The sender said the seed had belonged to her family for 200 years, and that it had accomplished "remarkable remedies."

A woman who called at the hospital begged doctors to allow her to "place my right hand on Mayor Cermak's forehead for half an hour. I am sure I can cure him by the touch of magic healing."

Two other "magic healers" also applied, but the attending physicians would not allow them in the room.

So wrote a man at Atlantic City. He named a famous German chest specialist as the man.

From Greensboro, N. C., came a suggestion that doctors give Mayor Cermak half a pint of blackberry wine twice a day. Flaxseed wine was suggested by a farmer in Oklahoma.

Bank Plan in Brief

HARRISBURG, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—The plan adopted by Pennsylvania to avoid a bank moratorium provides:

Individual banks may curtail withdrawals from accounts existing prior to yesterday or (when the action is taken in the future) prior to the date of the decision to use the emergency power.

They must apply to the Secretary of Banking who is given emergency power to refrain from closing such institutions for failure to meet in full the liabilities of such accounts.

They may make payments on these accounts on a percentage approved by the secretary.

They must keep in separate and fully liquid accounts all deposits made after they take advantage of the emergency authority.

GERMANY SEIZES REDS AFTER REICHSTAG BUILDING FIRE

POLICE GIVEN EMERGENCY POWERS

Virtual Martial Law Proclaimed By Cabinet

BULLETIN.

BERLIN, Feb. 28. — (INS.)— President Paul von Hindenburg tonight signed an emergency decree establishing virtual martial law to protect the people of Germany "from the menace of Communism."

BERLIN, Feb. 28.—(AP.) Virtual martial law under police regime was decided upon by the German Cabinet today.

The Cabinet had heard a report from Wilhelm Goering, minister without portfolio, upon the fire which damaged the Reichstag Building yesterday.

A military state of emergency was refrained from in order to keep the Reichswehr (standing army) out of political action, but the measures to be decreed will have the effect of placing Germany under a state of emergency with the sole object of meeting Communist danger.

PRESS CENSORSHIP

Meanwhile, the Hitler government ordered prohibition of the entire Leftist press and the arrest of the 100 Communist members of the last Parliament.

With Reichstag and Prussian Diet elections five days off, both orders were regarded as forerunners to the outlawing of the Communist party.

Outlawing of the Communists was expected to assure Chancellor Hitler's party of control in both the Reichstag and Diet to be elected Sunday.

It will take eight months to repair the Reichstag Building. The new Reichstag will meet in the Prussian Diet Building. Investigation disclosed the Reichstag Building, which includes some offices of Chancellor Hitler and other officials, was fired in 15 different places.

Police began arresting Communist Reichstagers early this morning. It was impossible to determine how many were taken in custody this forenoon, as many have gone into hiding.

FIRE INVESTIGATION

Capt. Goering was conducting the fire inquiry. The Communists will be held pending a complete investigation.

A 24-year-old youth named Van der Lubbe admitted setting fire to the famous Parliament Building. He came from Amsterdam where an investigation disclosed he was known as a Communist and founded his own party in Holland.

The youth also admitted setting the fire to the former Kaiser's palace last Saturday night. That fire was put out before causing much damage.

The youth was caught running from the Reichstag Building last night by police. He admitted starting one fire on the main floor and police believed he had accomplices who escaped. Prominent Communist Reichstagers were reported seen fleeing from the building.

WALSH NAMED TO CABINET

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Feb. 28.—President-elect Roosevelt today announced appointment of Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, as his Attorney General.

It was Senator Walsh who prosecuted the Senate's inquiry into the naval oil reserve leases that sent Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interio to jail.

The selection of Walsh left only two more names to be announced for the Roosevelt Cabinet. It is expected Roosevelt will fill the official list before tomorrow with the announcements of Miss Frances Perkins, of New York, for Secretary of Labor, and Daniel C. Roper, of South Carolina, for Secretary of Commerce.

Speculation here is that J. Bruce Kremer, another Roosevelt advocate, will get the appointment from the Governor of Montana to succeed Walsh.

DEFENSE NEAR IN NICOLA CASE

Government counsel in the trial of F. F. Nicola, real estate operator, before Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker, charged with evasion of $26,394 income taxes for 1928, said they expected to complete their case today. The government dropped another count of the indictment charging Nicola with evasion of $5,874 income taxes for 1929.

Harry A. Wolfe, an Internal Revenue agent, who was on the witness stand when court adjourned yesterday, produced a purported copy of a memorandum by Nicola to Lasalle Girts, former secretary of the Point Improvement Company, on December 1, 1928, directing Girts to make inquiry as to overhead burdens of concerns in which the defendant was interested, that would be an offset to possible profits.

The memorandum was attached, it was said, to a voucher for $101,250 Nicola was said to have received as commission from the Miller Printing Machinery Company, on sale of patents. The government contends Nicola credited the sum to the Point Improvement Company, instead of to his personal account. Nicola was said to have held the controlling interest in each concern.

Al Capone's $100,000 Brewery Dismantled

CHICAGO, Feb. 28.—(INS.)—Federal agents today were dismantling a huge $100,000 brewery belonging to the Capone syndicate which occupied the two top floors of a South Side warehouse building. The plant, the largest of its kind discovered in two years, had a capacity of $10,000 worth of brew daily. Two men, Henry Foster and Frank Carey, were arrested by the raiders.

The Steedle bill to permit Sunday motion pictures, sports and other amusements—a measure much broader in scope than the Schwartz bill—passed first reading in the House.

REPEAL CONVENTION

The convention to act on repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment is provided by the McClure Senate bill which the same committee reported for passage.

The bill was amended in committee to provide one delegate from each of the state's 34 congressional districts and 17 at large. As introduced the bill in addition to the 34 district delegates called for 33 delegates-at-large.

In each congressional district there will be three names on the ballot. One candidate will be pledged for repeal, one for retention of the Eighteenth Amendment, and one non-committal.

Among the delegates-at-large the sub-division will obtain, which means there will be 51 candidates for delegate-at-large and 54 names on the ballot in each congressional district.

SENATE VOTES TO PROLONG STOCK QUIZ

Security Affiliates Of More Big Banks Will Be Probed

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28. (AP.)—For at least another year, the Senate Banking Committee will be free to pursue its inquiry into the stock market activities of banks and it was indicated today that several other securities affiliates of big banks are to come within the committee's study.

In the midst of the committee's investigation of the activities of the National City Company, the securities affiliate of the National City Bank, the Senate adopted a resolution prolonging the life of the investigation until the end of the first session of the next Congress.

COUZENS ENTERS

Senator Couzens (Rep.), of Michigan, told Ferdinand Pecora, the committee counsel, during the hearing today that he had some information regarding the Chase Securities Corporation that he desired to give Pecora. The corporation is the investment affiliate of the Chase National Bank.

Arnold M. Brynes, a former vice president of the National City Company, gave the committee information about South American loans today.

SCANS PERU BONDS

Previous testimony had been that the company participated in the sale of $90,000,000 in Peruvian securities although repeated warnings had been given to the company that the financial and political condition of Peru was bad. Pecora questioned Byrnes about these reports today. Byrnes said:

"We might not agree to your classification of the men who took a pessimistic view of Peruvian conditions."

Pecora then asked about a communication from J. H. Durrell, over-seas manager of the bank, in July, 1927, which said Peru's condition was bad.

Bar Probers Delay Report on Park Aides

The report of the special committee of the Allegheny County Bar Association investigating of charges that two members of the staff of District Attorney Andrew T. Park engaged in unethical legal practices will not be made until June, it was learned today.

Several hearings will be held this week, it was indicated, but as the bar association meets this week, the special committee of which J. Smith Christy is the chairman will not be able to make a report. The next meeting of the association will not be held until June.

SMITH FAVORS WORKS BONDS, SALES TAX

Urges Recognition of Soviet to Spur Recovery

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(INS.)—American recognition of Russia, a huge bond issue to finance public construction, and a five-year moratorium on European war debts were urged upon Congress today by former Governor Al Smith, of New York, as steps to the return of prosperity.

The dynamic New Yorker advocated a manufacturers' sales tax in the event additional revenue is needed to balance the budget after the executive departments are reorganized.

HITS RED TAPE

Proposals offered by the blunt spoken 1928 Democratic Presidential candidate included the bond issue for public works with government red tape eliminated, its prosecution and a unified transportation system under control of a new cabinet head.

Smith also urged downward tariff revision; and a sweeping reorganization of the federal government. He stated:

"Now, on our foreign debts, I still feel I was right last spring when I suggested that we not cancel but just quit talking about the debts for a good long time—say five years.

"I don't believe in a high tariff. It should be only high enough to make up the difference on labor conditions and wages.

"The depreciated currency of foreign nations should be taken into consideration when tariff barriers are discussed.

"We should recognize Russia. I know no reason for not doing so. I believe we could settle our differences around the counsel table. We are doing business with them. Why not recognize their government?

"Veterans compensation should be restricted to infirmities due to war and not be extended to injuries or ailments acquired since the war."

VETERANS' AID

Describing the health and other benefits accruing to the war-time soldiers, Smith added:

"Just because he gets hit with a taxicab 10 years later I don't see why we should take care of him forever."

Smith proposed that a tax plan on liquors be drafted by governors of the states in co-operation with the federal government. He declared:

Senator Harrison (Dem.), of Mississippi, asked:

"You mean the tax or the liquor won't be any good?"

"The liquor."

"Action on the repeal amendment should be left to the states and not be interfered with by the Congress."

"I am not certain the budget can be balanced and if necessary a manufacturers' sales tax should be levied. I would exempt food, fuel and clothing and the necessities of the small wage worker.

"I would reduce income taxes and not try to handicap great estates or industries. Our taxation system now is forcing investors into tax free government bonds to the detriment of private enterprise.

"I believe in income taxes, but I am against the high rates."

Smith conferred with Democratic Senators following the hearing. He planned to leave tonight for New York and to return Friday for the inauguration of President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt.

CHINESE STEM DRIVE

PEIPING, China, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Chinese troops defending the pass of Paishihtsuimen still clung to that gap in the mountains half way between Chaoyang and Chihfeng today despite the pounding they were taking from Japanese artillery.

Japanese press reports said the attackers had carried the pass, but Chinese official dispatches said the defenders were so snugly entrenched in the hillsides that the enemy could make no headway.

Time after time the Japanese sent waves of infantry charging up the pass, the Chinese commander reported. At each attack the Chinese withheld their fire until the enemy was almost at point-blank range. Then the defenders cut loose with machine guns and mowed them down.

Chinese reports from all fronts indicated a lull in the fighting during the past 24 hours with virtually no change in the main defense line. The weather evidently was hampering Japanese operations. At some points the temperature was 30 degrees below zero Fahrenheit, but south of the Great Wall the thaw already has begun.

While last night's fire was still raging, causing destruction estimated at $175,000, the school board held an emergency meeting and made tentative arrangements to care for the 1,000 pupils enrolled in the school.

Tentative plans were completed for holding classes for pupils of the first six grades tomorrow.

For pupils of the seventh and eighth grades there will be no school until further notice, the directors announced last night. The gymnasium of the school annex and the Electric Plan School, three miles away, will be pressed into service for the younger children.

A tiny flame in the office of the principal, first noticed shortly after 6 o'clock last night, quickly turned the entire three-story rambling structure into a roaring furnace.

The Westinghouse Technical High School was in session when the blaze broke out, and more than 300 students rushed the doors as smoke suddenly filled the structure and in a short time roared through it.

The structure contained 31 rooms, and when firemen, after four hours of heroic struggle, announced that the fire was under control, only four walls remained.

Scarlet Fever Closes West Park School

Following precautionary action by the school board of Stowe Township, West Park School was ordered closed today until Monday, because 15 cases of scarlet fever were reported among its enrollment. Gale Stroup, supervising principal said there is no danger of the disease spreading and the school will reopen after it is fumigated.

HEAR EXPERTS IN 'CURE' CASE

A government expert, testifying today in the trial of Leo Banks Bartlett of Dormont, charged with violating the food and drug act by the sale and distribution of "Banbar," marketed as a cure for diabetes, declared before Federal Judge R. M. Gibson he tried the remedy on rabbits and that a later examination showed increases of as much as 10 per cent of sugar in the animals' blood. The witness was Dr. Harold D. Lightbody of Washington, assistant chief of drug control in the Food and Drug Administration.

Dr. George H. Keenan, expert micro-analyist of Washington, also testified. The case is attracting considerable attention because of the expert medical testimony expected from both sides.

Because of the possible length of the trial a jury of 13 has been selected.

Police Hunt Man, Find Him in Court

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah. — (INS.) — A week's search for Thomas A. Figgins ended when police discovered him in the District Court room here. Figgins, wanted on a charge of striking his wife, was found sitting on a jury in a case being tried in court.

AIDE TO FORD DISAPPEARS

the almost simultaneous receipt of a letter from him, mailed at Pontiac, in which he resigned as a bank director.

Three men reported to officials that they had seen a car bearing license X-90,000, the number of Liebold's automobile, in Saginaw, about 100 miles north of Detroit. Previously a farmer near Reese, Mich., not far from Saginaw, made a similar report. The car, all said, was driven by a man answering Liebold's description. The driver was alone.

Detroit police said they were advised to Liebold's disappearance shortly after 2 a. m., by an official of the Ford Motor Company. Mrs. Liebold, they were informed, had telephoned Harry Bennett, head of the Ford service department, asking that a search be instituted.

The Ford officials said Liebold left the laboratories of the Ford Motor Company, at 11 a. m. yesterday, saying he was going home to sleep. He did not arrive at his home, and the search was started after Mrs. Liebody became alarmed.

Insull Pensions Upheld In Spite of Protests

CHICAGO, Feb. 28.—(INS.)—Investigation of the conduct of the Insull Utility Investments, Inc., second of the giant Insull holding companies, will be undertaken next by the federal grand jury, District Attorney Dwight M. Green made known today.

This announcement came on the heels of the return of indictments against 19 men associated with Corporation Securities Company, another of the Insull investment projects.

Whether sweeping indictments, hitting officers, directors and others associated with the company, will be sought the prosecutors would not say.

Despite vigorous protests by minority stockholders, directors yesterday voted to uphold the $6,000 pensions granted Samuel Insull, Sr., last year by each of three large utility companies. They are the Commonwealth Edison Company, Peoples Gas, Light and Coke Company and Public Service Company of Northern Illinois.

James Simpson, chairman of the board of directors for each of companies, said he believed the granting of the pensions was wise when all factors were considered. Moreover, he explained the companies are legally compelled to the payment of the pensions.

220 Million Suit Over Ship Taxes Links Mellon

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Andrew W. Mellon and two of his former Treasury associates have been named defendants in a $220,000,000 civil suit—the largest ever filed in the District of Columbia Supreme Court.

The suit charges connivance with officers of unidentified foreign steamship companies to evade payment of income taxes.

Besides Mellon, Ambassador to Great Britain and former Secretary of the Treasury, David H. Blair, one-time commissioner of Internal Revenue, and Alexander W. Gregg, former acting general counsel of the Revenue Bureau, were named defendants.

The suit was filed by David A. Olson, who resigned recently as a stock market investigator for the Senate Banking Committee after charging he had not been given a free hand.

The suit accuses Mellon of not only failing to collect $100,000,000 in delinquent taxes from the steamship lines, but of placing the government in such a position that it was forced to refund some $10,000,000.

The suit also asks interest on the $220,000,000, which would raise the damages many more millions. Action was based on a statute of 1863, making federal officials liable for double the amount of damages. Under the statute a citizen may sue in behalf of the United States, any amounts collected going to the Treasury.

TEACHERS URGED TO 'WARPATH' AGAINST SCHOOL CUTS

N. E. A. GROUP CRITICIZED FOR 'MEEKNESS'

'Great Wealth' Held To Blame for Drive For 'Economy'

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 28. — (AP.) — A commission which declared the profession had been "meek long enough" urged American educators today to go on the warpath against those who "would make children the victims of the depression."

A fighting campaign for public support in ferreting out the attackers, directed by a commission already set up, was advocated in a report presented to the Department of Superintendence, National Education Association.

So serious did the executive boards of the department and the association, parent body, deem the crisis caused by fund reduction that they ordered continued indefinitely the joint emergency commission which made the report. That group, of which John K. Norton of Columbia University, is chaiman, was created in January.

ATTACK ON WEALTH

At the same time the lay committee of the department, functioning as a laison agency between the profession and the public—charged in a report today there appeared to be an organized attempt "by those who control great wealth to cripple the public school system of America."

The lay unit, with Superintendent Charles S. Meek, of Toledo, O., as chairman, likewise appealed for public support of educators seeking to maintain high standards. The lay committee said:

"This attack is the more insidious because by its subtle propaganda it enlists thousands of harrassed taxpayers in leagues militantly organized and committed to the task of betraying the best interests of their own children."

No organizations or individuals were named. Rather, the committee said, its statement of "organized attempt" was directed in a general way to forces seeking tax reduction.

President Lotus D. Coffman, of the University of Minnesota, last night said legislative bodies, ignoring the Democratic philosophy that has guided American life hitherto, and disregarding the foundation guarantees of civil liberty, are striking more or less blindly at every tax supported institution.

REAL ECONOMY URGED

President Glenn Frank, of the University of Wisconsin said:

"The issue is real economy versus bogus economy."

He assailed "irrational budget-making" as education's gravest peril, adding:

"By all means let us stop waste, but let us be sure it is real waste that we are stopping.

"Educational leadership will be derelict to its duty if it permits economic leadership, without let or hindrance, to do what it will with local, state and national budgets.

"The sword that hangs over education must not be allowed to sink into the vitals of its whole enterprise. It is but sign and symbol of the peril that confronts all of the social and cultural enterprises of our common life."

Dr. Frank urged educators to combat "an uncritical drive against educational expenditures."

Mrs. Roosevelt, in Taxi, Eludes Police Escort

Makes Last Field Trip With Girls From Schools

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—(INS.)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the President-elect, today slipped into police headquarters unnoticed by a detail of 15 traffic policemen posted along her expected route. The new first lady of the land arrived unostentatiously in a taxicab and was unaccompanied. Her presence was not detected until she entered the building.

Mrs. Roosevelt was making one of her last civic field trips before giving up her position as a teacher in Todhunter School.

She met her students in the office of Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney. The group visited the police lineup, where prisoners are paraded before the detectives. The police college and the police museum were also visited.

In the afternoon, Mrs. Roosevelt took students on another trip to the Children's Court. Later she was the guest of honor at a farewell reception at the school.

GIRL CONFESSES PART IN HOLDUP TO SAVE BOY

Betrayed Employers For Fear Youth Might Be Shot

Fearful that her sweetheart would meet gunplay in the planned holdup of a Pittsburgh bootlegger, Miss Edna Hall, 22, of 3872 Windgap road, West End, today confessed, according to detectives, to aiding in the robbery of her employers, the Acme Stamping Company, 201 Corliss street, last month.

Held for court with Miss Hall, who had been employed as a stenographer and bookkeeper, were William Hughes, 22, and big brother, David, 17, of 3808 Windgap riod.

The girl collapsed at a hearing in Morals Court and in a hysterical condition while William Hughes attempted to exonerate her and his brother cried out:

"No, he is not telling the truth. I knew all about it."

William was held for court charged with robbery. Miss Hall and David were charged with accessory to robbery before and after the fact. The three prisoners were denied bail.

The girl had been slugged by William during the holdup that netted $80, detectives said.

Arrested today following the alleged confessing by the brothers, Miss Hall sobbed her story to Detective Inspector Frank R. Boyd. He quoted her confession as follows:

"I met Bill at a party some time ago. We had several dates and started going together. One night he told me he was hard up for money and told me he planned sticking up a big Pittsburgh bootlegger who carried plenty of money.

"I became alarmed and tried to dissuade him from carrying out his plans. I thought he would have to do some shooting and perhaps kill someone before he was through with it. I tried to change his mind. When he would not listen to my pleas, I said: 'Well, if you are short of money and insist upon holding someone up, then hold me up.'"

HOLDUP PLANNED

Inspector Boyd said Miss Hall described how the holdup was planned. Asked why William struck her, Boyd said she replied:

"I don't know why. That part was not in the plans and maybe he did so to make it look more realistic."

The youths, arrested early today by Detectives Walter Monaghan and John Hooper, had been held over for investigation following a Morals Court hearing prior to Miss Hall being taken into custdy. Detectives testified the pair had confessed William held up Miss Hall while his brother waited in a rented car. William, detectives said, told them that Miss Hall did not recognize him because burned cork darkened his face, admitted at the hearing he said that to shield the girl. Detectives recovered the money box in a creek near Middletown road. The confessions said the older brother paid some bills with the loot and gave David $8, according to detectives.

BERN SUICIDE MYSTERIES INCREASE

Woman's Bathing Suit, Scream, Missing Cake Enter Case

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 28. —(AP.)—A woman's wet, yellow bathing suit, a feminine scream, a mysterious tete-a-tete on the edge of a private swimming pool, and the disappearance of a piece of cake linked into a strange chain of circumstances that are keeping the question of who killed Paul Bern, film executive, a live issue.

These unexplained events, all occurring within 24 hours of the pistol shot last September 5 that killed the bridegroom of Jean Harlow, platinum blonde screen player, were told yesterday by one of the servants at the Bern residence.

The scene of all of them, said Mrs. Winifred Carmichael, was the Paul Bern honeymoon home in Beverly Hills, in Benedict Canyon.

FOREMAN BALKS

W. W. Widenham, foreman of the county grand jury, kept the death story a live mystery when he refused to join in a scheduled statement from District Attorney Buron Fitts that the second investigation into the case corroborated the coroner's jury verdict of suicide.

Widenham, declining to join in the proposed announcement, induced the District Attorney to accompany him with O. C. Lawton, chairman of the Criminal Complaints Committee, for another examination of the Bern cottage.

Mrs. Carmichael, servant in the house, said yesterday she had not been asked about these strange incidents at the time of the Coroner's inquest, and, therefore, did not tell of them.

STRANGE WOMAN

She said a strange woman visited Bern about sundown on the day which proved to be his last. This woman avoided the servants, she said. A mysterious woman's scream sounded in the house that night, she said. She discovered a wet bathing suit, yellow and belonging to some strange woman, near the pool of the residence, and also two glasses indicating a tete-a-tete at the edge of the pool.

The cake mystery involved a piece of devil's cake she had prepared and left in Jean Harlow's dressing room. Although Miss Harlow had not returned that night, the cake was missing in the morning, and Bern, she said, never ate cake.

SLAIN PEDDLER BOUND IN APRON

CHICAGO, Feb. 28.—(INS.)—His battered head covered by a woman's house apron, the body of a slain butter and egg dealer, of Marengo, Ill., was found today at the rear of a schoolhouse.

The victim was John Hiderman, 55, who made daily trips to Chicago in a small truck to peddle poultry products from house to house. James Sullivan, fireman at the school, opened the rear door leading to the alley cinder pit and discovered the body lying on a pile of cinders.

Hiderman was sprawled on his back, the house apron thrown over his head and bound tightly about his neck. Police said his head had been crushed by repeated blows.

Housewives, who identified the body, said Hiderman had been drinking heavily for about a week.

Ketchup Ended Romance

MRS. ANNA GRACE HARRIS . . . SEEKING HER DIVORCE TODAY

Mrs. Harris, 1431 Columbus avenue, who testified before Judge Marshall in divorce court that her husband, Paul R. Harris, didn't like to work but did like ketchup—so much so that he once threatened to stab her when it wasn't available on the dinner table.

DIVORCES MAN OVER KETCHUP

Her husband was so fond of ketchup he became angry when it was not on the table and threatened to stab her, Mrs. Anne Grace Harris, Columbus avenue, told Judge Elder W. Marshall, who granted her a divorce from Paul R. Harris.

And he liked to sleep so well that he struck her when she tried to get him up at 3:30 in the afternoon, she testified.

They eloped to Wellsburg in September, 1928, when they were 17 and 16 respectively. The husband did not like to work, according to the libellant, because Harris quit his job after they were married. Mrs. Harris told the court:

"He struck me when I tried to get him up at 3:30 in the afternoon. I had to go to work at 7 in the morning and when I would come home at 6:30 he would still be in bed."

The young wife complained her husband struck her after he had lost his money at gambling and she refused to give him more. The couple lived with the parents of Harris in Roslyn avenue, Swissvale, until they separated in April, 1931.

WILSON PROBER FIRED UPON

MT. HOLLY, N. J., Feb. 28.—(INS.)—Someone tried to murder Benjamin Farner, key witness in the reopened Ruth Wilson-Horace Roberts case, it was revealed today.

Farner, who was Coroner at the time Ruth Mowbray Wilson, and her fiance, Roberts, were found shot to death in a bedroom at her home, had stated he had information about the case which had been "muzzled."

And shortly after he began talking about the secret information, which was last August when he suffered a political setback, he was fired upon while riding in his car in Burlington, N. J., Capt. Frank Gilbert, of the Burlington police announced.

Farner told reporters today he had no evidence and believed the one possible motive for the attempt on his life was that someone wanted to silence his version of the Wilson-Roberts shooting.

Farner says he has a 300-page book full of details on the case locked in a safe deposit vault.

PEDDLER DENIES LINDY CLUE AT TRIAL

McCloskey on Stand In Kidnaping Case Against 8 Men

CLEARFIELD, Pa., Feb. 28.—(AP.) — Mayor Eddie McCloskey, of Johnstown is a witness in the trial today of eight men charged with kidnaping Garrett Schenck from Hopewell, N. J.

McCloskey has been accredited by Schenck, 48-year-old fish peddler, with releasing him after he alleged that nine men held him captive in a cabin in Clearfield County while they questioned him about the kidnaping of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., last year.

TELLS OF RUSE

Schenck testified yesterday that J. J. Devine, Johnstown private detective, took him from Hopewell by a ruse, and drove to Clearfield County. Schenck said:

"Devine and the other defendants started to asking questions about the Lindbergh baby kidnaping. They kept on asking questions from June 10 to September 2 and wouldn't let me go.

"I didn't know anything about that and I don't now."

Besides Devine, those on trial are Roy Cummings, accused of helping to abduct Schenck; Avery Conners, Frank Shugarts and Reuben Rakestraw, all of Dubois, and Edward Benshosf, Charles Horner and Paul Cupp, of Johnstown.

CASE NEARS JURY

The case is expected to go to the jury tomorrow.

On the stand yesterday Schenck said that he did not know Col. Lindbergh, father of the kidnaped infant.

"Mr. Lindbergh never traded at my stand. I knew him when I saw him, but I never talked to him."

Dande Dellelo, Pittsburgh government agent, followed Schenck to the stand. He testified that no Federal laws have been violated in this case because no ransom was demanded.

Manhunt Continues Year After Lindbergh Kidnaping

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—An international manhunt for the kidnapers and murderers of Charles Augustus Lindbergs, Jr., never relaxed, went on today, one year after he was stolen from his crib.

Begun March 1, 1932, when the 21-month-old son of the famous flier was abducted; intensified on May 12, when his body was found in bleak Sourland Hills, the search has been relentlessly pursued.

Months ago, President Hoover admonished law enforcement agencies to make the case a "live and never-to-be-forgotten" one. His admonition has been followed.

At the year's end investigators had nothing they were willing to report. For six months they have maintained silence.

Meanwhile, a $25,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the kidnapers, offered by New Jersey after the baby's body was found, still stands.

Towed Auto Hits Boy Roller Skater

Struck by a towed automobile when he fell while attempting to grasp a truck that was towing the machine, Harry Byers, 11, of 834 Linden street, was injured seriously today, according to police. The boy was on roller skates. He was taken to South Side Hospital. The truck was driven by Frank Cancilla, 131 Bausman street, police said. Frank Zbikowski, 214 Thirty-eighth street, was arrested as the driver of the automobile.

Munhall Parents Seek Missing Boys

Parents of Nathan Elder, 14, of Morgan lane, Munhall, and Jack McWilliams, 16, of Emerson avenue, Munhall, today asked police to seek the two boys, who disappeared yesterday a short time after they left their homes to go to school.

Rain, Colder Seen For Inauguration

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Rain Friday or Saturday—inaugural day—and colder at the end of the week is forecast by the Weather Bureau for the Middle Atlantic states.

The bureau explained, however, that a specific forecast for the national capital's weather Saturday will not be available until Thursday.

Man Found Hanged In Leetsdale Home

The body of Metro Meharchm, 55, was found hanging by a rope from a rafter in the cellar of his home at the brickyard in Leetsdale this morning, according to a report to the Coroner. The discovery was made after it was found he had not slept in his bed. A police report said he had been despondent because of illness.

Arrest Faces Drivers With 1932 Licenses

Motorists who venture forth after midnight tonight with 1932 driving licenses face immediate arrest, the Automobile Club of Pittsburgh warned today. More than 70,000 licenses were received in Harrisburg yesterday, a record for a single day, according to telegraphic dispatches.

Senator Howell's Condition 'Serious'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Hospital authorities said today the condition of Senator Howell, of Nebraska, ill with pneumonia, was "practically unchanged." It is still "serious."

One Dead, Two Hurt In Crude Oil Blast

MEDIA, Pa., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—A steam shovel ripped up a pipe line carrying crude oil, causing an explosion which killed one man and burned two others, one perhaps fatally. The blast occurred yesterday on the estate of Walter Jeffords near here. David Kovatch, operator of the steam shovel, died of burns as the flaming oil showered him. Aubrey Smith and Gene King, a state highway supervisor, also were burned. Smith seriously.

Paul Robeson to Make 'Emperor Jones' Film

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Paul Robeson, Negro singer, has been signed to play the title role in the talking picture to be made of Eugene O'Neill's play, "The Emperor Jones."

Robeson, who appeared in "Show Boat" on Broadway last fall, returns from England on April 1 to begin work. He has cancelled plans to go on to Moscow to do a play in Russian, which he speaks fluently.

Apollo Taxpayer Strike Threatens

APPOLO, Pa., Feb. 28.—Open rebellion among taxpayers of the Kiski Valley threatened today as a resolution committee of the Appolo Citizens' Tax League recommended a borough tax strike.

This action followed the borough council's failure last night to reduce taxes along lines suggested by the tax league and the councilmanic decision to issue $19,000 in bonds to pay off indebtedness.

Oxygen Aids Girl Asleep for Year

CHICAGO, Feb. 28.—(INS.)—Oxygen treatments brought a noticeable improvement today in the condition of Miss Patricia Maguire, 27, who has been sleeping for more than a year. Pneumonia set in last week to further complicate the girl's condition and she was hurriedly placed under an oxygen tent.

Puzzled physicians have been unable to rouse Miss Maguire from the coma into which she lapsed more than a year ago.

Three Digging for Gold In Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—While a toothpick-chewing deputy sheriff looked on to assure that the county will receive its half of anything found, Rex I. McCreery, Ray Martin and C. Warren Shufel began digging for gold yesterday in the back yard of an old mansion a short distance from the Los Angeles Hall of Justice.

They said they didn't know whether it would be ore, nuggets or buried treasure, but that they had the utmost confidence in the veracity of their radio metal-locating device.

They said it indicated gold 28 feet beneath the surface.

The property now belongs to the county and the board of county commissioners was so impressed with claims of the explorers it formally granted them permission to excavate under a contract whereby the county would receive half of any precious discovery.

The deputy, with a vest pocket full of toothpicks and a promise to remain by until the job is finished, sat on a box while McCreery, Martin and Shufel progressed with the first day's stint, a hole 6 feet square and 10 feet deep.

Interested spectators debated whether the three men possessed an old Spanish map, and gossiped of buried treasures. Shufel said:

"There's nothing unscientific about this hunt. Radio waves react to gold. We've checked thoroughly, eliminating a lot of small gold deposits, and I am sure this is where we'll make a big strike."

GIRL, JAILED WITH SUITOR, COLLAPSING

MORALS COURT ATTACHES SUPPORTING HYSTERICAL MISS EDNA HALL, 22, HELD IN ROBBERY

A dramatic scene in Morals Court today as Miss Hall, Windcap street, and her suitor, William Hughes, 22, and his younger brother were denied bail after police reported they had confessed to framing the robbery of Miss Hall at her place of employment, the Acme Stamping Company, Corliss street, last month. The loot: $20. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

Banker's Death Held Accident; Wife Freed

SOLO, Java, Feb. 28.—(INS.)—The strange death of John R. Fell, millionaire American banker, society man and polo player, who was found by his former Follies girl wife with a table knife in his heart in their hotel room was officially listed as an accident today.

Provincial police announced this verdict after investigating all angles of the mysterious case, and declared that Mrs. Fell, the sole witness of her husband's death, was at liberty to leave Solo whenever she pleases.

The police verdict bore out the opinion expressed in an official report of Fell's death cabled back to the United States by American consular officials.

Mrs. Fell asserted that Fell was seated at a table, eating his dinner, while she was at the washstand with her back turned. Fell suddenly rose from the table, she said, and staggered toward the bed. Slumping to the floor, he gasped:

"It's my fault. I did it."

Mrs. Fell said she then found the knife in his heart and screamed for help.

Recovering gradually from the effects of the tragedy she witnessed, Mrs. Fell is understood planning to leave Java shortly.

MUCH CASH AVAILABLE

It was pointed out in financial circles that the Mellon banking interests are in a highly liquid condition and able to pay, from United States government bonds and cash, alone, regardless of all their other assets, between 85 and 95 per cent of their liabilities—more than could conceivably be demanded under the worst circumstances possible anywhere.

The Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company interests have, according to A. C. Robinson, chairman of the board of the downtown branch, no intention of invoking the restriction. Robinson said:

"It's a move in the right direction. Pittsburgh banks have the deserved reputation of being in better condition than those of almost any other city in the United States, but the continuation of present conditions without protection will result in a drain of deposits out of the state.

"Leaving it to the discretion of individual banks will require some courage if they are to make use of it. It is to be hoped that this will not prevent its use whenever necessary.

"The Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company will not make use of the option."

DOWNTOWN BANKS LIQUID

F. F. Brooks, president of the First National Bank, and vice president of the Clearing House, declared:

"So far as our downtown situation goes we are liquid, and there will be no occasion for our downtown banks to make use of this discretion.

SEES NO TROUBLE HERE

J. C. Chaplin, president of the Colonial Trust Company, and until recently vice president of the Clearing House, said:

"As far as I know, there is no trouble in Pittsburgh at all. The statement published by the banks on December 31 gives the true condition of Pittsburgh banks.

"This thing did not originate in Pittsburgh and the Clearing House Association or any of the Pittsburgh banks have not requested this.

"The Colonial Trust Company has had no indication of any trouble."

DEPOSITORS REASSURED

No disturbance was expected in the Pittsburgh district as a result of the Harrisburg action last night. It was regarded more as an assurance to depositors that all future business is perfectly liquid and that their interest in present banks will be fully safeguarded.

It was pointed out that the most reassuring aspect of the situation is that, under the new statute, a weak bank could, by invoking restrictions, save itself from failure and liquidate easily and cheaply.

Eminent banking authorities here saw little chance of any considerable number of banks in Pennsylvania taking advantage of the new powers. They did point out that the restrictions would enable banks to save their depositors from great losses and suffering by avoiding the expenses and delays of liquidation in receiverships.

It was an established fact that Pittsburgh bankers were not represented in the conferences leading up to presentation of the resolution.

The state was considered to have passed its major crises last year, with future serious difficulties improbable.

Few Banks in State Limit Withdrawals

Business as Usual Policy at Most Institutions

International News Service.

It was "business as usual" with practically all Pennsylvania financial institutions today.

At mid-afternoon, banks in only a few widely-scattered communities had taken advantage of the Legislature's action in giving the Secretary of Banking power to regulate deposit withdrawals.

Banks in scores of communities announced they were not placing any restrictions on withdrawals, while some that did stated it was a temporary measure resulting from unrest in neighboring states. Bankers in Philadelphia said they regarded the situation there as "in good shape," and none had taken advantage of the Legislature's measure.

Cities where withdrawals were restricted:

GREENSBURG—A 5 per cent limitation on withdrawals of savings and checking accounts went into effect at the First National Bank and Trust Company. New deposits will be received without restrictions.

ERIE—Ten Erie banks, acting through the Erie Clearing House Association, announced restriction to 5 per cent on all accounts. Four national banks are included among those taking the action. New deposits will be accepted and will be payable in full on demand.

SCRANTON—The Scranton Clearing House Association and the Northern Anthracite Bankers' Association announced all members will effect a 5 per cent restriction on withdrawals. Every bank in Scranton and in two score nearby municipalities are members of one or both associations. Both organizations announced the limitation would not be rigidly enforced, but will be construed liberally. The statements said there will be no restriction on withdrawals for general business purposes, and business concerns will experience no difficulty in meeting payrolls.

WILLIAMSPORT—One bank limited withdrawals to $100.

TEXT OF BANK RESOLUTION

HARRISBURG, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—The text of the resolution on the banking situation adopted by the General Assembly was:

"Resolved, that the Senate and House of Representatives of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania in general assembly, hereby authorize and direct the Secretary of Banking not to take possession of any banking institution under the supervision of the Department of Banking of this commonwealth because of the decision of such institution not to meet in full its liabilities for deposits made prior to the passage of this resolution or prior to any future date fixed by such institution, if such institution shall have accepted such terms as shall include the segregation of new deposits in a separate fund available for withdrawal without limitation by the depositors making such deposits and invested only in liquid assets.

"Further resolved, that the General Assembly hereby declares its purpose forthwith to enact suitable legislation more fully to effectuate this resolution and to relieve the Secretary of Banking from all liability for complying with this resolution.

"Further resolved, that this resolution shall be effective immediately upon its approval by the Governor."

Two Suspects Seized In Brown Murder

MT. HOLLY, N. J., Feb. 28.—(INS.)—Police took into custody today two young Negroes suspected in the Bradway Brown murder mystery.

Chief George Dorworth, of the Cinnaminson Township police, announced that Patrolmon John Robinson had found the two Moorestown Negroes whose presence near the wealthy young publisher's home on January 16, when he was shot to death, had awakened suspicion.

Watson Named State Leader in Congress

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—A caucus of Pennsylvania's Republican members of the next House today elected Representative Watson, of Langhorne, chairman of the delegation for the next two years.

URGES DEPOSIT GUARANTEE

HARRISBURG, Feb. 28.—A commission to study a plan by which the state would guarantee safety and repayment of bank deposits was proposed in the Legislature.

A resolution introduced by Representative T. J. Gallagher, Allegheny, Republican, provides for a committee of eight to be named by the Governor. The commission would organize 30 days after enactment of the resolution and immediately begin its study. Recommendations for legislation would be submitted to the 1935 legislature.

The resolution would call for the study of "practicability and feasiability" of state guarantees.

Gallagher said:

"No scientific, first-hand study ever has been made of methods of preventing bank failures in Pennsylvania. Such lack of preparedness is uneconomic and has caused suffering which might have been avoided."

An appropriation of $5,000 for expenses is carried in the resolution, but members of the commission would serve without pay.

Swing at Policeman Costs Man Extra $10

The swing that Charles Ray, 33, of 806 Murtland avenue, took at Motorcycle Patrolman Harry Gordon in Traffic Court yesterday cost him $10, according to police. The $10 was in addition to fines, totaling $25 for violating the automobile laws, which embraced, police said, driving without a license and using wrong license plates on the wrong machine.

Ray, arrested by Gordon in Hamilton avenue, is alleged to have swung upon the officer in Traffic Court during an argument. He was subdued by attendants.

Stork's Visit Makes 4 Great Grandpas

CRESSON, Pa., Feb. 28.—Four Gallitzin men became great-grandfathers when a son was born to George and Marie Cheslock Mazzocco. They are John Cheslock, Aurelio Mazzocco, Michael Bertanzetti and George Saunders. There are also two grandfathers. The wives of all the grandparents are dead.

MORATORIUM IN PENNA. AVERTED

advisable to take advantage of the terms of the joint resolution. How few are compelled to do so will depend on the restraint and co-operation of their depositors.

"The people of Pennsylvania may safely withdraw from their banks the money they need for current expenses. Cashing checks for this purpose is not what endangers the banks. It is the demand for large sums for hoarding which makes the trouble.

"This action is taken to safeguard the mass of Pennsylvania depositors from suffering from the needless desire of hysterical depositors to withdraw their funds. It should also preclude the immediate calling of money loans and the hasty foreclosure of many mortgages which otherwise would be unavoidable."

"The passage of this resolution is proof that the government of this commonwealth is alive to the interests of its people in the banking system of Pennsylvania. It should have the effect of quieting much wild talk and many unnecessary fears."

The resolution adopted by the Legislature authorizes the Secretary of Banking "not to take possession of any banking institution under the supervision of the Department of Banking of this commonwealth because of the decision of such institution not to meet in full its liabilities for deposits made prior to the passage of this resolution or prior to any future date fixed by such institution."

The same plan may be adopted by national banks under the provisions of the recently-passed Couzens act, which gives the Comptroller of the Currency the same power over those institutions as the banking secretary has over state banks.

George W. Norris, governor of the Philadelphia Federal Reserve Bank, told the Chief Executive, as he signed the measure, that it will "pull money out of safe deposit boxes."

Volpe Chauffeur Accused by Girl

James Pici, 24, of Wilmerding, former chauffeur for the slain James Volpe, today was turned over to Mt. Lebanon police by city detectives charged with an alleged attack. A warrant charged an attack on Miss Sophia Solomon, of Mt. Lebanon. Detective Walter Monaghan testified in Central Police Court. Pici was arrested yesterday in the Hill district. When the three Volpe brothers were murdered, Pici was taken into custody for questioning, but released.

FORD'S ENTRY ALLAYS CRISIS IN MICHIGAN

DETROIT, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—The most stupendous bookkeeping task in Detroit's financial history was being carried out today, preparatory to creation of two new banks the Ford millions will control.

Employes of the First National and the Guardian National banks were working in three shifts, segregating 1,700,000 accounts on the basis of liquid assets to be transferred to the new banks, the People's National and the Manufacturers' National.

Doubt was expressed that the accounting could be accomplished by tomorrow, when it had been hoped the new banks could start business, making an additional 30 per cent of all accounts available to depositors.

Including the 5 per cent to which customers have had access since February 16, two days after Michigan's banks went on a "holiday" schedule by gubernatorial proclamation, an estimated $200,000,000 will be released.

FORD GIVES HOPE

Henry Ford, who, with his son, Edsel, is putting $8,250,000 into the capitalization of the new banks, said he hoped that "out of our entry into this field will come an evolution of the money system." He added, however:

"We will have to feel our way along."

Unofficial reports were that Edsel Ford would head the board of the People's National and Henry Ford the Manufacturers' National. Eventually, it is expected the banks will be merged into one of the largest in the country.

DETROIT, Feb. 28.—(INS.)—The city of Detroit today demanded return of more than $6,000,000 in city funds deposited in the Guardian National Bank of Commerce, the Union Guardian Trust Company and the First National Bank-Detroit.

The demand, threatening the entire Michigan bank holiday, is based on an opinion to Charles L. Williams, city treasurer, by Paul T. Dwyer, assistant corporation counsel, that Gov. William A. Comstock does not have legal power under state laws to call the holiday.

Norma Shearer Sails With Thalberg, Son

SAN PEDRO, Cal., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Norma Shearer, film actress; her husband, Irving Thalberg, producer, and their son sailed yesterday on the liner California for New York, whence they will go to Europe. The trip is being made to benefit Thalberg's health. Helen Hayes, actress, and her husband, Charles MacArthur, writer, will accompany them to New York.

Other States Speed Measures Aiding Banks

'Dictator' Set Up By Legislature In Ohio

Associated Press.

Banks in Ohio opened for business today fortified by emergency legislation passed since the close of business yesterday.

Ohio passed two laws giving the Superintendent of Banking unprecedented powers to control withdrawals and slash red tape in liquidation or reopening of closed banks. The laws provide protection for new depositors. Several banks in the state joined the list restricting withdrawals, bringing the number taking such action in Ohio to over 50.

In some other states, too, moves were made to strengthen the banking situation. In Little Rock and North Little Rock, Ark., banks restricted withdrawals. The Delaware Legislature passed a bill empowering the banking commissioner to suspend or postpone payment of accounts by banks if he deems it necessary.

Five banks in Covington, Ky., across the river from Cincinnati, decided to limit withdrawals to 5 per cent a month.

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie said today the banking holiday in Maryland would be extended, but he declined to say when he thought it could be terminated. The original plan was to end it today. The Governor's statement was made after the bill designed to protect bank deposits was completed and was being made ready for presentation to the General Assembly at Annapolis. One of the major provisions is to exempt all public funds from any limitation on withdrawals, a clause that Mayor Howard W. Jackson, of Baltimore, had sought to prevent a default on city bonds which come due tomorrow.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Banks in nearly a score of Indiana cities today had followed the lead of Indianapolis banks in restricting withdrawals to five per cent on all checking, savings and other accounts.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Restriction of withdrawals to 5 per cent or $15, depending on which is the larger, was announced effective immediately for all banks of Little Rock and North Little Rock today.

Bank Commissioner Wasson said there had been no precipitate runs, but steady withdrawals through the state apparently were result of banking holidays in other states.

DOVER, Del., Feb. 28.—(INS.)—Gov. C. Douglass Buck today signed three emergency pieces of legislation designed to permit banks to "freeze" their deposits if necessary to protect depositors.

The bills were passed by the Legislature last night. Proponents said they would eliminate the possibility of a Delaware banking moratorium.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—With additional banks taking advantage of new legislation to limit withdrawals, Ohio business today dug into the task of carrying on despite curtailment of funds.

Payrolls were met in most instances by larger corporations and utilities regardless of the freezing of deposits.

GOV. PINCHOT'S STATEMENT

HARRISBURG, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—After signing the banking resolution, Gov. Gifford Pinchot issued this statement:

"I have just signed a joint resolution passed by the Legislature this evening which makes it unnecessary to declare a moratorium for Pennsylvania banks. There will be no such moratorium.

"Conditions which have arisen from causes largely outside of this commonwealth have made this action necessary.

"Unquestionably only a small minority of the banks of Pennsylvania will at this time find it advisable to take advantage of the terms of the joint resolution. How few are compelled to do so will depend on the restraint and co-operation of their depositors."

WRITER FREED IN SLAYING

FORT PAYNE, Ala., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Climaxing a two-year battle for his freedom, Tom Roan, fiction writer, was acquitted today on a charge of slaying Dr. W. P. Hicks.

The third jury to sit in judgment on the middle-aged author brought in its verdict after more than 60 hours' consideration.

Roan was charged with first degree murder in the shooting of Dr. Hicks at the writer's Lookout Mountain home, April 30, 1931.

Pleading self-defense, Roan testified the trouble developed from a declaration by the physician that he was the "best man in Dekalb County." Roan said the doctor's statement was accompanied by profanity and that a fight started when he handed Dr. Hicks his hat and coat and showed him the door.

A scuffle began during which Dr. Hicks attempted to slash him with a knife, Roan testified, and he shot Dr. Hicks six times through the head with a pistol.

Roan's first trial ended in a deadlocked jury and he was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment following the second, but won an appeal to the State Supreme Court.

HULL TO INSIST ON TARIFF CUTS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(INS.)—Senator Cordell Hull, Secretary of State Designate, has notified Great Britain informally that he expects international tariff readjustments as the price for revision of war debts, it became known today.

The new Secretary of State took this step in his conversation yesterday with Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador.

He handed the British envoy a copy of statements he had printed in the Congressional record last December on what the United States should demand in return for debt revision. At the same time, he let Sir Ronald know the statements would represent his views as Secretary of State.

Reciprocal reduction of tariffs, liberalization of foreign exchange rates and discontinuance of artificial protection for businesses which are "economically unjustifiable" were advocated by Hull.

SEEK TO QUASH BOWSER CASE

A motion to quash the indictment of perjury against Watson Bowser, Kittanning contractor who held a $200,000 slag-hauling contract at the Allegheny County airport, was made today before Judge Samuel H. Gardner in Criminal Court by Attorneys O. K. Eaton and Charles Harrington.

Judge Gardner has set Friday for the argument. District Attorney Andrew T. Park will oppose the motion.

Bowser's attorneys contend that the indictment found last fall was based on the testimony of E. T. McIlwain, of the Duquesne Slag Company. It is alleged that McIlwain, after testifying once before the grand jury that Bowser did not pay him 5 cents a ton on the contract, later changed his testimony.

It is alleged that McIlwain was highly nervous in his second appearance before the grand jury, and that the second statement was obtained "by means of certain improper accompanying circumstances."

Two Held in Theft Of 57 Pairs of Pants

John Adams, 43, of 613 Chauncey street, and Edward Hunt, 36, of 2 Franklin way, both Negroes, were held in the Center Avenue Police Station today in connection with the alleged theft late yesterday of 59 pairs of trousers from a truck parked in the rear of the Hart Trouser Company, Inc., 1213 Fifth avenue.

Adams was arrested in Washington place with a half dozen pairs of pants over his arm, police said. Hunt, arrested a short time later, had three pairs, police said.

Monastery Destroyed By Fire, Loss $30,000

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Feb. 28.—(INS.)—Fire last night destroyed the monastery of the Congregation of the Sacred Heart of Jesus at Harvey's Lake, headquarters of the Lithuanian missionaries in the United States. Loss was estimated at $30,000.

The Rev. L. S. Brigmanus, superior of the order which originated in Illinois and came to Wilkes-Barre in 1927, was ill at Mercy Hospital today and was not informed of the loss.

Baldheaded Man Steals Brush, Jailed

Andy Slembo, 45, no home, will spend 30 days in the workhouse because his baldness failed to convince Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court today that the theft of a hairbrush was justified.

7 Philadelphians Hurt in Car Crash

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 28.—(INS.)—Seven persons were injured, one seriously, and almost 50 other persons were shaken up when two trolley cars collided in the downtown section today.

Traffic over several of the busiest trolley lines was tied up and scores of office workers and shoppers were delayed.

Don't 'Baby' Your Children, Urges Woman Writer

MISS V. SACKVILLE-WEST

Mothers who "baby" their children and give them excessive care were given a mild verbal spanking today by V. Sackville-West (Mrs. Harold Nicolson), well-known English novelist.

Before leaving the city to continue her speaking tour she criticized mothers who "over-protect" their children with these words:

"Child care is comparable to drinking here in America. If you give them their liberty they don't want it, and if you forbid it they take it anyway. I believe in the English point of view of putting the child on its own feet."

The authoress explained that it is a "fetish" in England to send a boy or girl away to preparatory school at six or seven. After preparatory school they go to institutions such as Rugby, Winchester and Eton.

The novelist, who has two boys of her own, believes, however, in a certain amount of maternal care. She said:

"I believe in a certain amount of give and take between the child and the parents. A wholesome family relationship should exist."

NEW BANKRUPT BILL VOTED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28. —(INS.)—In the face of a swiftly-approaching adjournment, the Senate today resumed consideration of two remaining appropriation bills after passing a precedent-shattering bankruptcy reform act, which would permit a scaling down on individual, farm and railroad debts.

The bankruptcy act would permit individuals or groups of farmers to effect a compromise with their creditors for settlement of all outstanding debts. It would authorize a liquidation of debts rather than the present system of discharging debts through bankruptcy. It passed the Senate 44 to 8.

This emergency measure carries a section giving insolvent railroads a chance to reorganize, recapitalize, consolidate or merge providing the plan meets with the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The bill previously passed the House in somewhat different form. The railroad provision was included by the Senate, after bitter debate, by a vote of 42 to 15. The bill now goes back to the House.

KIRK Q. BIGHAM, REALTOR, DIES

Kirk Q. Bigham, prominent in civic and political affairs of the city, died yesterday at his home, 819 Grandview avenue, Mt. Washington. He was a pioneer in the development of Mt. Washington and had large holdings of real estate at the time of his death. He was one of the organizers of the Duquesne Inclined Plane Company of which organization he was a large stockholder and secretary. He also was one of the organizers of the South Hills Trust Company of which he was vice president.

In politics nearly half a century ago, Mr. Bigham was allied with Chris Magee and William Flinn and served a term in the old Common Council. He had not been active in politics of late years, but he continued to look after his business affairs up to the last.

Besides his widow, Emma Tanner Bigham, he leaves two nephews, Melville B. Stout and the Rev. Dr. Thomas J. Bigham; and two nieces, Mrs. James Gray and Mrs. Carl Wolfe.

IRISH RAIL SHOP BOMBING FAILS

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—An unsuccessful attempt was made today to bomb the engine sheds of the Great Northern Railway here. A bomb thrown from a road near the sheds failed to explode.

Railway workers in Ulster have been on strike three weeks as the result of a wage dispute.

Two bombs were exploded in Belfast last Sunday. One of them was set off at the Victoria station of the Great Northern Railway and the other at a station of the London Midland Scottish Railway. Strike leaders denier their followers had any connection with either incident.

John McCormack III, Cancels Concerts

SHREVEPORT, La., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—John McCormack, the famous tenor, here for a recital last night, was compelled to cancel his engagement because of an attack of laryngitis. Physicians, after consultation, advised him not to sing for several days.

Suspect Held Over In Girl's Abduction

Thomas McGowan, 29, of 127 La Belle street, Mt. Washington, who surrendered to South Side police late yesterday in connection with the alleged abduction of Miss Stella Dudyak, 19, of 98 South Ninth street, was held over today in Morals Court.

Miss Dudyak indentified McGowan as the man who dragged her into an automobile from which she later leaped in a lonely road off Saw Mill Run boulevard, according to a police report. The hearing was continued when the girl was unable to appear due to her nervous condition.

Head to Address Father, Son Meeting

C. W. Head, Boy Scout commissioner of Alleghen) County, will be the principal speaker at the "Father and Son" banquet of the "Willing Workers" Bible Class of the Union Church at Gayly on the Steubenville Pike tomorrow night. Mrs. Mary Cook is chairman of the social committee and Gregg Cook the banquet committee.

Police Asked to Hunt For East Liberty Boy

Police were asked to search for Harry Muldoon, 16, who disappeared from his home, 279 Spahr street, East Liberty, Saturday night. He is described as 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighing 120 pounds, and having dark brown hair and brown eyes. He was wearing a blue serge suit.

Husband Drank 68 Gallons of Wine, Wife Says

CHICAGO, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Henry Endler faced the court and heard his wife complain that he drank 68 gallons of wine in seven weeks.

The judge looked astounded. He gave Endler a lecture and ended—"hereafter you keep the peace and confine yourself to water." Endler said:

"But, your honor, I can't drink that much water."

Lenten Services To Start Tomorrow

Weekly Lenten services will be held in the chapel of the Pittsburgh Goodwill Industries, Liberty avenue and Twenty-eighth street beginning tomorrow at 12:30 p. m. They will continue until Easter, and many men, women and children identified with the organization's many activities are expected to attend.

Boy Scout commissioners of the district will meet at the Goodwill Industries Monday, March 6 to complete plans for the Scouts' participation in the annual Goodwill Bundle day campaign.

Arrest Oregon Judge In Ballot Burning

MEDFORD, Ore., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Earl H. Fehl, Jackson County Judge, was today arrested on a burglary charge in connection with the theft from the Courthouse and destruction of about 10,000 November election ballots a week ago. He gave $5,000 bond.

Sheriff Gordon Schermerhorn, arrested Saturday, today denied knowledge of the affair.

The ballots were burned the night before the court was to supervise a recount demanded by defeated former Sheriff Ralph Jennings.

Two-Piece Model
Pattern 2561
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

by Anne Adams

Here's a preview of yourself in the smartest two-piece rig of the season. You'll agree there's nothing more dashing than the simply tailored overblouse, with its yoke, button trimmed closing and three-quarter puffs, set off by a tiny collar and very engaging bow of contrast. Any one of the new cottons, silks or sheer wools would insure perfect results.

Pattern 2561 may be ordered only in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 16 requires 3½ yards 39-inch fabric and ½ yard contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with this pattern.

Send 15 CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred), for this pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

THE SPRING FASHION BOOK contains 32 colorful pages of lovely Paris-inspired models for every spring need. It shows how to be chic at every hour of the day. Every style is practical, and easy to make. 20 MAN DIES IN MORTGAGE WAR

SULLIVAN, Ind., Feb. 28.—(INS.)—Sullivan County's farm eviction battle of last week claimed its second life today when Oral Reedy, 28, died at the Union Hospital at Terre Haute. His father, Andy Reedy, 55, died at the same hospital last Friday.

The deaths were the first in Indiana growing out of opposition by farmers to mortagage foreclosures.

Six men have been in jail here since Saturday charged with murder in connection with Andy Reedy's death. An additional charge probably will be filed against the men, Prosecutor Rex Bridwell said.

Prosecutor Bridwell charged that the six men in jail here were enraged because the Reedys had decided to foreclose on a 120-acre farm owned by Otis Turner, one of those in jail.

POPE APPROVES ROYAL WEDDING

BUDAPEST, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—The newspaper Reggeli Ujsag reported yesterday that Archduke Albrecht of Hapsburg had received permission of the Pope to marry Mlle. Irene Lelbach, divorced wife of Ludwig Von Rudnay, Hungarian minister to Sofia.

It was recalled that the Archduke married Mlle. Lelbach secretly in Brighton, England, July 16, 1930, but the marriage was not recognized by the Catholic Church.

At the time of the marriage it was said he intended to renounce all his titles and privileges as a member of the Hapsburg family and emigrate to Brazil. The marriage, said by an official communique to have been a civil ceremony, was declared to have practically ended his chances of occupying the Hungarian throne.

National Tube Head Names New Aide

F. W. Waterman, president of the National Tube Company, late yesterday announced that Rudolph Furrer, of Milwaukee, had been named assistant to the operating vice presidents of the tube company, and will be located in Pittsburgh. He recently was chief engineer and director of research of the A. O. Smith Corporation of Milwaukee.

Jail Bribe Attempt Gets Man 18 Months

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(INS.)—Convicted of an attempt to bribe a jail guard to alter prison records, Abner Siegel, disbarred attorney, will be forced to serve a term of 18 months in jail following refusal of probation by Justice Proctor in District of Columbia Supreme Court.

CHILDREN GIVEN TO COL. MILLER

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Col. Zach T. Miller, of Ponca City, Okla., long associated with the 101 Ranch there and the traveling show of the same name, yesterday was granted a final divorce decree and custody of his two children, Zach, Jr., 11, and Tassie, 8, when the State Supreme Court affirmed a decision of the District Court of Catahoula Parish, La., where Miller maintains extensive farming properties.

Col. and Mrs. Miller charged infidelity in counter-divorce actions and when the decree was awarded to Miller, Mrs. Miller appealed to the Supreme Court on the allegation that her husband was not a legal resident of Louisiana.

Bill Would Disarm Special Constables

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Special constables were divested of the right to bear arms and to act in criminal cases under a bill signed today by Gov. Conley.

The new law permits special constables to serve civil papers only when a duly-elected constable is unavailable.

The bill was sponsored by Senator Taylor (Dem.), of Cabell County.

GIRL AND YOUTH ROB STORE

WHEELING, W. Va., Feb. 28.—While his woman companion held the store-keeper at the point of a gun, a youthful bandit today robbed a Wheeling chain store of $12. The pair escaped.

William J. Keyes, manager, victim of a similar robbery a month ago, said to the male bandit:

"This is pretty hard on me."

The bandit replied:

DEATH CLOSES 14-YEAR FIGHT

VALLEY FORGE, Pa., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Death has prevented William Stevens' renewal of his 14-year-old legal battle with the Valley Forge Park Commission over condemnation of his family homestead as part of the National Shrine.

He was to have appeared in court yesterday in a new trial of his suit for interest charges against the state, but he died Sunday at Valley Forge Manor. He was 71.

The commission in 1918, condemned his property and awarded him $15,000. Stevens fought the condemnation proceedings for 11 years until one day, while away from home, his belongings were moved off the property.

He moved back last November and again was ejected.

Then he filed suit for $3,500 interest charges and a jury awarded him $1,900. Dissatisfied, he was granted a new trial which was to have started yesterday.

Erect New Furnaces At Ohio Steel Mill

YORKVILLE, O., Feb. 28.—Additional annealing furnaces are being erected at the local tin plate plant of the Wheeling Steel Corporation. They will serve the strip mill. The regular annealing equipment proved inadequate to handle the full output of both hot and strip mill departments. The plant is running at capacity in all departments. Construction of the furnaces has boosted the number of employes to more than 2,000.

MULDOWNEY'S SALARIES 'SAFE'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Kenneth Romney, sergeant-at-arms in the House, had said today Michael Muldowney, Republican Representative-elect from Pittsburgh, could draw his salary as Representative along with his City Council pay if he so desired.

Romney had studied precedents to determine whether Muldowney was entitled to his congressional pay if he failed to resign from City Council by March 4. Muldowney said recently he did not intend to give up the city position.

Romney is delaying until after inauguration any decision on the pay of Henry Ellenbogen, Democratic Representative-elect from Pittsburgh. Ellenbogen until June will not have been seven years a citizen, a constitutional requirement for a Representative. Romney said he planned to refer the Ellenbogen case to the Comptroller General.

The salary of a Pittsburgh Councilman is $8,000. Salary of a Congressman is $10,000, besides clerk hire and other allowances.

SEEKS SANITY TEST FOR GIRL

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—E. C. Wimberly, attorney for Jane Leslie, 29, of Washington, Pa., who shot and killed Mrs. E. E. Frederick, February 16, said yesterday he would file a petition for appointment of a commission to investigate the girl's sanity.

Wimberly said he would request that an alienist be included on the commission and that its findings be presented when the case goes before the county grand jury next Monday.

Miss Leslie, held in a Bartow jail, has declined to discuss the shooting except to say, according to officers, that she shot Mrs. Frederick, her landlady, in self-defense. Police quoted the prisoner as saying Mrs. Frederick had struck her with her hand prior to the shooting.

COX'S 'PAYROLL' PAYLESS

A unique feature of the organization dispensing relief under direction of Father Cox is that it has a payless payroll. With one exception there isn't a man or a woman who draws compensation in cash. This exception is a general superintendent at $25 a week. The others were once compensated, but as money donations became scarcer and he found he could not meet a payroll, they remained without pay.

In the meantime it looks like another big week in the Father Cox-Sun-Telegraph subscription drive. Beginning with the Sunday morning radio broadcasts by Father Cox the subscriptions started to roll in before he had left the microphone. Father Cox gets a liberal cash commission for every home delivery order that comes in on the blank on this page and this cash is employed to buy food for his breadline and the several hundred families who come to him for aid.

Suspect in Robbery Of Spinsters Held

BRIDGEPORT, O., Feb. 28.—Estele Bogard, 24, is being held today accused of having attacked Carrie and Annie Steger, aged spinsters, in their home February 3. Miss Carrie Steger, released from a Wheeling hospital, was taken to St. Clairsville, where she identified Bogard as the man who robbed her home and beat her February 3.

Bid to Wedding In Mail 25 Years

PALLANZA, Italy, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Twenty-five years after his son's marriage, Stefano Maioli, farmer, has received an invitation to the wedding. It had been lost in the mails. Because of the difference time has worked in postage values, Maioli had to pay for an additional stamp.

U. S. OWNERSHIP OF RAILS URGED BY UNTERMYER

Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 28.—Government ownership of the railroads must come quickly if the carriers are to be saved from "hopeless general bankruptcy," Samuel Untermyer, famous New York attorney, declared in an address before the University Club here yesterday.

In his speech, broadcast in part over a national radio network, Mr. Untermyer coldly and scathingly arraigned "high finance" and the House of Morgan for the unscrupulous financial juggling and gross inflation which, he declared, were largely responsible for the present plight of the railroads.

HITS R. F. C. AID

The problem of the carriers, he asserted, is the most desperate and confusing which now faces the people of the nation. Congress can stave off the inevitable for a time by continuing to pour hundreds of millions into the rail systems through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation—a procedure which will benefit no one but the very financial agents who have brought the present situation to pass.

In the end, bankruptcy must ensue, he declared, unless the government takes over the roads. And bankruptcy, he added, "would bring such widespread disaster in its wake that it cannot be contemplated without appalling dread of the many collateral evils that would be unleashed upon the masses of our people."

In this fight for government control of the carriers, Mr. Untermyer predicted that "the forces of publicity will be almost solidly arrayed" in opposition, and the case "will be so misrepresented as to be unrecognizable, overwhelmed and submerged by the power of special privilege." He said:

"I except one great publisher from this general statement. For here again, Mr. Hearst's newspapers are the only ones that have dared to take their accustomed stand on the firing line and tell the truth."

LAUDS HEARST STAND

Again he commended Mr. Hearst's stand, when he declared, discussing the pressing need for relieving unemployment and want:

"I have from the beginning of the depression urged by way of temporary relief and until permanent provisions are made, the wise and far-seeing proposal of Mr. Hearst that Congress make available the sum of $5,000,000,000 to be employed partly for the construction of public works and partly for relief distribution."

The nation, he pointed out, squandered over 40 billions of dollars in a war and into which it was drawn chiefly to protect loans made by the House of Morgan to the bankers. Now, he said, Congress balks at appropriating the five billion dollars "to furnish at least this measure of relief to its own suffering citizens."

In reverting to the railroads, Mr. Untermyer pointed out that government ownership will not be achieved without the most desperate kind of struggle between the people at large and the vast entrenched interests, whose grip on the nation has been tightened immeasurably in recent years and even during the present crisis.

Bitterly and without qualification, Mr. Untermyer flayed the bankers and "high finance" for flagrant dishonesty and brazen disregard of the welfare of the people.

UTILITY PROBE FACES LONG DELAY

HARRISBURG, Feb. 28.—Pennsylvania's public utilities are safe from the prying eyes of the Senate Investigating Committee for many months to come.

The inquiry was at a standstill today and the time of its resumption is quite indefinite. Members of the committee did not intimate that the investigation is ended, and Senator John J. McClure, Delaware, chairman of the group, declared merely that a "recess" has been ordered.

He explained, however, that the temporary injunctions in the lower courts will be fought and those which have been made permanent are being appealed to the Supreme Court.

END IN SIGHT

But before the litigation is finished the Legislature may have adjourned.

Resumption of public hearings also hinges on whether the Supreme Court will rule that a legislative committee has wide investigating powers.

However, money is needed to take appeals in these cases, for the committee's counsel fees and for defraying printing expenses incidental to court appeals.

To provide this money the committee has appealed to the Supreme Court from the Dauphin County Court ruling that the present $100,000 appropriation is null and void because it was enacted by a special session of the Legislature called to consider only unemployment relief.

McCLURE RESOLUTION

The committee has the McClure resolution reappropriating the money and reaffirming the committee powers. This resolution was approved on one reading by the House and then was sent back to the Appropriations Committee for study.

The committee has urged that it be immediately reported for adoption, but some legislators balked at this plan. They said they believe the appropriation is too large, in view of the demands upon the state for relief and the depleted condition of the state treasury.

PINCHOT DRAFTS PITTSBURGHERS

Four Pittsburghers had invitations from Gov. Pinchot today to serve on the State Executive Committee on Malnutrition. The Governor proposes to set up a board of 32 persons which is to function in connection with the work of the State Emergency Child Health Committee.

Miss Gertrude Heatley, Augustus K. Oliver and Dr. Walter F. Donaldson, all of Pittsburgh, and Dr. Charles H. Marcy, Wilkinsburg, were asked to serve. County committees are to be appointed later to act under the guidance of county medical societies.

Urge State Control Of Township Roads

HARRISBURG, Feb. 27.—(AP.) All township roads would be placed in the state highway system under a bill introduced in the Senate last night. Presented by Senator Chauncey W. Parkinson, Greene County, the bill is more extensive than Gov. Pinchot's proposal to take over the 53,000 miles of second-class township roads not on the state system.

The measure would permit the township supervisors to determine which roads shall be constructed and improved by the state and would permit counties to contribute money for improvement of designated roads. The Highway Department now selects roads to be improved on the state system.

$500,000 for Dam Erection Advocated

HARRISBURG, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—A bill appropriating $500,000 for construction of a dam and spillway across the outlet of Pymatuning Swamp was introduced last night in the Senate. Its sponsor is Senator Alonzo S. Batchelor, Beaver.

If approved the bill would provide enough money for completion of the Pymatuning Swamp drought and flood control project started in 1931. The 1931 Legislature appropriated $1,500,000 for the project and relief funds were allocated for work relief to aid in clearing the proposed reservoir site. A similar measure was introduced in the House.

Texas Road Probe Closed by Senate

AUSTIN, Tex., Feb. 28.—(INS.)—The Senate investigation of the Texas Highway Department had fallen flat today and the Highway Commission was clear of the charges by Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson that its handling of country escrow funds had resulted in a $1,000,000 loss.

The Governor's charges still pend in the Lower House.

State Income Tax Bill Given House

HARRISBURG, Feb. 27.—(AP.)—A 5 per cent tax on all incomes is provided in a bill introduced in the House last night by Representative Raymond J. Shettel, York.

The measure would allow rebates of $250 on incomes up to $5,000 and the revenue would be used for emergency relief and school districts. The latter provision is designed to relieve local property tax payers.

Kline Defender

ROBERT von MOSCHZISKER

NOTED JURIST TO AID KLINE

Mayor Charles H. Kline has retained Robert von Moschzisker, former chief justice of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, to help him escape a jail sentence for malfeasance in office.

Confirming the fact that he had been retained by Mayor Kline to lead his legal forces in his final determined fight, von Moschzisker was quoted as saying:

"You may say that I hereafter will be associated with, and will lead Mayor Kline's defense. However, I will not be in court at Butler on Wednesday."

Mayor Kline is to face Judge Thomas D. Finletter in Butler on Wednesday to ask a new trial, or be sentenced on the one count of malfeasance on which a Butler jury found him guilty last year.

Attorney Charles B. Prichard has been in Philadelphia conferring with von Moschzisker, according to reports. He and Attorney Edward G. Coll, also of the Kline legal staff, will continue Kline's fight to escape jail on Wednesday.

Bertram L. Succop, Kline's former supplies director, convicted at the same time as the Mayor, went to jail last week because, according to reports, he is financially unable to appeal.

PUBLISHER HITS RELIEF COSTS

GREENSBURG, Pa., Feb. 28.—(INS.)—Declaring overhead expense in the administration of relief had brought the state to "the brink of being engulfed in a social workers' complex," E. Arthur Sweeny, Greensburg publisher, today announced submission of his resignation from the Westmoreland County Emergency Relief Board to Gov. Gifford Pinchot.

Sweeny, citing the recent authorization of a $200-per-month county executive director, remarked:

"I have been unable to see the wisdom of using a large sum of relief money for administrative purposes."

Sweeny criticized the highly-paid state organization, with a directing head paid $10,000 a year and his assistant $8,000.

The publisher pointed out that a paid personnel of other leading relief workers, with salaries ranging downward from $5,000 to $2,000, now exists. Their positions, he said, include a chief clerk, $3,600; director of supervisory field work, $3,000; assistant to director of supervisory field work, $2,400; purchasing agent, $3,960; assistant purchasing agent, $2,000; nutritionist, $4,800; publicity director, $5,000, and five field representatives at $2,400 each.

PROPOSES 'RAID' ON AUTO FUND FOR RELIEF

HARRISBURG, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Members of the Legislative League were told it may be necessary to dip into the motor license fund for $20,000,000 for unemployment relief.

Representative Chester H. Rhodes, Monroe, Democrat, yesterday asserted that savings for budget-balancing purposes should be made through state collection of local taxes and equalization of other taxes and called for support of school subsidies and teachers' colleges appropriations.

He opposed Gov. Pinchot's proposal to have the state take over 53,000 additional miles of second-class township roads, and said the provisions of the Williamson bill would cut out much rural highway construction. He said:

"To dip into the motor fund is not justifiable except for relief. First we must take steps to effect a saving of at least $34,000,000 in running the state, as proposed by the Governor, and then we must provide relief and equalize taxes.

"We can effect at least $9,000,000 in savings through tax collection and equalization plans and then, if necessary, we can take $20,000,000 from the motor fund for relief purposes."

Opposing curtailment of teachers' colleges, he said he understands "the normal school people are willing to take a 10 per cent salary cut at a saving of $600,000."

He expressed opposition to Gov. Pinchot's plan to have the state collect and share the personal-property tax with the counties, although he said he felt some centralized collection method should be adopted.

RELIEF MARCH NEARS CAPITOL

HARRISBURG, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—With the state capitol and $100,000,000 for relief as their goal, "unemployed marchers" were rolling toward Harrisburg today in trucks and automobiles. Leaders said they expect about 1,000 at the Capitol tomorrow.

Most legislators expect to be on their way home by the time the delegations arrive, but legislative officials have agreed to give them a hearing in the House of Representatives. Gov. Pinchot has told the leaders he will receive a delegation Thursday, but can not promise relief.

From the West, a delegation of 165 rolled along in vehicles from Johnstown today. Most of them came from Greensburg and vicinity.

State Sales Tax Comes to End Today

HARRISBURG, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—The state emergency relief sales tax ends today. Reports and tax returns, however, must be submitted to the department on or before April 1. Failure to comply involves a 10 per cent penalty in addition to the tax.

Although the tax period ends today, the liability of the taxpayer does not cease. Leon D. Metzger, secretary of revenue, warned the law requires taxpayers to keep their records for two years, beginning April 1.

BILL PROPOSES LIQUOR BOARDS

HARRISBURG, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Regulation of the liquor traffic by state and county commissions is proposed in a bill Representative James L. Quinn, Allegheny, prepared for introduction in the Legislature today. Quinn said the measure would permit the Governor to name a state board of four members and allow County Commissioners to name county boards ranging from two to four members, depending upon the size of the counties.

Appointments to the boards would be made from lists recommended by state and county chairmen of the two major political parties. The state board, empowered with control of brewers and distillers' licenses, would be comprised of two members of each major party and would serve for four years at annual salaries of $7,500 each. County boards would control retail and wholesale licenses and would receive annual salaries no greater than $5,000.

License fees provided by the proposed bill would be similar to those fixed under the old Brooks high license law.

Sale of liquor on Sundays and election days would be prohibited and county commissioners would be privileged to fix the hours when sales could be made.

Operate on Tuition, New Bill Proposes

HARRISBURG, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—A bill amending the school code by directing boards of trustees of state teachers colleges to retain tuition and board fees from students and use it to pay operating expenses was introduced in the Legislature last night by Senator Owlett, Tioga county.

COYNE TAX FEE BILL VOTED IN SENATE

HARRISBURG, Feb. 28.—The Coyne bill fixing the fees of the delinquent tax collector of Allegheny County at five per cent instead of 10 per cent passed the Senate last night, 47 to 0.

It was immediately sent to the House, where an effort will be made to pass it within a short time, though another effort will be made there by opponents of the fees system to put the position on a salary basis.

Senator William D. Mansfield, who in the Senate has made several efforts to eliminate the fees, admitted defeat last night by voting for the bill as the best measure which could be gotten through that body. Mansfield had sponsored a bill cutting off the fees.

SALARY BILL DELAYED

A bill by Senator Sones, Lycoming, which would have given county salary boards the right to fix salaries now set by statute, was sent back to committee when it appeared for final passage last night. Under its terms the Salary Board, consisting of the County Commissioners, the Controller and the head of the office under consideration could have fixed the salaries of appointive officers, clerks and employes paid from the county treasury.

Senator Mansfield introduced a bill to make the salaries of poor directors in Allegheny County $3,500 a year. Other measures introduced by Mansfield would authorize the use of special road taxes for county bridge purposes, and would permit counties, cities, boroughs, townships and school districts to issue bonds for 10 years at 6 per cent interest in the amount of delinquent taxes to defray operating expenses only.

BUDGET BILL OUT

The general appropriation bill, calling for $158,000,000 for running the state government during the next two years, was reported for passage in the House last night. It carries the departmental appropriation recommended by Gov. Pinchot in his budget message.

Among the bills introduced last night were:

Representative Spann, Allegheny, abolishing the advertising of delinquent taxes in Pittsburgh.

Representative McClure, Allegheny, authorizing the Highway Department and County Commissioners to occupy and relocate rights of way of public service companies.

Senator Einstein, Allegheny, appropriating $1,700 to the Woods Run Settlement Association, Pittsburgh.

Represetnative Spann, Allegheny, appropriating $130 to the Department of Military Affairs for payment of property damage caused by a motor truck issued to the Pennsylvania National Guard.

CROWDS GOING TO INAUGURAL

Hundreds of Western Pennsylvanians will be in Washington on Saturday to witness the inauguration of Franklin D. Roosevelt as President.

Reservations for special cars were being made today by numerous delegations, most of which are scheduled to leave Friday night and return Saturday night. They include Democratic groups, students and teachers, and representatives of many organizations.

A group of Allegheny County Democrats has arranged for three coaches; Duquesne University students will occupy two; Father James R. Cox announced plans to head a delegation of about 100; Islam Grotto arranged for one coach; Company C, Boys' Brigade, reserved a car, and high school teachers of Munhall obtained another. These groups planned to leave on a Pennsylvania Railroad train at 11:10 p. m. Friday night. Most of them will leave Washington at 11:10 p. m. Saturday night.

A New Castle High School delegation and Democrats of Greensburg and vicinity have also reserved coaches on Pennsylvania Railroad trains. Democrats of Clarion and Armstrong counties said they expected to make reservations later.

PASTORS DIVIDE ON ARMY LIFE FOR IDLE

The proposal before the United States Senate to admit young unemployed men to army camps for food, clothing and army discipline has brought about a division of opinion in a committee of three Methodist Episcopal ministers named by their ministerial association to prepare a resolution regarding the legislation.

The Rev. Arthur C. Schultz, of the Brushton Church, and the Rev. A. S. Boyd, of the North Avenue Church, have voted to approve a resolution opposing the camps, and have sent it to Washington.

FAVORS CAMPS

The Rev. H. A. Welday, of the Sewickley Church, third member of the committee, has declared in favor of the camps and has stated he will present a minority report to the Ministerial Association Monday. He said:

"The movement to give army training to the young men would be far more beneficial than detrimental."

The majority of the committee condemned a policy which they said would use hunger and homelessness to force young men into military life and suggested that the funds which would have been used be distributed through the regular relief agencies.

S. A. R. APPROVES

The action of the majority of the committee is in contrast to a resolution approving the camps adopted by the Pennsylvania Society of the Sons of the American Revolution as presented by Col. Franklin Blackstone.

The later resolution lauds the plan for caring for 88,000 unemployed young men by placing them under Army control. It is contended that such youths are at present receiving little attention from churches or church people and that in the camps they would have the benefits of religious training as well as mental discipline which they do not now have.

Army life would prevent the young unemployed men from becoming criminals and vagrants, the latter resolution declares.

'TRYST' SLAYER FACES LIFE

He was convicted yesterday of murder in the first degree for the slaying of Frances Rempfer, 15-year-old Newtown high school girl. The jury fixed life imprisonment as the penalty.

As soon as the verdict was returned, Judge Hiram H. Keller pronounced the sentence. Arnwine's attorney was given four days in which to file a motion for a new trial.

The crime for which Arnwine's life was in jeopardy was committed last November. The girl's body, with a bullet wound in the breast, was found beneath an old mattress in a woods near her home, 13 days after she disappeared.

Arnwine stated to police after his arrest that he shot the girl in a suicide pact and lacked the nerve to take his own life. He repudiated this statement on the witness stand, however, and declared the girl committed suicide.

BREAKS UP A COLD IN A JIFFY

Feel Like a New Person Almost Before You Know It

If you want quick relief from a cold, go back to first principles and use something you know does the business—don't start "trying" a lot of fancy ideas or remedies.

Get Hill's Cascara Quinine. A scientific formula made to do ONE THING WELL: to knock a cold in a jiffy, not to cure a hundred different things.

Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all. Soon those mean, aching pains in head and body begin to go; the cold breaks up, poisons leave your system and you feel like a new person.

If it doesn't do that, your money back. Get a box now. You'll be surprised at the speed with which it works. Costs only a few cents.

Wife of Judge Upsets Lecture On Who's Boss

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 28.—Defending the sanctity of a man's place of business, Judge Theodore Rosen told a man and his wife:

"If my wife came in here and tried to run things, I would feel justified in asking her to leave my place of ——"

Just then Mrs. Rosen entered the courtroom. Rising to the emergency, the Judge asked his wife to wait for him in an anteroom, where explanations followed.

A Washington Plate

MISS ANNE MARIE ARMSTRONG, INSPECTING THE PLATE EXHIBIT AT THE UNION TRUST

'FIRST LADIES' ON PLATES

A collection of 26 dinner plates bearing authentic portraits of the wives of all the Presidents up to recent years, is on display in the banking room of the Union Trust Company. The plates, owned by a Pittsburgh estate, are valued at $50,000.

A wealthy Pittsburgh woman years ago, seeing the famous Napoleon plates, decided to have produced a similar set perpetuating on china the portraits of America's "first ladies." In a search of 15 years she obtained photographs of all the presidential wives from the time of George Washington to that of Woodrow Wilson.

One of the pictures is that of Miss Harriett Lane. She was hostess at the White House during the presidential term of James Buchanan, who was unmarried.

Wagner, famous Vienna portrait painter, decorated the plates, using paintings and photographs sent him. It took him two years to paint the plates. His death during the World War prevented the completion of the set, which was to include the wives of recent presidents.

Death for Insane Persons Proposed In Delaware

DOVER, Del., Feb. 28.—(Universal.)—Several members of the Delaware Legislature are studying the advisability of legislation to provide for the execution of persons incurably insane.

A clinic of competent physicians to pass on such cases has been suggested. When the clinic agrees that patients mentally deranged are beyond aid and the consent of all known relatives has been given, the patient would be "put to sleep."

HURT, ALL NIGHT IN CREEK, DIES

BURGETTSTOWN, Pa., Feb. 28.—After lying with a broken back in a creek all night, Peter Mellenich, 47, a miner of Francis, died in the Washington Hospital last night. Joe Luther, a fellow miner, is held in the county jail at Washington.

Mellenich was found yesterday morning in a creek along the road between Burgettstown and Francis. He told police before he died that he and Luther were walking along the road Sunday night on their way home from the Francis mine of the Greensburg Coal Company. He said they quarreled and Luther shoved him over an abutment into the creek, according to police.

The injured man was found by George Morrison, who took him to the office of Dr. J. M. Boyd in Burgettstown. Luther was arrested and jailed in default of $1,000 bail.

BACKS BOWMAN IN ART SHOW 'COPY' ROW

Ralph Bowman has a feeling for line, design and balance superior to that of Sir James J. Shannon, Milan Petrovits and a Sun-Telegraph photographer, in the opinion of Ross Moffett, a member of the jury that awarded Bowman the second prize in the Associated Artists' show.

Moffett, noted Provincetown (R. I.), artist, set forth his views of the wrangle over Bowman's alleged copying. It was the row over three alleged copied paintings, one the second prizewinner and said to duplicate Sir James' 'Lady Diana Manners,' that nearly broke up this year's show.

Moffett was one of the trio that awarded the water color prize to an oil painting by Miss Elizabeth Shannon Phillips. Moffett says:

"Whether it is coincidence or not, the paintings by Mr. Bowman do have an obvious similarity in arrangement to those reproduced alongside of them. I am inclined to think, however, that this likeness does not extend beyond the obvious.

"There is about the Bowman pictures a feeling for line, design and balance that, to me, seems absent in the works he has been accused of copying.

"These qualities therefore appear to be original and it certainly was on the strength of them that the paintings were taken by the jury and, afterwards, awarded a prize.

"It may be not out of place to note in connection that the old masters often took compositions from other painters and tried to improve on them. The Adam and Eve in Michelangelo's 'Expulsion,' for instance, were taken from Massaccio.

"In Sergent's 'Frieze of Prophets,' the poses and arrangements of draperies had their origin in a series of medieval French sculptures, casts of which can be seen in the Metropolitan Museum. The feeling conveyed in each case is so different in spirit that one would not think of them as copies."

This is the first time since discovery of the alleged copies that any artist has publicly come to Bowman's defense. In his own behalf, Bowman has claimed "coincidence" as the cause of all the excitement.

Murrysville Man Killed by Train

GREENSBURG, Pa., Feb. 28.—Police after investigating the death of James Estet, 40, Murrysville, whose body was found along the tracks of the Turtle Creek branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad, near Blackburn Station, believe he was killed by a train.

Authorities first believed Estet had met with foul play.

AUTO NEW CLUE IN GIRL'S DEATH

SEATTLE, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Investigators today sought the identity of the person or persons in a motorcar reported at the beach on which Miss Mary Fitzgerald, Tacoma Junior Leaguer, was found dead.

Police said Ronald Kucher, who lives near the beach, told them a car was parked near one identified as Miss Fitzgerald's the night she is believed to have died.

An official Pierce County statement said the young woman's death was accidental. Evidence before officers was that the 27-year-old woman was found drowned, but with bruises and abrasions, possibly indicating preliminary violence.

Mrs. Claude V. Allen had threatened to divorce her husband and name Miss Fitzgerald as co-respondent. Claude Allen killed himself by gas after attending the funeral services of Miss Fitzgerald.

Chicago Juror Lands Job; Trial Delayed

CHICAGO, Feb. 28.—A job stopped the wheels of justice momentarily in the trial of two persons accused in a bombing case.

The hearing was stopped when Juror Edward Fletcher explained he had just received an offer of a job, after being out of work a year, and he thought he should take it. The attorneys and the court agreed.

Man, 72, in Jail Again for 'Legging

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Feb. 28.—Leo Wise, Blacksville's 72-year-old bootlegger, is back in the county jail. Paroled when he pleaded guilty, he was ordered to leave the community last October. A raid on his home near the Pennsylvania-West Virginia line, officers said, resulted in 11 gallons of liquor being found yesterday.

Hot Lunch Improves Conduct of Pupils

HIGH ROLLS, N. M., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Teachers here believe they have discovered a direct relation between a child's conduct and his lunch. Haphazard lunch, a naughty child; a hot lunch, a well-behaved pupil, they declare.

In pursuit of this theory teachers and mothers take turns preparing hot luncheons and serving 65 school children daily. One rancher donated a beef for soup. The result has been uniformly higher "deportment" grades.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

BANDITS LOCK UP VICTIMS IN STORE ROBBERIES

POLITICS

McClure Leadership Sways Bank Parley.

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Feb. 28.—Last night's tense conference in Gov. Pinchot's office between the Governor, members of his cabinet, Republican and Democratic party leaders and bankers representing all sections of the state was hardly the place to expect a political story.

Mr. Shields

There was no politics to the discussion, and every man played the game in that spirit.

Yet a political story developed.

It was the thrust farther into the position of Republican state leadership of Senator John J. McClure, of Delaware County, and was accentuated by contrast with the attitude of State Chairman Edward Martin as the proposal to protect any weak banks in the state was discussed.

Gov. Pinchot, who had been in personal and telephonic conference on the proposal all day, laid the situation and his recommendation for the resolution eventually passed before the gathering, and asked for expressions. The first on whom he called was General Martin, who is State Treasurer as well as titular head of the Republican party.

* * *

Martin Admits His Impotence in Dilemma

Gen. Martin, according to reliable report, confessed an utter inability to advise on the subject. He said the situation was perplexing, he realized its seriousness, he had talked with people with whom he usually advised, without satisfactory result, and that he simply didn't know what to do in the situation.

Not so McClure, when he was called upon.

The Delaware County Senator, speaking firmly and sharply, declared this was no time to enter into theorizing. A situation had arisen, he said, which must be positively dealt with, there was no necessity for further talk and hesitancy, and he moved the conference approve the proposed resolution, and that the legislators present do their best to impress upon their associates who had not attended the importance of its passage. Senator Frank J. Harris, of Allegheny County, seconded the motion, and the force of McClure pulled the conference together.

McClure Retains Dominant Role

And in the conferences which followed, Senator McClure was one of the leading "impressors," both in the Senate and in the House. He came to the latter body after the Senate had given approval, and remained about the floor until the resolution was finally passed and sent to the Governor.

Every political leader who participated in the conference was impressed by what transpired. That applies to organization men even more than to the Pinchot group. All drew the contrast between the position of Gen. Martin and that of Senator McClure, and some of those who commented have been close in the confidence of the state chairman.

So, a conference without political flavor, and where each man appeared only as a Pennsylvanian intent on doing what he believed best for the interests of the state, did develop a political story in that it added to the rapidly growing stature of McClure as the strongest individual leader of the Legislature, and a potential state chairman.

Patronage Problem Before Democrats

Democrats are confronted with a patronage hurdle. Having jobs to distribute has its tribulations as well as its joys.

An example occurs in Scranton and Wilkes-Barre.

In Scranton an effort is being made to land the position as U. S. District Attorney for the middle district for Frank J. McDonnell, who was a Smith delegate in the Democratic national convention. Congressman Patrick J. Boland wants the place for Jerome Casey. Bearing the Smith label, it would seem McDonnell has no chance.

But there is a rift between Boland and Democratic State Chairman Warren Van Dyke, growing out of the appointment of a U. S. marshall for the same district.

Boland is backing for this place Hugh Brady, of Scranton, a Smith delegate last summer.

* * *

Van Dyke Wants Post For Roosevelt Man

So strongly is sentiment running on this position that the whole picture may be upset.

One of the anthracite region newspapers last week editorially castigated Van Dyke as a mere rubber stamp for Guffey, and the report is that Boland was to an extent the inspiration for the attack.

There will be many situations of the nature which Mr. Guffey will have to meet. Some of the recalcitrant wish to take their troubles directly to James A. Farley, chief Santa Claus of the Roosevelt administration, but the word of Mr. Guffey, backed by that of M. L. Benedum, also of Pittsburgh, will be the one to convince Mr. Farley and Mr. Roosevelt.

COUNTY HEADS SET PAY CUT SHOWDOWN

Commissioners Slate Salary Board Meet Tomorrow

A showdown on the question of whether County Commissioners through Salary Board action can limit the salaries and personnel of the employes in the offices of other county officials is expected tomorrow. The Commissioners have sent a letter to Controller Robert G. Woodside, notifying him that the Salary Board will meet Wednesday noon.

The Coroner, the Recorder of Deeds and the Clerk of Courts are to be summoned for the meeting tomorrow, at which time the Commissioners will attempt to put into effect their salary equalization program. The Salary Board is made up of the three Commissioners, the Controller and the head of the office under consideration. Officers directly under the Commissioners also will be considered Wednesday.

OTHERS TO BE CALLED

Thursday the Commissioners will call the Sheriff, the Prothonotary, the Treasurer, the Register of Wills, the District Attorney and also the Controller.

Several weeks ago the County Law Department gave the Commissioners an opinion in which it stated the Commissioners have the right to call a meeting of the Salary Board at any time. Other elective officials have taken the stand that the Commissioners have no right to call the Salary Board meetings and that this must be done by the elective official who is seeking action for his office.

The other elective officials have agreed that a 10 per cent cut for every county employe, including the elective officials, excepting those making less than $125 a month, would be a fair economy move. However, the Commissioners probably will go much farther in some cases where unequal salaries are paid to persons doing the same work.

It is expected that the Commissioners will meet considerable opposition in some instances where the head of the office is anxious to keep his employes from suffering too drastic a cut.

ROW OVER PAY ISSUE

Some resentment is shown among elective officials over the action Saturday of Commissioners C. M. Barr and C. C. McGovern in refusing to cut the salaries of their six directors and their five members of the Board for the Assessment and Revision of Taxes. Commissioner W. D. Mansfield said that inasmuch as salary cuts must be taken by everyone else he did not think it fair to pass over the directors and members of the tax board.

The county yesterday negotiated a loan of $4,500,000 from the Union Trust Company to meet its current obligations pending the collection of taxes. One million dollars will be made available immediately and the remainder in monthly installments. The county will not begin to receive any tax money for several months.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Feb. 28.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

There wasn't a soul in America who, when they picked up their papers yesterday, didn't utter the same expression, "Well, that's too bad," when they read that Mayor Cermak had pneumonia.

Will Rogers

Lot of states and places are calling a moratorium on debts taxes, banks, takes us so long to think of anything for ourselves. Funny we thought of it for Europe, but not for ourselves. Why pour all that reconstruction money into a bank when all you had to say was, "We are going to pay you out as we are able to pay you out."

Yours, WILL.

THE BURNING RUINS OF TURTLE CREEK'S PENN AVENUE PUBLIC SCHOOL.....300 ADULT NIGHT STUDENTS SAFELY EVACUATED AS THE FRE STARTED

FROM THE LIFE OF ANDREW CARNEGIE
By BURTON J. HENDRICK

The middle eighteen nineties represent perhaps the most distressing years in our annals. The panic that threw the whole national fabric into ruins in 1893 caused more widespread misery than that of 1873. It affected all phases of American life, industrial and political, and even put in jeopardy the Federal Treasury itself. Hundreds of national banks failed, commercial houses and manufacturing plants lived over again the experiences of the seventies, and blighted crops left the farmers a heritage of foreclosed mortgages.

How Carnegie laid the basis of his success in the depression extending from 1873 to 1878 has already been told. He selected this very time, when industry was paralyzed and prices were lowest, to erect his great steel works, and invested his savings in the latest technical equipment—all in preparation for the renewal of that prosperity in which his confidence was absolute. He repeated this particular episode of his industrial history in the four dreadful years, 1893-1897. In the later period as in the earlier one he enforced his favorite policy, against the protests of friends and partners.

The hard times fell heavily upon the Carnegie "Associates," and even upon Carnegie himself. His correspondence gives a fleeting glimpse of America's leading steel maker pressed for ready cash and making personal bank loans. In asking a New York trust company for money and offering Frick coke stock as collateral, Carnegie adds: "You will have something unique—my notes. It is many years since I have had a personal obligation."

* * *

A new figure, and an important one, now steps upon the stage. Among the "bottom hoosiers" with whom the Carnegie boys used to play in the Rebecca street days was "Harry" Oliver, of Scottish origin like themselves—the same "Harry" for whom Carnegie provided a job as fellow messenger in the Pittsburgh telegraph office. Like most of that aspiring group, Oliver had a successful career, ultimately becoming a prosperous manufacturer of steel. This

A Pittsburgh Gift

A request from Gladstone for a subscription to a favorite endowment Carnegie was compelled to refuse; he simply did not have the money. The same answer was made to W. W. Sage, appealing in behalf of Cornell University. "I have to spend $5,000,000," Carnegie wrote, February 3, 1896, "on the Pittsburgh Institute. I have yet $2,000,000 of that to mak . . . I am happy in being a poor rich man, largely in debt, as you see . . . Some d- I hope to be of a little use, but at present I am in the condition of Mr. Vanderbilt, who once said to me, 'I am invested up to two years ahead'."

Traffic Committee Supports Safety Bill

The Better Traffic Committee yesterday indorsed the Buckman automobile financial responsibility bill, and directed letters to Allegheny County legislators asking their support of the measure, which is now in committee in the State Senate.

The bill would require proof of financial responsibility of auto operators. The committee asks support of the bill as an accident prevention measure.

JOHN A. BELL LAID TO REST

Funeral services for John A. Bell, former multimillionaire Carnegie coal operator and banker, were held this afternoon at the A. Blaine Day funeral home in Washington, Pa. Burial was in Chartiers Cemetery, at Carnegie.

The Rev. Dr. James M. McQuilken, pastor of the Carnegie United Presbyterian Church, of which Mr. Bell was a member, conducted the service.

Legislators Side-Step. Mrs. Miller Charges

The majority of Allegheny County's legislators are treating the requests of the League of Women Voters "like something from Mars," Mrs. J. O. Miller, chairman of the government committee of the league, charged today.

Scoring the representatives at Harrisburg for their failure to frankly answer requests for support of the city manager plan, election law reforms and abolishment of the county's delinquent tax collector's office, Mrs. Miller made herself clear with:

"The kind of letters the women want in reply to their letters is a pledge to either support or oppose these measures. They have had all the time they need to study them and they know what they intend to do. Let them tell us and quit trying to dodge the issue."

BIND MANAGER IN DOWNTOWN SHOE SHOP

Trio in Wilkinsburg Holdup Shuts Two Women in Room

Three bandits who locked two young women into the rear room of a Wilkinsburg shoe store after forcing the manager into the cellar, then sped to the downtown and held up another shop last night, were sought by police throughout the city and county today.

Entering the shoe store of the G. R. Kinney Company, Inc., 725 Penn avenue, Wilkinsburg, the trio ordered G. L. Aumiller, the manager, of 442 Rebecca street, Wilkinsburg, into the cellar. Miss Lydia Lackman, 17, of 514 North St. Clair street, the clerk, and Mrs. Frank Thornburg, of 1133 Rebecca street, a customer, were forced into the rear room.

As one of the gunmen led them to the back room Mrs. Thornburg's 2-year-old son, Billy, looked on smilingly. Mrs. Thornburg pleaded for the son's safety and the bandit assured her that no harm would befall the child.

After rifling the cash register of $35 they fled. Aumiller found his way into an adjoining cellar and from there to the street to spread the alarm.

Mrs. Thornburg said:

"I was afraid they would harm Billy. He was standing in the front part of the store when the men entered. I threw up my hands when I saw the gun, but the man told me to keep my hands down. They first ordered us to lie on the floor, but when they discovered the rear room they forced us into there."

An hour later three armed men whose descriptions tallied with those in the Wilkinsburg holdup, entered the Thom McAn shoe store at 814 Liberty avenue, forced Stanley Zebo, 23, of 1125 Troy Hill road, the manager, into the rear room and tied his feet with twine. The thugs rifled the cash register of $22 and escaped.

Zebo later hobbled from the back room to the street and ordered Stephen DePhillip, 14, a newsboy, of 1212 Bedford avenue, to summon help.

LENTEN RULES EXEMPT IDLE

The poor and distressed of the Pittsburgh diocese, those unemployed or getting relief are excepted from the regulations for fasting and abstinence during lent, it was explained today by the Rev. A. J. Pauley, secretary to Bishop Hugh C. Boyle.

Father Pauley said:

"It is a basic law of the church that the poor and distressed are not included in the fasting and abstinence laws."

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Feb. 28.—Those reduced to poverty by unemployment need not observe lent here this year by abstinence and fasting, Bishop Joseph Schrembs, of Cleveland diocese announced.

Estate Entailed, As Democrats Will Discover

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—As heirs to the national hoorah let's see what the hopeful Democrats inherit next Saturday.

An investigation of Wall street that is delightful in its rural simplicity. While Congress is in session it helps to while away the idle hours.

And a banking system founded on optimistic subtraction. Two from four leaves six. And the cashier leaves the country.

LIGHT AND HEAT BIDS INDICATE '34 OPENING

The new $8,000,000 federal and postoffice building under construction at Seventh avenue and Grant street will be ready for occupancy about March 1, 1934.

This was made known by Maj. Robert Greenfield, construction engineer, of the office of the supervising architect, Treasury Department, who is in charge of the work here, in a notice he issued inviting bids on electricity and steam heating for the new building.

The bids will be for the portion of the fiscal year 1934 during which the building will be occupied. Maj. Greenfield said sealed proposals will be received up to 11 a. m. March 13, and the envelopes must be marked indicating that the contents are proposals, and addressed "Supervising Architect, in care of construction engineer, 724 Pennsylvania Railroad Station."

With reference to electric current, the rate should be quoted on what is known as rate "W." Plans and specifications for heating system and electric installation may be consulted at his office in the Pennsylvania Station.

STOCK SWINDLE CHARGE DENIED

BOSTON, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—John W. Brewer, 67 and blind, who was being held held in $50,000 bail today after his arrest Sunday for the alleged swindling of $100,000 from wealthy Cleveland women said that he was innocent and that he would be glad to return to Cleveland to face trial.

He said he left Cleveland three years ago and it was true some of his clients had lost money through stock market dealings he had with them. But, he added:

"I, too, suffered losses personally in the same deal."

He said that he had not tried to conceal his identity since he left Cleveland and that he was shocked when he was arrested. He admitted he conducted "literary salons" in Cleveland at which society and wealthy women, as well as men, were present, but he denied emphatically he "sought them out."

Brewer said he would fight the case "to the last ditch."

Killed His Landlord In 1920, Man Says

DETROIT, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Abraham Coury, 46, successful business man, today had surrendered to police, who said Coury admitted shooting his landlord 13 years ago in an argument over rent payments.

Coury is charged with slaying John Lazraovich on July 14, 1920. He told police that Lazraovich attacked him with an iron bar following an argument, and that he shot him in self defense. He told police that he made no attempt to flee, but "just moved from place to place and the police never caught up with me."

Man Who Gave Blood Faints in Breadline

SEATTLE, Feb. 28.—Fred Coleman, an unemployed Aberdeen logger, was found in a breadline, fainting from weakness and hunger. He was taken to a hospital, where attendants recognized him as the man who three days previously had given his blood for a transfusion to save a patient's life.

Man Nearly 8 Feet Seeking Tall Bride

CUSHING, Okla., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—George B. Kennedy, Cushing bookkeeper, is 7 feet 10 inches tall and unmarried. He says the girl he weds must be able to kiss him without using stilts. "Eating spaghetti and stringbeans" is his reply to how he got that way.

Russian-Born Co-Ed Psychologist Takes Honor as Best Pitt Student

MISS FRANCES WEISSMANN, 21, USING A MACHINE IN THE STUDY OF CHILD PSYCHOLOGY

Pretty Brunette 'Not a Grind,' She Says

Pretty Frances Weissmann, who came here from Russia at the age of 11, was announced today as the mid-semester high honor student at the University of Pittsburgh. She obtained her degree from the College of Liberal Arts.

Working in the psychology laboratory where she is now experimenting in child psychology, Miss Weissmann explained that she is as enthusiastic a sport fan as she is a student. She said:

"I enjoy school work, but I hate to be considered a 'grind.' One has to learn to relax between periods of intensive study. I can get a lot of good fun out of riding, golf and tennis, but, like most girls, I guess, I enjoy dancing most."

The attractive brunette, who is now employed as graduate assistant in the psychology department at Pitt, was born in Antopol, Russia. Her home at the present is in Johnstown, Pa., where she attended the Pitt Junior College for two years before coming to the university.

Two Ohio Mines About to Resume

SOVIET OUSTS 7 RACKETEERS

LENINGRAD, U. S. S. R., Feb. 28. — (AP.) — Seven Communist party members, former owners of private bakeries, have been expelled from the party and deprived of the right of re-entry following an investigation by the regional Communist party control commission of charges of racketeering. The investigation showed that the members were involved in theft and embezzlement of funds.

Nineteen others charged with attempting to wreck the party by non-payment of dues also were expelled, and eight others were reprimanded for inefficiency.

Cemetery Wreaths Artist's Inspiration

LONDON, Feb. 28.—Jean Varda, French artist, uses everything but the kitchen-stove in creating his "pictures." They are made of painted cement, wire, glass, bootlace eyelets, slabs of stone, and beads from old cemetery wreaths. Nails, pieces of lace and artificial bowers are also among his ingredients which are fixed to wood foundations.

Varda is said by some critics to be an instinctive artist with a good taste in color.

$7.30 Stolen as Police Dance Into $31,000

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 28.—Burglars and robbers were nice about the annual policemen's ball. While the police danced and took in $31,000 for their widows' and orphans' fund, thefts in the city totaled only $7.30.

VOTE QUIZ FIGHT BY MULDOWNEY AWAITED

Counsel for Mrs. Anne Felix, defeated Democratic candidate for Congress from the Thirty-second District, today awaited an expected move by Congressman-elect Michael J. Muldowney to restrain the subpenaing of ballot boxes in the Felix-Muldowney election contest which opened yesterday.

B. Robert Averbach, Muldowney's attorney, announced yesterday he would confer with Common Pleas and Federal judges regrading jurisdiction in a contest at which a notary public sits as judge. Ralph Frank, representing Maj. W. T. Reese, chief custodian of the Election Bureau, conferred with Judge James R. Macfarlane late yesterday concerning the hearing.

Most colorful testimony was offered by Albert Diulius, judge of the election board of the Tenth district, whose ballot box was found empty when opened by attaches of the County Bureau of Elections February 2.

To a query by Attorney G. Malcolm McDonald, representing Mrs. Felix, as to whether the ballots were in the box when it was delivered to Alderman Louis C. Wicks' office, Diulius said:

"And how."

WINS DIVORCE IN FEW HOURS

Clyde J. Moore, transfer company head and farmer, tooted the horn of his car all night in front of her home in Morrison drive, Mt. Lebanon, after he and the chauffeur were out on a spree, Mrs. Anna C. Moore testified today before Judge Thomas M. Marshall. A few hours after testifying Mrs. Moore had her divorce decree.

Not only did he drink to excess, but he used profane language and humiliated her before their servants both in the Mt. Lebanon home and on his farm near Portersville, Butler County, she testified. She declared that she would not have endured his treatment so long, except for their two children. Mrs. Moore was represented by Attorney D. K. Ferree.

The pair have been separated for some time, she added. They were married June 28, 1917.

MRS. ANNA C. MOORE . . . 'HE TOOTED THE CAR'S HORN . . .'

Mrs. Moore, pictured in the office of her attorney, D. K. Ferree, after she had been granted her divorce from Clyde J. Moore, transfer company head and farmer. She told of how he and their chauffeur went on a spree and of how he sat in front of their Mt. Lebanon home, tooted his horn all night. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

WAGNER WORK RELIEF PLAN BACKED HERE

A conference including civic and religious organizations of the city and county has agreed to broaden its efforts to get work relief for needy persons rather than a dole.

A meeting yesterday afternoon in the Smithfield Street Congregational Church was attended by representatives of the Work Relief Committee of the Community Councils and the Pittsburgh Council of Churches Committee on the Social Crisis.

The Rev. Henry E. Nicklen of the Beechview Presbyterian Church declared the Wagner bill, now before the Senate, which would remove from Reconstruction Finance Corporation loans the restriction of being self-liquidating, gives promise of providing adequate funds for work.

E. R. Kinney, representing the Unemployed Citizens League, declared any program of work should not be considered charity. The Rev. B. F. Crawford presided.

South Side Boy Hurt By Auto, Driver Held

George Stipanovich, 19, of 2915 Carey way, suffered a probable fracture of the skull when he was struck by an automobile at Carson and South Twenty-ninth streets last night. He was taken to South Side Hospital. Henry Werksman, 49, of 6328 Stanton avenue, driver of the machine, was arrested and later released on $1,000 bond, according to police.

ILLUSION:
The Oriental girl reclines on a sheet of plate glass supported by two slaves. The magician waves a white sheet in front of the pretty maiden . . . pronounces a few magic words . . . Presto! She has disappeared in thin air.

EXPLANATION:
"Disappearing" acts are among the most popular in the repertory of the magician. Dogs, horses, girls, whole rooms disappear—whisked into wings, dropped through trapdoors, hidden by mirrors. But this "disappearance" is a bit different. One of the "slaves" is a hollow dummy. When the magician holds up the sheet the lithe little lady disappears completely—into the convenient figure of the dummy.

IT'S FUN TO BE FOOLED . . . IT'S MORE FUN TO KNOW

There is also a trick of cigarette advertising, whereby a few magic words are used to create the illusion of "Coolness."

EXPLANATION: Coolness is determined by the speed of burning. Fresh cigarettes, retaining their full moisture, burn more slowly . . . smoke cooler. Parched, dry cigarettes burn fast. They taste hot. This makes the method of wrapping very important. Improperly wrapped cigarettes begin to dry out as soon as packed.

Camels are cooler because they come in the famous Humidor Pack of welded, three-ply, MOISTURE-PROOF cellophane . . . and because they contain better tobaccos.

Copyright, 1933, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company

It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

ENEW TAX ROW IN MT. LEBANON

The tilt between C. W. Scheck, minority commissioner of Mt. Lebanon Township, and L. C. Clark, chairman of the board, continued today with a statement by Scheck that he is prepared to prove to Clark publicly or privately that taxes in Mt. Lebanon should have been cut to 7 instead of 8 mills.

Clark, who yesterday in a printed statement called for Scheck's resignation because the latter's connection with the Traction Conference Board is embarrassing to the township in its fight against the public utilities, was told today to lay aside personalities. Scheck also said:

"If I had committed any crime against the laws of this commonwealth or had been convicted in the Criminal Court of Allegheny County, I would tender my resignation without demand."

Tear Gas, Gun Attack End Mad Dog's Life

GREENSBURG, Pa., Feb. 28.—A patrolman, hurrying to carry out orders of a community here frightened by a supposedly mad dog, fired a tear gas cartridge into a dog hospital, causing bystanders and attendants to flee tearfully.

The animal was finally killed by a bullet.

Hit by Truck, Boy Goes to Hospital

Anthony Mancini, 8, of 711 Edna street, was in Mercy Hospital today with injuries suffered when struck by a truck at Fifth avenue and Van Braam street last night. The truck was driven by Daniel Meyer, 37, of 530 Madison avenue, police said.

FIREMEN FIND SMOKE, NO FIRE

No. 11 Fire Engine Company doesn't believe in that old adage, "Where there's smoke there's fire," it developed today when the firemen were summoned to the Neisner Brothers store, 1313 East Carson street.

A fire in the store was extinguished last Saturday night after causing damage estimated at $6,000, according to the management, but the smoke failed to clear and today filled the building.

"I don't think there was a fire. It was just smoke from Saturday night or a short circuit."

Blanshard Here, Sees 'Dictatorship'

The next step in the evolution of American capitalism is a semi-dictatorship Paul Blanshard, former editor of "The Nation," predicted last night at the Irene Kaufmann Settlement Theater before a meeting of the League for Social Justice. He added in a facetious vein that it will probably be called "something else, probably the principles of Abraham Lincoln."

CORNED BEEF and CABBAGE is doubly good with GULDEN'S Mustard

"Beech-Nut has a rich, fresh taste I have not found in other coffees"

Mrs. William B. Schiller

Mrs. William B. Schiller

From her office in the Union Trust Building, she directs her numerous personal and charitable affairs; while at both her town house and lovely Sewickley estate, she entertains beautifully. Mrs. Schiller is head of Pittsburgh's Public Health Nursing Organization and former chairman of the Women's Republican Party of Allegheny County.

One friend tells another. The good word passes from lip to lip. All Pittsburgh seems to be swinging its brand preference to Beech-Nut Coffee. Here's busy Mrs. William B. Schiller taking the time to tell you, "I have taken it upon myself to tell my friends about Beech-Nut Coffee . . . and they are all very grateful."

And so are we, Mrs. Schiller, thank you. It is the generous recommendation of a hostess like you that is making Beech-Nut the most popular of coffees.

"Coffee was always a problem in my house," continues Mrs. Schiller, "until some thoughtful friend told me about Beech-Nut. My family, who are very particular about coffee, adored it from the first, and my guests praise it and almost always ask for a second cup."

And so it goes in every home. The reason? Let Mrs. Schiller tell you in her own words, "Beech-Nut has a really exquisite flavor—a rich, fresh, roasted taste that I have not found in the other coffees I have tried!"

Coffee ALWAYS at its best

Only those who use Beech-Nut Coffee regularly can appreciate the great difference between this rare flavor from tropic heights and just coffee.

So we thank you, Mrs. Schiller, for helping us acquaint the housewives of Pittsburgh with the superior quality of Beech-Nut Coffee.

Yet in spite of the extra trouble and expense it takes to get such coffee, Beech-Nut brings this delicious mountain coffee to you for but little more than you pay for ordinary coffees—it is a luxury in flavor, but no luxury in price.

And remember, the full fresh flavor of Beech-Nut Coffee is sealed in high vacuum tins a few minutes after it leaves the roasting oven. Its flavor and its freshness are always certain—it is coffee always at its best.

"Get-Acquainted" Offer: Certificates worth 10c toward the purchase price of a pound of Beech-Nut Coffee are now being distributed to every home in Pittsburgh. Redeem your Certificate at your grocer's. Learn why Pittsburgh's most prominent women are using Beech-Nut Coffee exclusively.

News of Activities in Busy Lives of Pittsburgh's Club Women

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

Even though there were no encores to be had, the audience at "Both Our Houses" last night at the Nixon applauded and applauded in Pittsburgh's most enthusiastic Syria Mosque manner.

In a group talking over the play during an intermission were the Frank R. Dentons, the Alan Magee Scaifes and Mrs. George A. Kelly III.

Joining them was Genevieve Bell, who wore one of the most stunning gowns I've seen in ages. It was of black satin, moulded to the figure. And it had a scarf, draped in cape fashion, of black satin with wide bands of scarlet and of white satin.

Mrs. Earl Reed was in pale gold crepe with brown velvet outlining the decolletage and the armholes; Mrs. George Pearson was there, Mrs. F. G. Blackburn, Mrs. Samuel Harden Church in robin's egg blue crepe.

In Gold Crepe

Mink coats added a note of luxury last night. Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby wore a mink coat over her burgundy red satin gown; Miss Anne Shiras wore a mink coat over her gold crepe frock.

Mrs. Jack Bissell wore an attractive jade green crepe frock having wide slashed shoulders to suggest draped sleeves and a sash of dark green velvet.

Mrs. Blair Childs, Mrs. James Verner Scaife, Mrs. Frederick Gwinner III, Mrs. Harry L. Mitchell and Caroline Mitchell, Mrs. A. S. F. Keister, I had glimpses of upon arriving.

Judge Rules Man Can 'Desert' Nagging Wife

CHICAGO, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—A Judge ruled in denying separate maintenance to Mrs. Cecelia A. Milke that a man has a right to leave home if continually nagged. Benjamin Milke, her husband, said:

"If I lolled in the bathtub she nagged me. She nagged me if I spent an evening at the church bazar. I tried living in a woodshed and she called that desertion."

The Judge observed:

Beatrice Thomas Becomes Bride Of D. Shields

At a pretty ceremony Friday evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Thomas, of Brackenridge, their daughter, Miss Beatrice Thomas, became the bride of Donald Shields, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. I. Shields, of Brackenridge.

The ceremony took place before an embankment of ferns, with the Rev. E. C. Lewis, pastor of the First Christian Church of Tarentum, officiating. Thomas Humphreys sang, accompanied by a sister of the bride, Mrs. Paul A. Critchlow, of Bakerstown.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore white crepe Roma made with a fitted bodice and puffed sleeves. She carried white roses showered with lilies of the valley. Her sister, Miss Ida Thomas, as maid of honor, wore canary yellow lace trimmed in Nile green, and carried tea roses. Lester Shields was his brother's best man, and Glenn Rowe ushered. There were 64 guests at the reception and dinner after the ceremony.

English Author Century Club Speaker

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG.

Her family home, Knole in Kent, given to her ancestors by Queen Elizabeth, was described by V. Sackville West, English author, when she spoke before the Twentieth Century Club yesterday morning. The house, begun in 1100, was finished in 1603, covers five acres, has 365 rooms (one for each day of the year), 52 staircases (one for each week) and seven courtyards (one for each day of the week). And this she called "just a home for an English family."

Miss Sackville-West in describing "Changes in English Social Life" spoke of the contrasting luxury and squalor of the Seventeenth Century, when there was but one "jug and basin" for washing and there were no sheets in houses where the people wore brocades and velvets and jewels and employed 120 servants.

She spoke amusingly of the woebegone appearance some of the be-curled gentlemen must have made in their "off moments," as for instance, when they came in from the rain with their long hair in straight strings.

The snobbishness of the English servants in her own childhood was recalled by the distinguished Englishwoman as she told of many other things in the old patriarchal system under which she said there was much more individualism but more hypocrisy, when people were "terribly class conscious" and lived by the eleventh commandment which was "Thou shalt not be found out."

In England today one finds fewer servants, closed rooms in many houses, gardens not so well kept and many persons, heretofore accustomed to ease, going into business. The speaker commented on the enormous income taxes (some as high as 75 per cent) and the colossal inheritance tax, which English people are required to pay.

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Is It Wise for a Woman To Forgive and Forget?

New days—new ways—they bring strange tangles into this department.

Here's one today that is strictly of the 20th century—

Sarah Marie, with a heart as staunch and a love as bonny as her old-fashioned name. A modern girl, she wanted to be a modern wife——a "real partner" to her man, carrying the burden 50-50.

So she was and did. And what happened? Listen!

Dear Miss Robinson:

I loved the man I married five years ago. I thought I was a modern woman and broad-minded in all the ways that description implies. I wanted to be unselfish, so if I couldn't accept an invitation I would insist that my husband go without me, even if that meant taking some other woman home, or to another party. I didn't want to be thought jealous, although I really was. I tried so hard to make our marriage a success, and to keep my husband's love and respect.

And, too, I guess I made the same mistake that so many other women who love deeply have made. I shouldered all the financial burden, so that he could have an opportunity to work out some ideas that he hoped to be able to safeguard our future with.

During the past year my position made it necessary for me to be out of town often, and the trip home each night was so expensive that I tried to be sensible and economical, and didn't come home at night, although I longed to.

SHOCKED BY LETTER

He and I had an agreement that we would be honest and truthful with each other. I had an uneasy feeling sometimes that things were not going quite right, and asked him several times if he was satisfied with things as they were, and he always answered that he was content if I was, but he felt so useless with me doing so much and he so little. But I hoped that I understood, and I was looking for better times ahead.

Then I decided that things would be better if I had a child. So I had one. He was not enthusiastic when I told him, but I never showed him how unhappy or miserable I was at coming home week-ends and being told how I looked, and so forth. I am 35 and look it. Now baby is here and he, as well as I, seemed proud and pleased. But I am still carrying things on as before. It has been necessary lately for me to help my father and my mother-in-law, which I have done willingly, making my check stretch three ways. That didn't leave much for me, but I always looked forward to my husband and myself having our chance in the future.

Well, when I came home, happily anticipating my baby's first Christmas, I found a large number of gifts, cards and letters at the door. I picked up a letter and before I noticed it wasn't addressed to me I opened it. The world stopped at that moment. It was to him, from a young woman who was in love (?) with him, saying that she knew that she held his love, even though he was a father. She said she was coming to the city soon and would expect to see a lot of him—if she could get away from her husband!

BEGGED FORGIVENESS

When I showed him the letter he took me in his arms and said it had been just an incident—a silly infatuation—and was all over. He begged me to forgive him and not judge him too hard. He has said he is ashamed, and has begged me to forgive and forget.

What shall I do? Strangely enough, I still love him. But have I, in my blind devotion, stunted him by taking the financial knocks for him? Shall I forgive and forget? Or shall I leave him to sink or swim, and maybe get up on his feet and find his responsibility and his manhood? I was so proud of him, and had such grand visions of the future! And now—I feel such a fool. Am I to blame because I was "too modern?"

SARAH MARIE.

There's the situation. What is your answer?

Has Sarah Marie wrecked her man by doing too much for him? Or would the man have been a traitor regardless?

And what shall she do now? Will it "make a man of him" if she leaves him? Or should she forgive him? And will he stay on the square if she does?

Envy Not Those Who Lead at Start of Life's Race---Fay King

By FAY KING

It is not the start but the finish that counts in life. Like the race we watch, the one who leads in the beginning does not always end the winner.

Young persons in obscure places in life often envy others who seem to reap all the fame and fortune in youth. Yet in years to come the unknowns may read that their idols of another day do not end with even the comforts they themselves enjoy.

Many a girl has envied her beautiful friend the popularity and opportunity for happiness her beauty brings. Yet of the two, the plainer girl has made the better marriage, and had the happier life.

The tables often turn with time, and envy may be on the other side.

Heart of a Wife

-:- -:- Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Members of Rescue Party Are Puzzled

For a long, tense second after Dicky's announcement, there was no sound save that of strained, rapid breathing in the room. Then Ronald sprang to his feet and rushed across the space separating him from Dicky.

"Go on!" he demanded, his young face working convulsively. "How did you know? Did you see them at the window?"

Dicky's eyes were filled with pity as he looked at the frantic boy.

"I'm sorry, son," he said, "but there are limits to a flier's vision, you know. I saw only something white, like a towel or pillow case, flapping outside a window that looked directly upon a group of large trees above a lake.

"The setting was exactly like that described by Marion in her code note to her mother, but of course I could not be sure that the girls really were giving a signal. The white flapping thing may have been something washed and hung out of the window to dry. However, there was a line in the yard with things hanging from it, although I could not tell what they were."

"Could you tell from that height whether the flapping thing you saw at the window was white, like a towel or pillow case, or light-colored, like a bit of silk lingerie?" I asked.

HARRY REBUKED

Dicky looked at me sharply.

"You've thought of something," he said. "Better spill it. No, I couldn't tell. It might have been any light color. But what's on your mind?"

"Nothing of importance, I am afraid," I said. "It just occurred to me that the girls are so resourceful they may have washed their lingerie, and waited to hang the wet things out of the window until they heard the airplane the first time. They had no change of clothing with them, and I cannot imagine either of them accepting any service from even the women of the band that was not forced upon them."

"Right you are, Lady Fair," Harry Underwood said, and again I saw that quick look in Hugh's eyes, flashing first to Harry's face, then to mine. I saw something else, too—that Dicky had seen that questioning look—and I waited tensely for his reaction to it.

"Look hyah, Mitah Underwood," Dicky drawled, "ain't it about time you got over that hopeless passion for my wife that you've been cherishing all these years? That 'Lady Fair' business was all right when you were writing sonnets to her eyebrows, but it's a bit archaic now, lad. Besides, also furthermore, you're likely to startle the innocent bystanders."

AIMED AT HUGH

For a moment I had wondered, as I knew had Harry, whether Dicky had seen more than we guessed in those far-off days. Then I had seen that my husband's only jealousy was that which he held for Hugh Grantland, and that the sole reason for his speech was the surprised and resentful look which Hugh had given Harry.

After that first quick glance I did not dare to look at any one of the group in the upper room, but I guessed that Hugh never had made a mightier effort to control his temper than when he listened to Dicky's last gibe, which he knew, of course, was aimed at him.

"If those kidnapers have the intelligence with which we have credited them," my father said quietly, "the girls will have been provided with sufficient changes of clothing so that there would be no need of their doing any washing."

Mary waited only to be sure that my father had finished before protesting.

"Neither Marion nor Carolyn would wear anything those people provided, if they could help themselves," she said vehemently. And I blessed both her and my father for the digression they had afforded—a purposeful one on my father's part, I was sure.

"But this is not the main question we have to decide," my father said quickly. "I think we may safely conclude that the girls are in that mountain house so graphically described by Marion, and that they did give the signal. Hugh assures us that everything is ready for the attempt to rescue the girls. Shall we go on with our plans, in the face of this new information concerning the Chinese, or shall we deliver the lock box to them and trust them to release the girls?"

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Invitation

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

My brother went West last summer with a gentleman and he didn't know this man was taking a lady with them, until he was ready to leave with them, and then he found that they intended to be married. My brother is sixty-three years of age, and she told us that her parents only consented to her going because he was going too . . . they felt certain that he would make a good chaperone. They arrived in Reno about nine in the morning, the divorce was granted at ten-thirty and at eleven o'clock they were married. Since their return home they have invited my brother to dinner, but have never asked me.

My brother thinks I should write them and invite them to our home for dinner first, but I don't think this is correct.

Will you be kind enough to let me know what you think?

R.

What a super-modern procedure this was! Your brother must have a very deep feeling of friendship for this friend of his, and he must, too, have a very human understanding. But even so, I find it difficult to understand why this friend of his was not straightforward enough to be quite honest with your brother and tell him that he had been nominated as chaperon . . . and to give him the chance to accept or to withdraw from the nomination. But your brother was elected without even being nominated.

However, if he is willing to be so broad-minded and friendly about it all, you and I should be. So, if your brother is the host of your home, and if he wishes you to make this gesture to this couple, you, as his hostess, should do it, unless you have some definite wish not to do it. In other words, it is thoroughly correct for you to do it, thoroughly co-operative with your brother's wishes, and thoroughly gracious to this couple.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

One way to improve an oily complexion, inclined to speckle itself over with blackheads, is to be faithful to the daily bath, using a firm flesh brush. Friction and lather stimulate the functions of the skin which is an eliminating organ, puts less work on the glands of the face which are specially sensitive, likely to be too ambitious.

Plumptitudinous ladies whose upper arms are inclined to be hammy can slither them down by swinging Indian clubs. A good method for reducing a large bust and working off a roll of fat that has accumulated in the region of the lower ribs.

Outline lip edges by applying paste rouge with an orangewood stick. Then fill in. Don't neglect to color the inner side of the lip surface. Begin at the center, work out toward the lip ends, placing a lighter coating there. And don't pucker. Lips that have creases should be smiled out wide and flat, so that the surface is smooth.

If you are the scintillating Spanish type with olive complexion, black hair, dark raven eyes, place dark green eye shadows on your alluring eyelids. Very effective. Much allure.

Contract Bridge

-:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Changing Your Plan

The proper play of a hand at Bridge requires the making of a plan as soon as the Opening lead is made and the Dummy is spread on the table. Developments in the play may make a change advisable, but success cannot be attained in play unless the Declarer first makes a plan and then makes such changes in it as conditions may dictate. The proposition of what suit or suits to play for and the very vital matter of entries and re-entries, so that a player may go down from one hand to the other, as conditions require, are, of course, vital features of any sound plan of play.

An example of a quick change in the development of a hand, which brought about the success of a Slam contract otherwise doomed to defeat occurred in a recent game at Crockford's Club, New York, the Declarer being Mr. George S. Kauman, the well-known playwright.

North, Dealer.

Mr. George S. Kaufman

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
		1 ♠ (1)	Pass
2 ◇	Pass	3 ◇ (2)	Pass
5 ◇ (3)	Pass	6 ◇	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—While North has 4 honor-tricks, his hand lacks intermediates and suggests caution in the bidding.

2—Offering a choice of contracts.

3—Mr. Kaufman believes that game is certain with his partner's Raise and that there is a possibility for Slam.

The Opening lead was a trump. West being unwilling to lead from his club tenace and also not desiring to open either the singleton King or the spade suit, which had been bid by North. Two rounds of trumps were won in the closed hand, followed by the lead of the heart Knave. This trick was won with the Ace and a small spade returned to the Queen. Mr. Kaufman's original plan had been to discard his losing heart and then take the club finesse, which had an even chance of success. However, there was an alternative play. Perhaps the heart King was a singleton. Weighing the possibilities, Mr. Kaufman decided this was more probable and hence changed his tactics. The heart and a club were discarded, and then the 9 of hearts was led from Dummy. East did not cover, and Mr. Kaufman let it ride, discarding another club. On the third round of hearts, the Queen was played, but the contract, with an overtrick, was now assured. Mr. Kaufman ruffed and returned to the Dummy with a diamond and discarded the last club on the fourth heart.

TODAY'S QUESTION

South opens with a bid of one spade, West doubles and North passes. What should East call, holding the following hand?

♠ 965432 ♡ 743 ◇ — ♣ AQ52

Answer: Two clubs. Despite the holding of six small spades and 1½ honor-tricks, the hand is not strong enough to pass for a penalty.

Household Hints

If no suet is available when making a pudding, a grated potato will serve quite well.

Keep mirrors in shady parts of the home, as the sun's rays affect the mercury, clouding the glass.

Chocolate fudge may be rolled into balls and covered with chopped nuts, or shaped into a roll and cut into slices.

Always use canned pineapple in gelatin mixtures. If fresh is used, the mixture will not congeal.

"Stocking bills were ruining me"

"All my spare cash used to go for stockings. Sometimes I'd get a run, sometimes they'd go at the heel or toe.

"One day a saleswoman suggested washing stockings with Lux. 'It saves the elasticity of the silk so it stands a lot more strain, gives much better wear,' she said. I took her advice and, actually, my stocking bills are half what they used to be. Stockings give me twice as good wear."

YOU, TOO, can avoid needless stocking runs and holes—save money on stockings. Simply wash stockings in Lux suds each night. Lux saves the elasticity of silk, so it gives instead of breaking under strain.

Mrs. R. Hughes washed 445 pieces with one box of Lux. Lux goes farther. It is so pure—so mild!

Things I Never Knew Till Now
(Don't read it. You know-it-all!)

Flash!!!—The Sophie Tuckers (Al Lackey) have definitely parted. She just moved into her own suite at the Park Central. "The last of the red hot mamas," in response to our query, said: "I'm finished. It's all over." She will tell it to the same judge soon, before whom she changed her mind a few months ago.

That Prince Abduk Kadir of Turkey recently sued a newspaperman in Hungary for calling him a jazz band conductor in a cafe.

That taxes on cigarets pour about a million dollars a day into the United States Treasury. (Yet they have sincome taxes!)

That pawnshops, as a rule, do not charge the usual pawn fee to wives who have to hock their wedding rings.

That there are only 12 letters in the Hawaiian alphabet.

That the first book printed in English on sports was by a woman—Dame Julianna Berners (1496)—the First Woman Sports Writer!

That only one out of every 10,000 mechanical patents makes the owner rich, according, of course, to an authority on patents.

That two fools traded bullets at each other for two hours in Iowa recently without either chump getting hit! (What hammy marksmanship!)

That Waltham (Mass.) unemployed must choose between their pet dogs and weekly city relief checks. Officials argue that dogs eat more than children, so unemployed people must forfeit their pets.

That during the Middle Ages the laws of Wales didn't consider you a gentleman unless you owned and played a harp!

That the word "Bolshevik" means "majority."

That any branch of higher knowledge is first a philosophy—then a science—and finally—an art.

That Oscar Wilde was a technocrat. (Reference: "The Soul of Man Under Socialism")

That the worst smelling town in Italy is a place named Berne, where they make limburger cheese. (Will somebody open a winder?.

That insurance companies won't insure jewelry salesmen—if they sleep in a lower berth. (Who can sleep in any berth?)

That locals have heard Uncle Sam has licensed about 50 drug addicts who cannot live without the stuff.

That the dog-catcher of Council Bluffs receives more wages than the town's mayor. Binghamton, N. Y., pays its mayor $1,000 annually, and his sec'y gets $1,350 per year! The city manager gets $9,000!

That according to Webster, a bus conductor is a cad.

That the linotyper of the Yiddish weekly, The Hotelman, is an Irishman who insists on editing the editor's style!

That George Washington's life at Brandywine was spared when Pat Ferguson, a redcoat, refused to shoot him in the back. (An orchid to Pat—who certainly would have been a flop on Broadway).

That rubber is now perfumed to erase the odor.

That although 1932 was a leap year—there were 15,000 less marriages in New York City than there were in 1928.

That in 1932 19 movie queens had blessed events, seven adopted sons or daughters and several others will. If Hollywood sets the example, Margaret Sanger has something to worry about, indeed.

That drachm is a teaspoonful! (Imagine that!)

That Rudy Vallee says his ambition is to replace Police Comm. Mulrooney to save N. Y. from gangsters. (Uh-huh.)

That if you want to earn the enmity of a foam-at-the-mouther for life—never call him names. Call his bluffs.

Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily Mixed at Home

Saves $2. So Easy! No Cooking!

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in more homes than any other cough remedy, because it gives more prompt, positive relief. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Syrup is easily made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. This saves two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough medicine, and gives you a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes fine.

Instantly you feel its penetrating effect. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm, clears the air passages, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief in severe coughs.

Another Island Jungle In the Cinema

While the picture romance at the Cinema this week is called "Cain," it might more fitly be called "Adam," for it is an anthropological romance showing a rebel in a wild garden of Eden somewhere about Madagascar. A stoker from a steamer forsakes his grimy job, and learns to use bow and arrows, to make fire and mold metals, and lastly to capture for himself a savage maid by very civilized methods.

It is a really wild picture, with golden lizards and ring-tailed monkeys to diversify the "afternoon of a faun." Among island jungle films this is really fine—and almost as vivid as a Russian ballet. The English comedy which forms the other half of the bill is again unbelievably dull.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Elmer Rice, author of "Counsellor-At-Law," coming next week to the Nixon with Paul Muni as its star, is one lawyer who makes money. Not by practicing at the bar, but by writing plays. He has written as many hits as the next one, including "Street Scene," which won the Pulitzer prize of its year, earned the writer plenty of dough on the stage and still more as a movie. He got into the habit right quite young, his first play, "On Trial," written when he was a lawyer's clerk, aged 20 years, scoring immediately in the success class. It had a legal flavor and he has written three others that have the same characteristic, these being "It Is the Law," "For the Defense" and "Counsellor-At-Law," which recently terminated its second long run in New York. The first had to be ended last summer when Muni went to Hollywood on a picture contract.

Harry Brown, manager of the Nixon, positively wants you to know that "Of Thee I Sing" positively will be the attraction in the Nixon the week of March 13, and that mail orders will be filled in the order of their receipt. It will come with the original New York cast, including William Gaxton, Victor Moore and Lois Moran. Pittsburgh girl who went from the movies to score a big hit in this Broadway production. This frolic, a satire on our political sore thumb, is the only musical comedy that has won the Pulitzer dramatic prize. It had a run of 55 weeks in New York.

* * *

Doris Kenyon will play opposite George Arliss in his next picture, "Voltaire" . . . Buster Crabbe, swimmer, who became actor in "Lion Man," will begin a personal appearance tour in Boston. . . . As soon as Ann Harding completes "When Ladies Meet" for M-G-M she will go to Radio to make a film of "Declasse," in which Ethel Barrymore starred on the stage . . . Colleen Moore's come-back to the screen will be in "The Power and Glory," by Preston Sturges, which will have Spencer Tracy as the leading man. . . . Harold Lloyd and family are spending a few days in New York, en route to Hollywood from a trip to Europe. . . . Marie Dressler is recovering from the effects of a minor operation in a New York hospital. . . . Joan Bennett likewise in Hollywood. . . . The Drama Department, Carnegie Institute of Technology, will present Susan Glaspell's "Allison's House," March 14-20. . . . When Sidney Howard, author of Katharine Cornell's new hit, "Alien Corn," returned from the World War he went into the office of Life to ask a question about a check and they put him to work reading jokes. . . . The first Canter-Jessel tour of one-night stands for two and half weeks was so successful that another, through the South, to begin March 11, is contemplated. . . . With Jimmie Durante, Lupe Velez and Hope Williams as stars, "Strike Me Pink," revision of Lew Brown and Ray Henderson's "Forward March," which called all bets off after a week in Pittsburgh last October, will open in New York Saturday night.

Weird Movie In Variety

By MARY SHINE

Almost every device known to the theater is used to produce an atmosphere of weirdness and horror in "The Vampire Bat" photoplay in the Variety. Patterned along the theme of "Dracula," it is neither as effective nor as entertaining. Lionel Atwill and Fay Wray provide a little unexciting love interest.

"The Vampire Bat" is a story of a mad scientist, who dreams of producing living tissue, human life, and hypnotizes his assistant to kill like a vampire, then uses the victim's blood in his experiments. He is finally entangled in his own fiendish web.

The stage show presents Baby Rosamond, child accordeon player, tap dancing, a couple of acrobats and an animal act. "Union Wages" brings Louise Fazenda to the screen in a bit of slap-stick and there is a Mickey Mouse cartoon.

Pursued by Firemen, Bandits Make Escape

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Pursued by seven firemen, two robbers, who trussed up the night manager and a clerk in a West Philadelphia hotel, escaped with about $60 today.

A woman passing the hotel saw the two men bind Wilson H. Moon, the manager, and Arthur H. Wheaton, the clerk. She ran to a nearby firehouse and gave the alarm.

219,625 in 10 Days Visit Old Ironsides

SAN PEDRO, Cal., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—"Old Ironsides," the famous frigate Constitution which was America's first Navy, today has a new record. In 10 days 219,625 visitors inspected her. The previous record was 193,881 at New Orleans in 15 days. She has 11 more days at this port.

Shall Such Things Be Told As 'Both Your Houses' Tells In Nixon?

By GEORGE SEIBEL

What is this country coming to when dramatists can tell such unpleasant truths about the government as Maxwell Anderson has put into "Both Your Houses," the new play of the Theater Guild which had its first presentation on any stage at the Nixon Theater last night? The natural resources of our country in political apathy and indifference have hardly been touched, as one Congressman assures his fellow Porkers, but if dramatists are allowed to put things like this on the stage, who knows what may happen? Of course, the danger is minimized if the dramatist is dull and tiresome, but when he makes his soap-box tirade as interesting as Maxwell Anderson does, such men are indeed dangerous.

George Seibel

In one respect the dramatist has overstated his case. Our solons are not as frank and unashamed as the members of this Appropriations Committee. There is a much larger supply of hypocrisy to grease their consciences. As to the profanity and booze, the dramatist has probably struck a fair average of actual conditions. He has drawn a very charitable picture in another respect, for there are few Congressmen as amusing and clever as the members of this committee. These sharks have epigrams for teeth. These rats have rhetorical tails.

Summing it up, Maxwell Anderson, author of "Elizabeth the Queen" and "What Price Glory," has produced a brilliant satire so close to truth that it is almost a tragedy.

HIS YOUNG LOCHINVAR

Somehow the drama reminds one of "Wings Over Europe" . . . here is another young Lochinvar out of the west, who intends to make over the statesmen who rule the nation.

He is told by one of them that "the sole business of government is graft, special privilege and corruption." The same bland brigand admits that his constituents keep on "re-electing a fat crook because he gets them what they want out of the Treasury."

And in the end the young Lochinvar who came to reform, exclaims:

"I wish I had never come here!"

Shepperd Strudwick plays this rather precocious young hero with a manner and a makeup somewhat reminiscent of young Philip LaFollette (the ex-governor), while Walter C. Kelly impersonates the bland cynic in a style that might be a take-off of the Hon. Sol. Bloom. Other congressional and political figures are discernible in the motley assortment of cheap statesmen who ride in this Washington Merry-Go-Round.

Two serious portraits are presented by Robert Strange as the chairman of the committee and by Morris Carnovsky as the house leader. Both these fine players were convincingly consistent.

Since there must be romance, even in an appropriations committee, the chairman has a daughter, pleasantly presented by Aleta Freel, and there is a blonde secretary who steers the new Congressman into his battle against the Porkers — and this role becomes vivid and credible in the hands of Mary Philips.

ROMANCE NOT SERIOUS

It is not necessary to take this romance too seriously. There is no love-making, no sentiment—just a few luncheon engagements and helpful standing by. In fact, few plays are less romantic and sentimental than "Both Your Houses"—it is bitter satire, getting its laughs out of the stupidity and colossal brass of the people playing the political game.

When Oscar Polk, the colored actor who plays Mark so suavely, thinks the pork bill should be killed, but changes his mind as soon as he hears it will affect his own job, admitting that "I ain't high-minded at all—just swayed by reading matter," he stands for so many constituents of these Congressmen, that one is inclined to underscore the sentiment that this country was built up by brigands who invented prosperity.

Well-constructed, full of uproarious characterizations, spiced with epigrams worthy of Shaw, and acted with great gusto, this drama is tall fun and good medicine. The country needs a strong dose of this sort to purge it of its poisons. But then, what would be left?

Would Bar Co-eds Wearing Frat Pins

MADISON, Wis., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Pity the poor University of Wisconsin co-ed if a bill introduced in the Legislature becomes a law. It would be illegal for any person not a member of a fraternity to wear its insignia. It's a campus tradition for a co-ed to wear her fiance's fraternity pin.

Stock Actress Rises As Movie Player

Shirley Grey, who stepped into the leading feminine role of "Terror Aboard" recently when Carole Lombard was removed in favor of the stellar part in "Supernatural," has signed a long term contract with Paramount. Her contract is the result of Miss Grey's performance in "From Hell to Heaven." A former leading woman in stock companies, Miss Grey was seen by a film scout in Oakland two years ago. She recently had the leading part with Jack Oakie in "Uptown New York."

Circus Animal Stunts Basis of Film

Much of the drama in "The Big Cage" is based upon actual happenings in Clyde Beatty's exciting career as an animal trainer. In addition to his 43 wild beasts—the same animals he uses as headliner of the Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey show—Beatty is surrounded by a supporting cast which includes Anita Page, Raymond Hatton, Wallace Ford, Mickey Rooney, Andy Devine and Vince Barnett.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

ABOARD THE S. S. IZMIR, EGYPT-BOUND.—This is the largest boat on which I have traveled in some time. It can boast of almost 8,000 tons, by golly, and in comparison with the S. S. City of Tunis and the S. S. Mustapha 2nd, it must be considered as something of a floating palace. We have a four-piece orchestra, two barmen, 12 passengers who are going through to Egypt—and the boat is only 25 years old. What a pleasure!

Oh, before I forget. As I write this piece, I am compelled to look in the general direction of a white card that is encased on my cabin door. The card contains the regulations for passengers on this sterling craft and is printed in five languages. Please gaze over my shoulder, as I write the English version exactly as it is contained on the card:

"REGULATION FOR CABIN CLASS PASSENGER."

1—Passenger have their nourishment in dining salon of ship. Exception of illness.

2—Passenger have to hand their precious effects over to Clerk of ship through chief Steward.

In case against to this paragraph, Seyrisefain not responsible of missing of such a valuable goods and precious effects.

3—Hand bags and small parcells can be taken in cabin. Luggages should be lucked in strong room.

4—To play Gramophon in cabin strickly prohibited.

8—Dogs could not be kapt in cabin, masters should leave dog to chief steward for the protection.

9—Any claim against to waiter should addressed to the captain through chief Steward.

10—Not to touch piano if can not play well.

Those, my friends, are the regulations on this sturdy, old warhorse of the seas. I am particularly fond of the tenth and last rule. Evidently the piano player in the orchestra on this boat has never read it . . .

Even though I'm still under the Turkish flag on this vessel, I'm doggone glad to be out of Istanbul. That's one spot that I don't think I'll ever have a desire to see again as long as I live. For downright suspicion and unfriendliness, I've encountered nothing like it on this trip.

I do not speak of the situation of the city, nor of the sights to be seen. Those, I suppose, are beautiful enough. Lying midway between land and sea, this city of domes and minarets rises to delight the eyes of those who get a thrill out of seeing domes and minarets. A closer investigation proves there are plenty of filthy wooden houses to share honors with the domes and minarets, but maybe I shouldn't bring that up.

If you enjoy mosques, you'll find enough of them in Constantinople to satisfy you for a long time to come. The Great Mosque, formerly the Church of St. Sofia, is celebrated all over the world—but for what I do not know. The Mosque of Sultan Ahmed, the Mosque of Eyoub, the Mosque of the Doves, and at least 20 others are distributed all around the city.

To me, the most interesting fact about these mosques is that practically all of them were originally built as churches. There's something very strange about that, but it's not for me to discuss.

So I'm not going to try . . .

The City of Istanbul has had more names than the late Jack Diamond. As far back as can be traced, the city was first known as Byzantium. When Constantine came along in 330, he probably figured that Byzantium sounded too much like a mouthwash or a cure for colds. So he changed the name of the place to the New Rome.

The folks thought, however, that Constantine was too modest about the whole matter. They called the town Constantinople, and that has been the favorite label down through the years. The Russians had a different viewpoint because they named it Czarigrad in honor of—you'll never guess it—the Czar. But that never went into the official records because the Russians never got near enough to Constantinople to make it Czarigrad.

Today, as you know, the official name of the city is Istanbul. The old Turks, however, called the city Stamboul from the very beginning—and they have never called it anything else.

So you pay your railroad fare and you takes your choice. Byzantium, Constantinople, Czarigrad, Stamboul, Istanbul. It really doesn't make any difference. A cheese by any other name is still a cheese . . .

In the orchestra at the Tokatlian Hotel, I spotted a colored saxophone player who had all the characteristics of an American Negro. I summoned the head waiter, a Turk, who spoke English, and asked him if the man in question had come from America. The head waiter replied that he had.

"Good," I asserted. "When he's through with his number, ask him to step over here. I want to talk to him."

Why did I want to talk to him? Lonesomeness, I suppose. He might have played in the Cotton Club at one time, or at Connie's Inn—and we'd discuss the crowds we knew in America. Of such discussions is happiness created—outside of New York.

In a few minutes, the colored man was beside me. His grin was wide and his eyes were shining.

"From New York?" I asked him.

He shook his head.

"No, suh," he replied. "Chicago. But I know a lotta the boys in New York. 'Specially the fellers from the old Nest Club. Ever meet any of them?"

I mentioned a few; he mentioned a few. He almost leaped with glee when he discovered that some of our musical acquaintances were mutual.

"Sho am glad to meet yo', suh," he beamed. "Seems lak old times to be chinnin' with someone from the States. It's been nine years since ah left there."

"Nine years!" I repeated incredulously. "That's a long stretch in a country like this. What's the matter—are you on the lam?"

"On the lam," as any motion picture audience of today knows, means to be a fugitive from justice. I asked the question kiddingly, and the Lord knows I meant no harm. But my friend acted as though I had tossed a bomb in his direction. He backed away sharply.

"No, suh," he mumbled with a forced laugh. "No, indeed, suh. Nothin' like that. You'll have to 'scuse me now. Good night, suh."

He departed abruptly. And I thought nothing more of the incident until this morning when I was checking out of the hotel to catch this boat. It was then I learned the aftermath of my innocent question.

The manager told me that, although nobody knew the reason why, their saxaphone player had packed hastily during the previous day, departed by a rear exit—and hadn't been seen since!...

Raft, Studio Likely to Make Up

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 28.—In case George Raft and Paramount agree to forget and forgive, his next picture will bear the appropriate title, "On Probation."

It is a melodrama about a woman probation officer (Wynne Gibson) and a prisoner who is receiving the mercy of the law (Raft). Howard Spellman, formerly on the district attorney's staff in New York, got the idea and Rian James will do the adapting.

The general feeling around Hollywood is that Raft and the studio will patch up their differences, probably with concessions on both sides. Several days ago, George invited the press to his agent's office to receive a statement. None developed, but, talking informally, the star said:

"I don't think I'm a great actor but I'm in this business for the money, and I think that part in 'The Story of Temple Drake' would ruin anyone who played it. I made my living before I got into pictures and I think I could again. Certainly, Hollywood could get along without me."

George says he hasn't made much money in the films, in fact he's broke.

The star made a favorable impression upon the scribes, most of whom have liked him from the first.

* * *

Hollywood's best known redhead, Clara Bow, was expected yesterday, along with her husband, Rex Bell, and Producer Sam Rork. Fox will tell you they have no story in mind, but want Clara to do another picture. . . . All the furnishings of Esther Ralston's hillside home are up for auction. They'll sell the house, too, to the highest bidder. The blonde star's plans are still a little uncertain. If offers develop in Hollywood, she'll remain. If not, she'll return to England, where a British Gaumont contract awaits her. For the time being, she has rented a house in Westwood.

* * *

Ruth Chatterton was scheduled to do a hootch dance scene for "Lilly Turner," but broke two fingers on the way to the set. . . . Warner Baxter, who's just back from Havana, says that Bacardi is pronounced with the accent on the last syllable, not the second. Phonetically, it's bacardee! . . . Warner, by the way, will be playing the lead in "I Loved You Wednesday," an assignment that is costing him a trip to Hawaii. Alison Skipworth is coming over from Paramount for this film.

* * *

If he continues to improve, Ricardo Cortez will be able to begin work Wednesday on his new picture at Paramount. Incidentally, I made a mistake the other day. Rick's brother, Stanley, is a full-fledged cameraman, not an assistant . . . Bobby Agnew's back in town. He's working in "The Gold Diggers of 1933," at Warners . . . Those two bandaged fingers of Gary Cooper are the result of his recent drawing experiments with pastelle crayons.

* * *

Talked to Janet Gaynor for a few minutes on the set. She tells that her house is 30 miles from Honolulu, and that the residents over there don't think so much of a mere 90 foot beach front. Closer to the city, it's very difficult to buy land in sight of the waves. You have to lease it from the old estates.

MY BEST WAR STORY

By C. HANLON,
1007 Highland Avenue,
North Braddock, Pa.
Co. K, 320th Infantry

The night before we made the big drive in the Argonne battle, 1918, Company K, 320th Infantry, in which I was a private, was stationed in a big wood.

We had pulled in there a few hours before dark and were just getting set to take a little nap when shells started bursting all around. My buddy and I jumped under a limber. We were not there two minutes when the air was filled with screams of the wounded. A large shell had hit a crowd of soldiers, including several sergeants, blowing many of them to bits, but a few escaped with wounds.

After that great confusion, we got into formation and moved closer to the front lines.

Just before daybreak we made the drive. A young corporal was shot down not two feet from me. My buddy's canteen was split by shrapnel, but he wasn't touched.

The shelling grew heavier and snipers annoyed us with "pot" shots. I was forced into a shell hole by snipers in the woods and had to remain there a good while. As I got my chance to crawl out, a sergeant was killed.

It was a very hard-fought battle, but we had made an objective.

(The foregoing story was a prize-winner in the "My Best War Story" contest being conducted by veterans of Allegheny County. True accounts of war experiences may be mailed by veterans, relatives and friends to the "Best Story" Committee, Fulton Theater, Sixth street, Pittsburgh. They must not exceed 300 words. The winner each day will be awarded four tickets to the theater's showing of the war film, "The Big Drive.")

Work in Woodyard Demanded of Idle

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Threatening to "take things in our own hands," a delegation of 150 unemployed unmarried men filed through the streets here after they had been told by City Commissioner R. E. Riley that unless they worked two hours a day in the Portland Commons woodyard, they would not be fed.

Details of police were stationed at the several places where free meals are given and at the woodyards to protect the men who worked to earn the meals. The wood is distributed to needy families.

Masontown Man Ends Life With Rifle

MASONTOWN, Pa., Feb. 28.—Mario Blasotti, 29, shot himself to death at his home here after placing a rifle to his head. Relatives said he was subject to despondent spells.

Railroad Asks Fare Cut to Draw Trade

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—The Louisville and Nashville Railroad set out definitely yesterday to draw the traveling public back to its cars by asking permission of the Interstate Commerce Commission to reduce fares over its entire system.

The company desires to institute a two cents a mile fare on coaches and reduce pullman rates from 3.6 cents per mile plus a surcharge on pullman tickets to 3 cents a mile.

Too Many Have Same Name, Shop Burns

DONORA, Pa., Feb. 28.—It might be a good idea for some of the Mulas to change the names of their firms.

Flames crackled in one Mula shoe repair shop while the fire department rushed to another Mula shoe repair shop, and finding it was the wrong one, proceeded to still another Mula repair shop. There are four of them.

Because of the delay, the blaze did damage estimated by the owner at $3,000.

Funeral Rites Held For Marian Salmon

A solemn high mass of requiem was sung in St. Lawrence Catholic Church at 10 a. m. today for Miss Marian Salmon, popular radio pianist and fiancee of Ralph Federer, also a radio entertainer, who died in her home at 5471 Rosetta street Saturday night. Miss Salmon was a niece of Paul Gannon, radio tenor.

She was born in Pittsburgh and was graduated from the Frick Teachers' Training School last June. Besides her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Salmon, she leaves four brothers, Bernard, Edward, Paul and Francis, and a sister, Ruth Salmon.

NEW TAILORED SUIT INSURES DESIRED SPRING SMARTNESS

THE NEW spring recipe for smartness is a tailored suit with a shortish jacket, a skirt whose hem allows for plenty of freedom of movement, and a blouse of some contrasting color—preferably darker than the suit.

* * *

THERE ARE many practical angles to this new fashion. In the first place the cut of the suit is so simple that it requires some sturdy material—a feature which provides against easily wrinkling, and which furnishes sufficient warmth for all but the coldest days. This very simplicity and solidity furnishes a perfect background for any amount of variety in blouses and accessories; a suit of this type is thus an investment in thrift, for with a few changes of accompanying bags, hats and gloves, it will serve as several costumes.

* * *

ONE DRESSMAKER does this type of suit in neutral colors, leaving any vividness of hue to the blouses it accompanies. He chooses materials of mottled texture which give, at a distance, the effect of a plain color, but whose elaboration of weave is a protection against spots and soil.

* * *

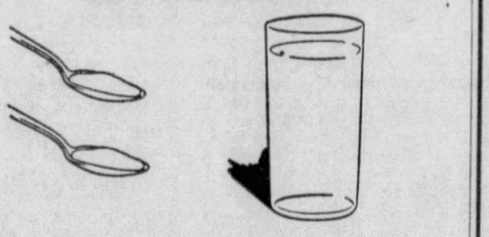
ACID STOMACH EASY NOW TO CORRECT

Just Do One Thing—That's All

THE SIGNS OF ACID STOMACH

Nervousness	Sour Stomach	Loss of Appetite
Neuralgia	Mouth Acidity	Frequent Headaches
Indigestion	Nausea	Feeling of Weakness
Auto-intoxication		Sleeplessness

WHAT TO DO FOR IT



TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed.

According to many authorities, some 80% of the people of today have acid stomach. This because so many foods, comprising the modern diet, are acid forming foods.

It usually makes itself felt in headaches, nausea, "gas," "biliousness," and most frequently in stomach pains that come about thirty minutes after eating. So you can easily tell if you have it.

Now Quickly and Easily Corrected

If you do have acid stomach, don't worry about it. You can correct it in a very simple manner. Just do this. It will alkalize your acid soaked stomach almost immediately. You will feel like another person.

TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia with a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed.

What This Does

That's all you do. But you do it regularly, EVERY DAY, so long as you have any symptoms of distress.

This acts to neutralize the stomach acids that foster your "upset" stomach, that invite headaches and that feeling of lassitude and lost energy.

Try it. Results will amaze you. Your head will be clear. You'll forget you have a stomach.

BUT—be careful that you get REAL milk of magnesia when you buy; genuine PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia. See that the name "Phillips" is stamped clearly on the label.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM:

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

How to Keep Well

Causes of Digestive Troubles

At some time or other every one of us suffers from some digestive complaint. I can think of no other ailment that is so closely related to our modern mode of living. In fact, this trouble is often spoken of as "the great American complaint."

Dr. Copeland

Digestive disturbances, such as heartburn, dyspepsia, acid or sour stomach, "biliousness" and nausea, can be traced to improper chewing of the food and hurrying through the meals. Irregular meals and eating too much of foods difficult to digest, are other factors that must not be overlooked.

The practice of rushing through a meal is all too common in this country. We deserve the ridicule of the cartoonist who pictures the commuter grabbing his cup of coffee and eating his toast while running to catch his train. Rapid eating is a bad habit, yet it is a daily occurrence in many homes.

Each of the meals of the day should be at an appointed hour. There should be ample time for leisurely eating. To insure good digestion, it is necessary to chew the food slowly and carefully before swallowing it. Slow chewing permits the saliva to act upon the food and prepare it for digestion. When the beneficial action of saliva is omitted, more work is placed on the stomach. In consequence, the process of digestion is made more difficult and digestive disturbances may result.

Some persons are susceptible to digestive disorders, while others, regardless of how or what they eat, rarely, if ever, suffer any discomfort. But sooner or later the stomach will rebel against continued abuse.

Of course, many persons suffer from digestive disturbances in spite of their careful choice of food. In such a case, a careful investigation of the digestive trace may reveal some deformity of the stomach or duodenum. In many instances the underlying cause can only be determined by a complete X-ray examination of the stomach and intestines.

When no organic disturbance or defect exists, cure can be brought about by proper chewing of food; avoidance of hurried meals; omitting fried and greasy foods, excessive indulgence in salts, peppers, spices, condiments, pastries and foods difficult to digest.

It is wise to drink six to eight glasses of water each day. Daily elimination is essential.

May I warn you against depending on the all-too-common practice of taking baking soda. There is no doubt it gives relief in digestive disorders, but the relief is merely temporary.

Answers to Health Queries

I. M. S. Q.—My 9-months-old baby had a fall when five weeks of age and since then his heart has been beating very rapidly. Do you think that this is due to the fall or is it natural for a baby to have a more rapid heart than an adult? What are the symptoms of heart trouble in a baby?

A.—Have the baby examined without further delay. It is not normal for a baby to have a rapid heart beat. There are a number of symptoms. Have your doctor advise you after examination.

Have you ever driven an Automatic Automobile?

THE sensation is almost incredible in these amazing new Studebakers. You find you have almost nothing to do but steer.

You even shift gears so easily, you half imagine there are no gears. You stop at the mere touch of your toe on the brake pedal. Practically everything that takes physical effort and mental strain in other cars is done automatically for you by twelve uncanny "mechanical brains."

In fact, these new Studebakers so effectively eliminate the human element from driving, they are certain to be the pattern for all other cars for years to come. They represent the utmost achievement of an engineering staff that is constantly doing more so that motorists will be required to do less!

Come, drive one of these automatic new Studebakers—even though you're not thinking of buying. You'll find that your present car, no matter how new, does not compare with them in driving ease and simplicity. No other cars in the world come anywhere near doing so much.

BUCS MAY FACE OLD JINX IN OPENER

GUESS WHOM THE Pirates may encounter in the opening game of the pennant race at Cincinnati on April 12. Nobody else but Ol' Eppa Rixey, who made life a burden to the Bucs last year by beating them four times before they finally succeeded in turning the tables on him in a fifth meeting. Rixey could trim the Corsairs with his ancient soupbone when he couldn't beat anybody else, and the four defeats he plastered on them represented exactly the margin by which they lost out for the flag.

Eppa Rixey

Manager Donie Bush is thinking of using Rixey in the curtain-raiser, even though the altitudinous left-hander is almost 42 years old and has been a late starter in recent seasons. It isn't a pleasant prospect for the Bucs, but they may find some hope in the fact that last year was an exceptional season for Rixey against Pittsburgh. In three straight seasons prior to 1932 he won only two games from Pittsburgh while losing seven, and in the last six years he has failed to break even against the Rovers, winning 10 games and losing 13.

MANY LETTERS HAVE been received at Pirate headquarters, offering suggestions of everything from a favorite color for tickets to a roof over the playing field for rainy days. Accustomed though he is to novel proposals, Vice President Sam Watters was knocked out of his chair by the latest.

It came from a woman fan and suggested: "Inasmuch as you now have a ladies' day and a boys' day, why not have a men's day?" At least, the Pirate vice president doesn't doubt that it would be popular. Of course, the club will readily consent to set aside a free day for the down-trodden male species—probably some nice open date.

BURLEIGH GRIMES may have saved Dazzy Vance from defeats by fine relief pitching in some years at Brooklyn, but a Butler correspondent rises to correct the impression that the spitballer did anything of the sort during the season of 1924, when Dazzy made his great record of 28 victories against only six defeats.

It is pointed out that Vance, as well as Grimes, pitched 30 complete games that year, and that Burleigh finished only one contest for any club mate. Figures also are presented to show that Vance scored 14 of his victories over first-division clubs and only five over the seventh and eighth-place teams.

EVERY CLUB WILL have its good years and its bad ones, but in most cases time balances things and in the long run it's a pretty even proposition. The most striking evidence of this is found in the all-time record of competition between the Giants and Cubs. New York came into the National League for the second time in 1883, so that the two clubs have seen exactly 50 years of fighting against each other. In that half century they have met in 969 league games, and the difference in victories is only nine, the Giants having won 489 times against 480 for the Cubs. That's just about a record in organized ball for keeping close.

Leonard Koenecke

ANOTHER BALL PLAYER who came into the major leagues under the handicap of a fancy price tag, and whose failure to make good may have been due to it, will get another chance this year under more favorable conditions. He is Leonard Koenecke, Giant outfielder.

Koenecke came up as a $75,000 purchase. The tall figures and the resulting wide publicity had the usual effect. In seeking to deliver the big stuff he knew was expected of him he tried too hard, overdid things and fell down. This year he is relieved of that burden, is free to make a fresh start like an ordinary rookie, and some of the Giants think he will look like a different player.

JOHNNY FREUND believes he is in a position to say that he called the turn when he predicted early in January that the college basketball teams of this district would compare with the best anywhere, naming Duquesne, Pitt, Carnegie, Geneva, Waynesburg, Grove City and Westminster.

"As I look back I do not see any reason to retract," the floor veteran remarks. "Instead, I believe we can go a step further and say that the district teams may be even a bit better than those elsewhere, since the Dukes twice beat Pitt and the latter won over such teams as Notre Dame, Purdue, Army, Fordham, Navy and others."

IN CHANGING HANDS seven times within a period of less than four years, the welterweight fistic championship has been running true to the record it made for frequent shifts in early days. After taking the title from Tommy Ryan in 1896, Kid McCoy entered the middleweight class, and in 1898 Mysterious Billy Smith established himself as champion by defeating Matty Matthews and Joe Walcott in less than four months, a pretty fair job. Within the next six years the crown passed from Smith to Rube Ferns, then to Matthews, back to Ferns, next to Joe Walcott and then to Dixie Kid. Three years more saw it going back to Walcott, then to Honey Mellody and next to Mike (Twin) Sullivan.

TAY GON, Japanese marathon runner, who decided after the Olympic Games that he would remain in this country indefinitely to take a course at the University of Southern California, was compelled to change his mind. He is on his way back home, and Felix Rinner, Australian 400-meter runner and also an Olympic figure, has gone with him.

Immigration authorities told the two foreign athletes that they could not remain longer in the United States, though they were here only as students. President von Klein Smid, of U. S. C., twice wired Washington for a stay, but his efforts were unsuccessful. Gon and Rinner, Australian 400-meter Olympic runner, went with him.

DUKE KAHANAMOKU, famous Hawaiian swimmer, lost a city hall job in Honolulu because he declined to become janitor, but may receive a pension from the Territory for "services" rendered.

Senator David Trask has introduced a bill in the Territorial Legislature to pay Kahanamoku $350 monthly, saying he considers that little enough to do for the swimmer who participated in three Olympics and made a fourth attempt in the Cincinnati tryouts last summer, only to find that he had lost his old speed.

Hawles Pierce

LOOKING BACK OVER the football players he developed at the old Carlisle Indian School, now a government hospital for disabled soldiers, Pop Warner feels that he did a good job of man building as well as turning out strong gridiron teams. Jim Thorpe is in the movies. Bemus Pierce, Lone Star Dietz, Gus Welch, Sam McLain and others are engaged in coaching or physical education work. Hawley Pierce is a locomotive engineer. Frank Hudson, the best dropkicker Warner ever saw, and who was employed for a time in an East End bank when he played for D. C. & A. C. here, is in business in the East. Jimmy Johnston is a dentist in Porto Rico. Albert Exendine is a prohibition enforcement agent. Many others also have been successful in the professional business or industrial world.

BUC PITCHERS ON EDGE FOR HARD WORK

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, Cal., Feb. 28.—On top of five days of intensive training, the Pirate pitching staff, it developed today, is ready to cut loose at the expense of the somewhat unfortunate infielders and outfielders who are due to walk into a lot of fast ones when they step on to the greensward Thursday.

Manager Gibson this morning was ready to admit that the fine point of conditioning desired at such an early date was not confined to the kids, two or three of his first-string stars are just about ready to bear down, in fact they did as much in the long afternoon session of yesterday.

LARRY FRENCH READY

Larry French, the industrious southpaw, struck the keynote this morning as the batterymen dressed for the first session of the day. The question of the opening day pitcher was brought up in some manner. French naturally is a consideration, although the bell will not ring for six weeks. Larry was asked whether he would like to flip the inaugural. He retorted.

"Certainly I would—and listen, brother, if the gong clangs tomorrow I could go out there and work."

French was not making any wild statement in one sense. Larry was asked to do a 10-minute trick on the slab in the long batting drill of yesterday afternoon. After warming up well he found all the soreness gone from his arm and he was as loose as a well-oiled hinge. He let fly with a dozen fast balls and then began to fiddle round with his hook and screw ball.

Boss Gibson warned French to desist, although Gibby told him to get something on the sphere while the catchers were at the plate.

BIRKOFER SHINES

A prize recruit of the afternoon drill of yesterday was Southpaw Ralph Birkofer, the Tulsa farmhand. This 200-pound sharpshooter bewildered the batters with his speed and he is just wild enough to keep the boys in the mood of an African dodger at a county fair.

Birkofer is the same lefthander who Larry French wished to take on a hunting tour.

Of course Larry did not have any ulterior motives, or anything like that; nevertheless the forkhanders are getting a bit too plentiful for Larry's comfort, if you can take Larry's word for it.

Seriously speaking, French is setting such a clip that few can follow him. He came to camp weighing almost 200 pounds and he at once proceeded to work off the surplus poundage. He should have a dandy year.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE MOST DISTINGUISHED LADY OF SCIENCE—Mme. Marie Curie (nee Sklodowska), co-discoverer of polemium and radium, is the only person to have received Nobel prizes from more than one section. She received the award for physics (jointly with her husband and M. Becquerel) in 1903, and again was awarded the Nobel prize in chemistry in 1911. Mme. Curie, who is of Polish descent (daughter of a professor of physics in Warsaw), succeeded her husband, Pierre Curie, as professor of physics and director of the physical laboratory at the Sorbonne. Her scientific experiments, consisting of tedious and innumerable fractional crystallizations, yielded a minute sample of pure radium salt which made possible the precise determination of the atomic weight of radium.

CITY LEAGUERS SET FOR FRAY AT STADIUM

By JULIUS LEVIN

The post-season series for the basketball championship of the City League and the right to engage the winner of the W. P. I. A. L. tournament in the P. I. A. A. inter-district playoffs got under way in the Pitt Stadium pavilion this afternoon when South High, champion of Section I, engaged Perry High, champion of Section II.

The second game of the series will be played on the same floor Friday afternoon, and the third, if necessary, will be staged a week from today.

SOUTH FAVORITE

The South High passers, coached by Grover C. Washabaugh, entered the series a favorite to defeat the Section II representatives due to the fact they did not lose a man in the February graduations, while Coach Chester Smith, of Perry, was forced to make two replacements in his starting lineup at the close of the first half.

South High is making a bid for its first City League championship since 1918, while Perry's appearance in the post-season series marks its first in the history of that school. Perry is striving for its second straight major sports title, having won the City League football crown last fall by defeating Westinghouse in a post-season tile on the Peabody High School field.

No eliminations being scheduled in the W. P. I. A. L. tournament tonight, the officials have arranged playoffs to determine sectional champions.

Rankin and Scott meet in the Pitt Stadium pavilion for the Section VIII crown, the winner to meet the Centerville-Bentleyville survivor on the same floor Saturday night; Leetsdale and Bellevue clash at Avalon for the Section II crown and the right to engage East Pittsburgh on the Stadium floor next Monday; Scottdale and Connellsville clash at Greensburg for the Section X crown and the right to play Norwin at Greensburg a week from tonight; Cecil and Burgettstown clash at Washington for the Section XIV crown and the right to meet Ford City, champion of Section VI in the Pitt Stadium Friday, while Centerville and Bentleyville tomorrow play off at Charleroi for the Section XVI crown and the right to engage the Rankin-Scott winner on Saturday night.

Norwin High won the right to represent Section X in the W. P. I. A. L. series last night when it defeated Sewickley Township in a playoff game, 3-19. Norwin will meet the Scottdale-Connellsville winner in Section XI Monday at Greensburg.

North Belle Vernon Junior High entered the final round of the junior W. P. I. A. L. eliminations by defeating Glassport, 22-13. North Belle Vernon will meet the Section I champs for the title a Glassport next week.

ASPINWALL WINS

NEW KENSINGTON, Feb. 28. Aspinwall, Franklin, and Springdale emerged triumphant in upper bracket, first round games of the Allegheny-Kiski valley schoolboy floor tournament here last night.

Aspinwall won the night's finale, 28-24, after a spirited fray with Har-Brack, generally picked to win the event. Franklin, the 1932 champion, defeated Saltsburg, 24-14. Springdale furnished another upset by trimming Oakmont, 21-10.

CATHOLIC HIGH SKATERS WIN

Central Catholic High School's hockey team is making a serious bid for honors in the newly organized Interscholastic Hockey League. The Central Catholic skaters recorded their third victory in as many starts last night, beating Dormont, 2 to 0, on the Duquesne Garden ice.

In the other game played last evening, Arnold School nosed out the University sextet, 4 to 3. This game went into an overtime session, with Curtain Arnold substitute wing, scoring the winning goal.

Britons Win Final Cricket Test Match

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—England yesterday won the fifth and last cricket test match from Australia by eight wickets.

England ran her second innings score to 168 for the loss of only two wickets to clinch the match.

LUCH FUNERAL TOMORROW

Six of his former teammates on the University of Pittsburgh varsity football squad will serve as pallbearers tomorrow when Johnny Luch, Pitt fullback, track and field and boxing star, who died Sunday in the St. Francis Hospital, is laid to rest in the Wheeling cemetery. They are Warren Heller, Paul Reider, Francis Seigal, Joe Tormey, Ted Dailey and Paul Cuba.

The body of the former Panther gridder was shipped to Wheeling yesterday, accompanied by Coach Sutherland and Manager Hagan.

The entire Pitt squad will attend the burial services tomorrow afternoon, but will not be on hand for the church ceremonies. The party of upwards of 50 will make the trip in buses, leaving here around noon.

Luch died after an operation performed three weeks ago for the removal of his appendix and for gall stones. Peritonitis developed last Thursday and despite two blood transfusions the former Warwood, W. Va., lad passed away Sunday morning.

Baxter Victor By Technical K. O.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Charley Baxter, 138, of Pittsburgh, scored a technical knockout over Billy Joyce, of Newcastle, Pa., in the fifth round of a scheduled 10-round bout here last night.

PIRATES' WHO'S WHO

Our Flag Contenders Answer Quiz, Giving Fans Lowdown on What's What and Why.

NO. 5—Pitcher, Ralph Joseph Birkofer

PASO ROBLES, Cal., Feb. 28.

Stand up, Ralph, and broadcast a little about yourself to Pittsburgh fans. What excuse have you for being in baseball?

I guess it must be in the blood. My dad is 64; they tell me around my home that if I am as good as he was I'll be O. K. But in the days when he was a kid a pro baseball player didn't have a very high social standing and my dad considered that angle. But he is out every summer and he can still hit and throw.

Very good, Ralph. But where is your home and how did you get into the diamond sport?

Ralph Birkofer

I was born and reared in Cincinnati. I am one of a big family. I have liked baseball since I was in knee pants. I played it while I was in a parochial school and kept at it when I attended Sacred Heart School.

Is this your first league venture?

No, I was with the Yankees for a few weeks when I was a kid. That was six years ago. I was in my teens and did not stay. For the next two years I played as a semi-pro. I guess I did fairly well with the sandlotters because I had three contracts sent me in 1929. I chose the one that came from Burlington, Ia., of the Mississippi League, because a Piney boy was to manage the club.

How long did you stay in the Mississippi Valley circuit?

Just one season. Des Moines, of the Three-I League, bought me, and I joined that club the next season. I had a pretty fair year, but I was ill during a part of 1931 and didn't do so well.

The Pirates purchased you from Tulsa. How did you get with that club?

Well, I guess Art Griggs liked the way I pitched, for he bought me from Des Moines.

You were quite a strikeout king in the Western League, were you not?

Maybe the batters were not so hot. Anyhow, my fast ball seemed to be working.

Charley Wood, one of your southpaw rivals, says you are quite a hitter. How about it?

That's nice of Charley, but he's a real sticker, himself. We both hit lefthanded and Art used to call on us when he needed a southpaw pinch hitter.

I feel good out there when I scale about 200 pounds.

Yes, especially on account of my dad. If I make good he will have the biggest thrill.

Wild Life Program Carded Tonight

The annual wild life entertainment of the North Boroughs Sportsmen's Association will be held in the Bellevue High School auditorium this evening. Motion pictures of wild game will be shown and Dr. Samuel H. Williams, State Game Commissioner, will speak.

BRITON TO RACE GAR WOOD

DETROIT, Feb. 28.—(INS.)—The Royal Motor Yacht Club of England today formally challenged Gar Wood for the Harmsworth Trophy, symbol of world speed supremacy on water.

Hubert Scott-Payne, of Great Britain, was named as the entrant.

The famous speedboat classic will be run again next September on lake St. Clair.

Midnight tonight was the deadline for a 1933 challenge. It was not expected that any other country would enter.

Scott-Paine raced here in 1930 in a secondary event held in connection with the Harmsworth. His opponent at that time was H. Lutcher Brown, of Houston, Tex.

Gar Wood, the "fox of Grayhaven" has held the trophy since 1920, winning it again and again with his famous line of Miss Americas. Kaye Don, British speed enthusiast, made the last two unsuccessful attempts to carry the bronze plaque back to England.

Fight Results

At Motor Square Garden—Ted Yarosz and Eddie (Kid) Wolfe drew (referee's decision), 10 rounds; Pete Gulotta defeated Louie Severo, 8 rounds; General Burrows defeated Joey Bazzone, 6 rounds; Red Bruce knocked out Bill Nichy, 2 round.

At Newark, O.—Tiger Walker and Mutt Shartz drew, 10 rounds; Pewee Weghorn defeated Young Tunney, 6 rounds; Young Wolcott knocked out Cincinnati Kid Chocolate, 2 rounds; Don Wilson knocked out Eddie Farmer, 2 rounds.

At Newark, N. J.—Freddie Polo and Lou Halper drew, 10 rounds; Benny Levine knocked out Hans Mueller, 3 rounds.

SARAZEN GETS EASY VICTORY

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Three consecutive rounds of below par golf gave Gene Sarazen the "unofficial world's golf championship" yesterday, as he smothered Olin Dutra, 11 up with 10 holes to play, in their 72-hole match.

Tying the Miami Biltmore course competitive record in the morning with 31-36—67 and doing the first nine holes of the afternoon in 34, Sarazen ended the match by halving the sixty-second hole in three.

WOLFE, YAROSZ BATTLE TO SECOND DRAW IN FOURTH BOUT

DECISION MADE BY IMPORTED REFEREE

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

They'll have to speed the day of those 15-round bouts for Pennsylvania if they want to settle that long-standing feud between Ted Yarosz, of Monaca, and Eddie (Kid) Wolfe, of Memphis, for they have just fought their fourth 10-round battle against each other and they're still deadlocked.

The judges disagreed at the end of their bout in the Motor Square Garden ring last night, Freddie Lux voting for Yarosz and Lou Meininger for Wolfe, and Referee Tommy Reilly, who was imported from Philadelphia to officiate because of the squabble over the decision in favor of Wolfe in their third meeting, settled the issue by voting for a draw. Reilly will be remembered as having been the third man in the ring in the first Gene Tunney-Jack Dempsey fight, fought in Philadelphia.

WOLFE WILTS AT FINISH

It was that close again last night. You could have given it either way, depending upon where you sat or how you figured the effectiveness of the work of the two men. This writer had Wolfe a shade ahead going into the last round, and then Eddie folded up like an accordion and took a pasting as Yarosz swarmed all over him, jolting him badly with short uppercuts in close at the start and keeping up the barrage until the final bell, with Wolfe finally tossing a few wicked rights to the head near the finish as a dying gesture.

That last round was the most decisive one of the fight and it completely wiped out Wolfe's very scant margin up to that time, and the best he could have received was the draw the referee gave him. A draw was the worst Yarosz could have received, and he got it. Draw a line through that and you'll get the point that, if you would have had to split hairs in the tough melee, Yarosz would have wound up a hair or two ahead.

Both won four rounds, with two even. Ted started off in great style and easily carried the first two rounds. He was boxing well, crowding his man and crossing accurately to the jaw with short rights. Then Wolfe won the next two as he switched his attack to the body, scoring with solid left hooks. Late in the fourth round, Eddie nailed Ted with a pip of a hook to the head and made the local man hold on.

TIDE EBBS AND FLOWS

By this time, Teddy was very wild and missing more punches than he was landing, and Wolfe thumped his way to the honors in the fifth round and held his own in the sixth, during which a patch that had covered the cut over Yarosz's right eye, suffered in his third bout with Wolfe, was knocked loose. Wolfe also had a plaster on his cut right eye, received at the same time, but it didn't come off until later.

In the seventh round, Yarosz got back to a sustained attack again and Wolfe was mainly on the defensive. The tide turned again in the eighth, with Wolfe back at his body hooking and making Ted wince and clinch as he stormed through the round, the winner by a wide margin. The ninth was even, and that left Yarosz a round behind going into the final session. Then he finished in the hot manner already described, with Wolfe breaking ground and wilting before the storm of leather.

There were no knockdowns and neither man ever was more than temporarily in distress. It was another great action fight, and if they meet again they'll draw another large crowd. The turnout last night was the largest of the season here. Of the four meetings, Yarosz won the first, in Detroit; drew in the second, in Madison Square Garden, New York; lost the referee's decision at Motor Square Garden, and got another draw there last night, so that the count is one victory apiece and two draws. Wolfe is the only opponent in Ted's professional career to get a victory over him or even so much as a draw. Eddie weighed 147½ pounds and Teddy 149 for last night's fight.

GULOTTA BEATS SEVERO

Reilly also refereed the eight-round semi-final, a slugfest at close quarters, in which Pete Gulotta, of New York, 135¾, won the unanimous decision over Louie Severo, of Meadville, 141¼. A left hook scored on the break dropped Severo for a count of nine in the first round and he bled from the nose from the second round on. Reilly let them fight away to their hearts' content at close quarters, breaking them only when they were actually clinched, which made it a grueling affair, to the liking of some fans and to the dislike of others. The local referees are accustomed to holding down infighting to a minimum by calling upon the boxers to break as soon as they get to close quarters.

HERRERA-FALCO NEXT

It was announced that Tony Falco and Tony Herrera will box a return bout at the Garden next Monday night, with Chino Alvarez, the Cuban recent knockout of Battling Gizzy meeting Charley Baxter, local lightweight, in the eight-round semi-final.

Stars In City Series

JOE DI MATTEO

Star guard, of the Perry High School basketball team, champion of Section II, playing South High, Section I champion, in the first game of the series to determine the City League champion in the Pitt Stadium Pavilion this afternoon.

CHIODO JOINS LOCAL BOXERS

Johnny Chiodo, Johnstown featherweight, well known to the local fans, is to move his headquarters to Pittsburgh and box under the management of Jimmy Esposito, until recently associated with Irish Kane in the handling of boxers. Esposito also has taken over the contract on Dominick Mancini, and Jack DeNeri, former boxer, will train both men for him.

Johnny Chiodo

Chiodo, who is 23 years old, has boxed Rosy Stoy, Steve Smith twice, Battling Gizzy, Mickey Duris, Johnny Canzoneri, Harry Lennox twice, Art de Chapdelaine, Frankie Pinto, Andy Stahura, Eddie Leroy, Jackie Willis, Young Corsey and Frankie Graham, among others. While under the management of Barney Conway, in Johnstown, he has boxed at various times out of Detroit, Chicago and Philadelphia. He has trained with Battling Battalino, Eddie Shea, Roger Bernard, Lew Massey and Morrie Sherman.

Manager Esposito may be reached by the promoters by calling Fairfax 8024.

ED SPOTOVICH

Between Rounds

Marino, incidentally, boxed Jimmy Mack, of Philadelphia, in an amateur bout in Philadelphia several years ago. Mack boxes Jimmy Thomas in one of the three 10-rounders at the Arena here Friday. He is a brother of Young Chappie, former flyweight star.

The Allegheny Mountain Association, A. A. U., senior boxing championships will be staged at the Keystone A. C., March 30-31 and April 1-3. The Pennsylvania State amateur championships have been awarded to the Allegheny Mountain Association and will be held here.

Benny Bass boxes Joe Ghouley in St. Louis Wednesday night of next week.

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Amateur bouts, Pittsburgh Lyceum, Washington street.

SCHOOL LOSES FUNDS

ATLANTIC CITY, March 4—(AP.)—Atlantic City High School has been forced to cancel all athletic events scheduled with out-of-town opponents since the closing of the bank in which its athletic fund was deposited.

BRIDGERS' LATE RALLY DOWNS MT. LEBANON

A well-oiled Ambridge High School basketball machine, champion of Section IV, got the "clear" signal to go places after seeing "red" in the person of Jack (The Great) Scott for three quarters of its W. P. I. A. L. elimination battle with Mt. Lebanon High, champion of Section IX, and when the smoke of the conflict in the Pitt Stadium pavilion lifted, the Rubenstein-coached quintet had emerged with a 31-27 victory.

As a result of their triumph the Ambridge passers earn the right to meet the winner of the Leetsdale - Bellevue - East Pittsburgh games in a quarter final engagement in the Pitt Stadium pavilion on Thursday, March 9.

SCOTT STANDS OUT

The Red Ghost of Mt. Lebanon lost little time in sending his mates off to an auspicious start and as a result of his brilliant shooting and great defensive play, Ambridge trailed from the first tapoff until only three and one-half minutes of the contest remained.

Shooting with deadly accuracy, Scott recorded six of his seven field goals in the first half to give Mt. Lebanon what appeared to be a fine lead. The unexpected sharp-shooting had the Ambridge defense bewildered throughout the first half of the battle and the Beaver Valley passers never did get their bearings during the first two periods of play.

Scott scored three field goals in rapid succession at the outset, and the fourth by Frank Campbell, his running mate at guard, gave Mt. Lebanon eight points in the opening quarter. A field goal by Johnny Duncan and successful foul tries by Michelosen and Winne accounted for the four points held by Ambridge at the sound of the first gun.

Mt. Lebanon began to pull away in the second period when Scott added three more field goals. Nason registered two and Kohl reached the hoop once to bring the borough school's total to 20. Two field goals by Duncan and one each by Gutowski and Winner enabled Ambridge to finish on the short end of a 20-13 score at the half-way point.

BRIDGERS RALLY

It was a changed Ambridge quintet that appeared on the floor for the opening of the last two quarters. Not only did the Bridgers silence the firing of Scott, but, led by Gutowski and Duncan, began a drive to overtake the Leuchtmen. This they accomplished to a queen's taste. Duncan and Winne took up the burden of advancing the ball, and their accurate passes to Gutowski accounted for three field goals by the latter. Vosnak and Winne each added one and Ambridge was ahead for the first time in the game.

Once Ambridge got in front, Mt. Lebanon was a beaten team. The Mt. Lebanon attack fol led up like a piano-accordion in the closing stanza, Scott getting the only points through the medium of his seventh field goal. While the Leuchtmer were being held to two points, Ambridge had garnered 10 to sew up the game. The lineup:

Ambridge—	G.	F.	Pt.	Mt. Leb.—	G.	F.	Pt.
Gutowski, f.	4	1	9	Kohl, f.	2	1	5
Duncan, f.	3	1	7	Davidson, f.	0	1	1

SCOTT, GOODWIN PLAY TODAY

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 28.—C. M. Scott, of Pittsburgh, teed off this morning in the first round of match play in the annual Palm Beach golf championship over the Palm Beach Country Club course today. He is opposing Tommy Goodwin, of Monroe, N. Y.

John B. Ryerson, of Cooperstown, N. Y., former Yale star, won the medal with 34-38—72. Goodwin, 19-year-old New York state titleholder, who won both the medal and championship in the Palm Beach event last year, finished with 36-40—76.

O. S. U. NEARS TITLE

CHICAGO, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Defeating Purdue at Lafayette last night, 29-17, Ohio State's basketball team advanced to within a game of the Western Conference championship. A victory over Wisconsin or Indiana in their two remaining games will clinch the title for the Buckeyes.

By JESS CARVER

Coach Robert Methuselah Thorn, who has been contributing to district college basketball history ever since eggs were cheap, brings his Grove City College passers back to town again tonight with high hopes of making a better showing than in the last occasion of the Crimson varsity's appearance here.

Tonight, the in and out Grovers meet Carnegie Tech in the Tartan gymnasium. Some weeks back, the Grovers met the Dukes here in town and took a swell shellacking. Since then, while they have been erased from the Tri-State Conference championship picture, they've been able to turn in two noteworthy performances. First they stopped Westminster and then they halted, for the time being, the title climb of Geneva. They were beaten in return clashes with the Covenanters, however, in a game that just about put Ken Loeffler's lads "in" as far as the Conference title race is concerned.

MAY SHIFT LINEUP

Coach Max Hannum, of Tech, brought his Tartans home from a disastrous Eastern trip last week with a lineup shift or two in mind, one of which may be effected tonight. Losing to New York University, Temple and Penn State last week rather ruffled the feelings of the Plaid mentor. And why not?

In other games tonight, Geneva plays Bethany at Beaver Falls and can sew up the Conference banner by beating the Bisons. Salem and Fairmont go at Fairmont and Westminster opens its Eastern trip by playing St. Thomas at Scranton.

The twelfth victory out of 13 starts has been recorded by Duquesne's crack varsity passers, who have the city title in the old bag and are all but set to claim district honors. Last night the Bluff quintet took West Virginia for the second time this year, winning at Morgantown, 32 to 25.

At the end of the first half the Dukes were leading by 20 to 14, although it took the locals some 10 minutes to record their first field goal. Feldman and Brenner led the first half attack, with Joe Stydahar shining for the Mountaineers.

Stydahar was the high scorer of the game, marking up five field goals and a trio of fouls for 13 points. Art Feldman with four buckets from the floor, led the Duquesne attack with eight points. The lineup:

Duquesne	G.	F.	Pt.	West Va.	G.	F.	Pt.
Feldman, f.	4	0	8	Slate, f.	0	0	0
Birch, f.	3	1	7	Wilson, f.	2	0	4
Brenner, c.	2	3	7	Stydahar, c.	5	3	13
Moore, g.	1	2	4	Sortet, g.	2	2	6
Reiter, g.	1	4	6	Fidler, c.	0	0	0
				Goodwin, g.	1	0	2
Totals	11	10	32	Totals	10	5	25

Score at half—Duquesne 20, West Virginia 14. Missed fouls—Dukes 4 (Feldman, Birch, Brenner, Reiter); West Virginia 8 (Slate, Stydahar, Sortet 4, Wilson 2. Referee Vans Wallace. Umpire—Dan Daugherty.

BILL BENSWANGER

"No, I am not a holdout," said W. E. Benswanger, president of the Pirates, as International News Photograph Service cameraman took this picture of him dressed for a snappy workout in the training camp at Paso Robles, Cal. "In fact," he added, "I have not yet offered myself a contract."

LANDIS LOSES FARM FIGHTS

CHICAGO, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Kenesaw M. Landis has lost another fight in his long war against the baseball farm system when the minor leagues yesterday voted to accept the major league player transfer rule.

Under the new rule, adopted by the majors at their joint meeting in New York last December, a club is allowed to release a player on option three times and release him outright the fourth time to one of its farms or allied clubs. The old rule, vigorously supported by Commissioner Landis even to the extent of a trial in federal court in the Fred Bennett case, provided that after a player had been released on option three times by one club that the club then had to release him outright to another club.

Commissioner Landis held that the new rule was illegal until approved by the minors so the minors, represented by the executive committee of their national organization, met with the commissioner and representatives of both major leagues yesterday and accepted it.

Baseball Briefs

DETROIT, — (AP.) — Manager Bucky Harris, of the Detroit Tigers, yesterday led the advance guard to San Antonio to begin spring training.

AVALON, Cal.—(AP.)—Indications are that Lonnie Warneke, Pat Malone and Burleigh Grimes will draw the mound assignment against the Giants when the Cubs meet them Saturday.

PASADENA, — (AP.) — Manager Lew Fonseca, of the White Sox, has announced himself well pleased with the condition of his squad, but he admitted the absence of Al Simmons is delaying his plans.

CLEVELAND.—(AP.)—Manager Roger Peckinpaugh led the first contingent of Cleveland Indians to New Orleans yesterday. The first group was composed of batterymen.

NEW YORK.—(AP.)—The advance guard of the New York Yankees was en route to St. Petersburg today to begin spring training. Lou Gehrig remained unsigned.

LOS ANGELES.—(AP.)—Travis Jackson, Giants shortstop, failed to put in an appearance at practice yesterday because of a head cold. Manager Terry ordered the veteran to take things easy.

BROOKLYN.—(INS.)—The Dodgers' list of holdouts was reduced to four today with the signing of Johnny Frederick, Joe Stripp, Danny Taylor, Al Lopez and Hack Wilson remain unsigned.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—Another perfectly good baseball rumor was killed today when Babe Ruth denied emphatically he had been offered the post of manager of the Boston Red Sox for 1934.

LOS ANGELES.—(INS.)—Forrest Twogood, a member of the University of Southern California coaching staff, will leave tomorrow night for New Orleans to join the Cleveland Indians as a pitcher.

BILOXI, Miss.—(INS.)—Moe Berg, the man who catches big league pitchers in 17 languages, and stands mute with a bat, has joined up with Clark Griffith's Senators, completing the 1933 roster of the Senators.

Seals to Present Lapchick on Air

Joe Lapchick, manager and veteran center of the Cleveland Rosenblum-Celtics basketball team, will be the guest speaker on the weekly radio program of the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph over WCAE at 7 o'clock tomorrow night being interviewed by J. J. Freund, Jr., local professional basketball sponsor, who will present the Celtics against the Irene Kaufmann Settlement team here tonight, against an all-star team at Motor Square Garden, Friday night, and in an exhibition for youngsters in the South Side Market House, Saturday afternoon.

Lapchick will discuss basketball of the past and the present. He is regarded as probably the greatest professional center of all time.

Tonight's game will get under way at 9 o'clock and the I. K. S. players have been given an A. A. U. blanket sanction to permit them to play against the professionals.

Local Woman Golfer, Partner Defeated

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Feb. 28.—Mrs. M. G. Garber, of Pittsburgh, and her partner, Ted Pomar, of St. Augustine, finished with a net score of 76 in the mixed foursome competition here yesterday. This event was held as a prelude to the Florida East Coast women's golf championship which started today with Miss Diana Fishwick, former British champion, and Miss Maureen Orcutt, one of America's "big four" in women's golf, among the participants.

Miss Fishwick and E. T. MacGovern, of Great Barrington, Mass., won the low gross award with a 77, while Mr. and Mrs. Talbot T. Speer, of Baltimore, won low net honors with a 65.

QUARTER-FINAL SQUASH DUELS ON TODAY

TODAY'S MATCHES

5:15 p. m.—C. A. Woods, Jr., Edgeworth Club, vs. H. A. Robinson, K. A. C.; J. O. Craig, K. A. C., vs. William Hutchins, P. A. A.

5:30 p. m.—Graham McCargo, Pittsburgh Golf Club, vs. G. W. Kepler, Jr., P. A. A.

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Quarter-final contests comprise the late afternoon card of competition in the second annual City Class B Squash Racquets championship tournament at the Keystone Athletic Club. A feature battle of the program is listed for 5:30 P. M., at which time Graham McCargo, Pittsburgh Golf Club star, encounters George W. Kepler, Jr., crack P. A. A. entry and runner-up to Chip Kennedy, of the Keystone, in the 1932 event.

McCargo turned in the classic of the tourney yesterday by snaring a marathon decision over rangy Bill Gordon, Edgeworth Club ace, 17-16, 16-17, 15-9, 12-15, 17-16. Gordon had previously downed the Golf Clubber thrice in spirited contests.

Kepler cruised through easy third round fracas with his Winged Head mate, Paul Sullivan, 15-7, 15-6, 15-6, while Bill Hutchins, another Winged Header, breezed ahead at expense of D. J. Schneider, K. A. C. luminary, 15-12, 15-6, 15-6. Both victors flashed consistency and ability to find the angles.

Charley Woods, of Edgeworth, evened up for Gordon's defeat by copping a stiff, free-hitting affair from Karl Wolfe, giant P. A. A. southpaw, 15-13, 12-15, 17-15, 15-12. The summary:

Third round, upper half: C. J. Caspar, Jr., K. A. C., defeated W. B. Kennedy, K. A. C., 15-8, 15-8, 15-11; G. W. Kepler, Jr., P. A. A., defeated P. G. Sullivan, P. A. A., 15-7, 15-6, 15-6. Graham McCargo, Pittsburgh Golf Club, defeated W. A. Gordon, Edgeworth Club, 17-16, 14-17, 15-9, 12-15, 17-16.

Lower half: C. A. Woods, Jr., Edgeworth Club, defeated Karl G. Wolfe, P. A. A., 15-12, 12-15, 17-15, 15-12. H. A. Robinson, K. A. C., won from Charles Lockhart, Pittsburgh Golf Club, by default. William Hutchins, P. A. A., defeated D. J. Schneider, K. A. C., 15-12, 15-6, 15-8.

STOCKS MOVE UP IN QUIET TRADING

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—The securities markets continued to give a good account of themselves today, with stocks working a little higher in quiet trading.

The bond market acted fairly well, and many shares moved up from fractions to more than a point. There was little inclination on the part of stock traders to go short of the market, for it was felt that the first signs of pronounced progress in dealing with the banking situation might bring a good rally. Rails were notably firm.

Rails were helped by the Senate's approval of the bankruptcy bill, which would permit voluntary reorganizations without protracted and expensive receiverships. January net operating income reports continued relatively favorable, furthermore the first 48 carriers to report showed an aggregate increase of a little more than 6 per cent above January of last year. Loadings reports for last week indicate a little recession from the previous week. Illinois Central reported 22,143 cars, against 25,210 in the preceding week. Corporate news was meager. McKeesport ordered the regular quarterly dividend of $1.

Brokers said there had been a little selling from cities where restrictions had been placed on bank withdrawals, but that it had been light and easily absorbed. Brokerage sentiment remained highly uncertain, and little was heard of the spring rally, which had been so actively discussed a few weeks ago, although some quarters thought that ironing out of banking situation, together with hopes engendered by the inauguration of a new administration, might eventually provide a substantial lift.

COTTON DROPS ON SELLING

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—Cotton futures opened steady, unchanged to 3 points decline on lower Liverpool cables and commission house selling. March, 5.87c; May, 5.97c; July, 6.09c; October, 6.26c; December, 6.40c; January, 6.45c.

May sold up from 5.96 to 6.02 with active months showing net gains of about 1 to 5 points at the end of the first half hour.

Prices later eased slightly on scattered selling or liquidation, but after sagging back to about yesterday's close the market steadied by trade buying and at midday showed net advances of 1 to 2 points. Trading was restricted by a disposition to await developments in connection with the Smith cotton relief bill.

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 28.—Cotton—Receipts, 4,000 bales, including 1,800 American; spot small business done; prices 5 points lower; quotations in pence: American strict good middling, 5.60; good middling, 5.30; strict middling, 5.00; middling, 4.85; strict low middling, 4.70; low middling, 4.55; strict good ordinary, 4.35; good ordinary, 4.05. PRESENT HELD OPPORTUNITY FOR BUYING

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—If the experience of all previous depressions is repeated, the seeds for new personal fortunes are being sowed at the present time.

An interesting incident occurred at a private meeting of a group of friends the other evening. They were whispering about hoarding, and its advisability under existing conditions. The most experienced financier in the group bucked the trend by remarking:

Mr. Rukeyser

"This is no time for acting pessimistically. In view of the immediate depressing news, I regard the present as a golden opportunity to acquire at bargain prices shares of strong, honestly managed banks."

Brokers as a class have fared hard in litigation with customers in the courts since October, 1929. Frequently individual welchers seized upon legal technicalities to escape speculative losses.

As a result some firms have gone to the extreme of getting out new forms of "consents," which they are asking their customers to sign. One such "consent," which has been recommended by counsel to a number of stock exchange firms, reads in part:

"We (the customer) further consent and agree, in consideration of your carrying our account on margin, that when in exercise of your sole judgment and discretion you may find it necessary for your protection to sell or buy any securities which you may be carrying or have borrowed for us (either individually or jointly with others), such sale or purchase may be made on the New York Stock Exchange (or such other exchange or place where such business is usually transacted), or at public auction or private sale, without advertising the same and without making any demand or call of any kind upon us and without any notice whatsoever to us."

If brokers as a class go to such extremes, the net effect will be to induce customers to switch their accounts to banks, which will carry them in the form of collateral loans.

BUSINESS

Prospects Are Clouded By Disturbing Events.

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

THE INDUSTRIAL outlook was uncertain at the beginning of February due to the fact that the improvement in industrial output was confined to seasonable proportions. It has been made even less sure during the past two weeks by a series of disturbing events.

The more important of these have been the bank moratoria. Of lesser importance has been the decline in manufacturing activity.

At present it is difficult to determine whether the interruption in the operations in such outstanding industries as steel has been due to the bank troubles or to other causes. Undoubtedly the uncertainty caused by the suspensions of regular payments by banks in many parts of the country has been an influence in checking the industrial revival. Whether or not it has been the sole factor we may not know until the present bank scare has run its course.

Ford's Action Proves Favorable Influence

THE ANNOUNCEMENT that Henry Ford will take the leadership in reorganizing the two banks which precipitated the Michigan crisis has been a favorable influence. Unless there is a hitch in the proceedings, normal banking conditions may be expected in Michigan within a short time. This should prevent further spread of runs in other districts.

It is quite probable that restrictions on withdrawals in other parts of the country would not have been necessary if the Detroit situation had not caused such wide spread distruct.

Sufficient facts are not yet available to estimate whether or not the drastic action taken by the governor of Michigan was a wise more. It is possible that less national disturbance would have been caused if the weak Detroit banks had been allowed to close their doors.

Steel Production Continues Decline

THE DECLINE in steel mill activity still is under way. One trade paper estimates current operations at 17 per cent of ingot capacity. While other estimates place the operating rate slightly higher, there is no doubt about the fact that the upward trend has been arrested and that a reduction of considerable proportion has taken place in mill output.

Not until the banking situation is restored to normal will it be possible to decide with any degree of accuracy whether the slump in the demand for steel has been due to mere lack of confidence or to a genuine reduction in the fundamental requirements.

Bush Makes Fight For Terminal Co.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—Irving T. Bush, former president and now chairman of the board of the Bush Terminal Company, has launched a proxy fight to again resume his leadership of the corporation.

In a circular sent to stockholders he called upon all to support his claim at a meeting to be held in April.

Bush declared in the circular that, during a trip abroad last year, certain directors of the firm changed the by-laws and subsequently elected John A. Stephens president without notifying the stockholders. Bush was named chairman of the board.

R.C.A. Makes Offer For DeForest Radio

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—The Radio Corporation of America has made a bid of $400,000 for assets of the De Forest Radio Company, subject to confirmation of United States District Court.

The bid of $400,000, already accepted by the receivers, was confirmed by the receiver for the De Forest company.

WORLD TURMOIL ALTERS GOLD STATUS

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—A means of making the gold standard workable, in the opinion of a number of banking authorities, should be the major objective of the forthcoming world economic conference.

Since the World War, new factors have developed in the international workings of the gold standard, which have made its operation decidedly less successful than in nearly a hundred years before the war.

Perhaps most important among these factors is the large amount of liquid credit which surges back and to, between various world banking centers.

Another is the increase in international investments. It is almost impossible for banking authorities to know the extent of holdings of securities of foreigners. Nevertheless, they must be prepared for sudden dumping of these securities, or a rush on the part of foreigners to convert their funds into bank balances, followed by a taking home of the capital.

SYSTEM DISLOCATED

The

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—The bond market continued to mull about uncertainly today with the trading volume about normal. United States government issues displayed a slightly reactionary tone dispite reports that the Federal Reserve System, as a means of aiding in the stabilization of various sectional banking disturbances, had resumed extensive purchases of federal securities. Foreign bonds were mixed.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows (000 omitted in sales column; United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

Forbes

Introducing Perkins, New Bank Leader

—By B. C. FORBES—

Mr. Forbes

That is the verdict of Frank A. Vanderlip, who was responsible for attracting Mr. Perkins to the National City Bank's service 19 years ago. Nobody knowing Perkins could entertain a different opinion.

I recall that State Supt. of Banking Broderick declared to me several years ago:

"Jim Perkins is my ideal of a banker. There's a solid, conservative, capable banker—the finest kind of citizen. If we had more men of his character and caliber at the head of banking institutions, there would be much less trouble."

HAVING KNOWN Mr. Perkins for many years, I would describe him thus:

WHEN THE Gibraltar-like Farmers Loan and Trust Company became affiliated with the National City early in 1929, Perkins, who had been and continued as its president, said to me:

"The thought and attention of our officers will be devoted entirely to the trust business. I have an ambition to make this the most efficient and most human organization in the country. If in any way I fail, it will be because of lack of ability on my part, and not because it isn't in the wood to do it."

Another glimpse into his innate modesty: Once when I asked him for a photograph for publication, he replied:

"Above all things, what I dislike is seeing pictures of myself in print. It is bad enough to have to look at my face every morning when I shave."

On one occasion when Perkins attained a new rung in the ladder, I sent a colleague to interview him. As apprehended, Perkins would give no interview. After digging into his career and contacting various Perkins associates and friends, the writer reported:

"Back in Harvard days, old Prof. Shaler gave his youthful class canny admonitions to govern their future ways. The word that sunk deepest into Perkins' mind were: 'Gentlemen, you may not be geniuses, but you can become a power by being inevitable.'

"'Inevitable,' that was the word which sprouted in the young imagination. Perkins figured that that word covered everything that he ought to be: Always on the job, never slackening, never yielding, never forgetting, doing what was to be done and sidestepping nothing.

"The selfish idea of personal success never enters his calculations. His aim is to be in some manner of lasting benefit to the entire community. His ideal is service; doing things for others."

WHEN THE necessity for choosing a new head for the National City arose yesterday, it was "inevitable" that the directors should pick James H. Perkins.

CELEBRITIES -:- Mrs. Owen, Will Hays in Bowers Tribute -:- ON THE AIR

Irene Dunne, Leon Errol Broadcast

Six nationally-known personalities of the literary, political and entertainment worlds come to NBC and CBS microphones tonight, to be heard locally on WCAE, WJAS and KDKA.

Claude G. Bowers, noted editor and author whose comments on world affairs are a regular Sun-Telegraph feature, speaks over KDKA at 10 p. m. Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, Josephus Daniels and Will Hays also are heard during the program, broadcast from the grand ballroom of the Hotel Astor, New York, during a testimonial dinner to Bowers.

Leon Errol, famed comedian of the musical stage and screen, comes to the air via WCAE at 8 o'clock as the guest of Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumit. On WJAS at 9:30, Irene Dunne, leading lady of the screen, is interviewed as guest star with Raymond Paige and his orchestra during "California Melodies."

A talk on "The Courage of American Business," by Harold L. Ickes, President-elect Roosevelt's appointee as Secretary of the Interior, is listed on KDKA at 10:30 p. m.

Wynn, Bernie Offer Music By Woodin

By AIRCASTER

Although he was something of a figure in the radio picture some years ago when his musical composition were aired, William H. Woodin, president of the American Car and Foundry Company, and newly-appointed Secretary of the Treasury, is finding himself in a more brilliant radio spotlight.

It seems that as soon as Woodin's appointment became known, there was a rush by enterprising stations to place either him or his music on the air. Tonight his "Fire Chief March," written in honor of Ed Wynn, will be offered during the Wynn program; Ben Bernie will also schedule a Woodin composition for tonight. The California melodies bill will introduce "Spring Is In My Heart Again," another Woodin opus.

Dick Ridgely, WCAE trap-drummer and xylophonist, plans to leave for New York Thursday to join the Sixty-ninth Regiment Band, of which his uncle, Clifford E. Ridgely, is bandmaster.

Fred Waring and the Pennsylvanians are slated for a personal appearance tour beginning March 17 in Philly. They'll return to N' Yawk for their CBS programs each Wednesday.

Life of Andrew Carnegie

By BURTON J. HENDRICK

For Oliver was an exceedingly animated person, full of energy, frequently misdirected, with a taste for business prospects of all kinds, and endowed with an unfailing fund of optimism beside which even Carnegie's ran thin. Oliver spent the first 50 years of his life making fortunes and losing them, bounding up from one calamitous experience only to dash impetuously into another.

Pittsburgh is full of anecdotes that illustrate the Col. Sellers attributes of the man, though in one respect Oliver differs from his prototype, for the "Millions in it" in his case were finally realized, the Pittsburgh clairvoyant dying a very rich man after accomplishments that persist in substantial shape today.

A Political Trip

Among Oliver's other talents was a penchant for politics, a by-product of his life that made him a delegate to the Republican national convention held in Minneapolis in 1892. That the gathering should have assembled in this unaccustomed city was one of those curious unrelated circumstances that so frequently direct the accidental process known as history. Cloakroom prognostications on the forthcoming presidential candidate soon had little interest for Oliver, his attentive ears having hearkened to more lurid discussions. For the first time he heard the word Mesabi. The dulcet syllables suggested a fresh emprise, and the nominating convention vanished from his thoughts. President Harrison, candidate for a second time, ceased to be Oliver's hero, the composite Merritt family having stepped into his place.

People in Northern Minnesota were talking of nothing but the metallic sand in the ancient pine forests. Prospectors were leaving in droves, determined to lease, buy or steal any "claims" upon which they could lay their hands

Oliver caught fire. Entrusting his political duties to his alternate, he rushed to Duluth. The one hotel was so crowded with fortune seekers that the Pittsburgh ironmaster spent a restless night on the billiard table. He speedily became the bosom friend of Leonidas Merrit, who by this time had acquired large Mesabi holdings and was constructing a railroad, devoting to these undertakings the little fortune the family had saved through many years in the lumber business.

Merritt took Oliver to the promised land, exhibiting the ore that lay on every side, stimulating the already fervid Pittsburgher with stories of his wanderings, his successes, his failures. The only thing the Merritts sorely needed was ready cash, for their claims and their railroad—the Duluth, Missabe & Northern, now one of the most valuable units of the United States Steel Corporation—had drained them dry.

To the hard-up Merritts Oliver seemed the one road out of darkness. The new-found friend gave Leonidas Merritt a check for five thousand dollars, receiving as consideration certain rights on the Mesabi Range. The transaction marked an important date in the story of American industry and Pittsburgh steel. The part that Frick had played in the development of coke, Oliver now played on the Mesabi Range. And, like Frick with Connellsville, Oliver turned to Carnegie for support in realizing his splendid dream.

A Bargain Is Made

Oliver was so wishful of the support of the Carnegie company that he made virtually a free gift of a half ownership in his properties. The Carnegie Steel Company then lent the Oliver organization $500,000. This loan was liquidated in due course; the outcome of the transaction, therefore, was that the Carnegie interest acquired half the Oliver claims without the investment of a dollar. One-sided as this bargain looks at first, in reality it was an extremely profitable one for Oliver, since it brought the cooperation of the Carnegie company and laid a foundation for the millions which ultimately became his portion.

Another development, personal in character, had put a new face on Minnesota ore. The most powerful industrial element in the United States next to the steel business itself had for years been acquiring properties in this region. In the discussion of the Lake Superior resources the name of John D. Rockefeller is important. The two "magnates" had little difficulty in coming to terms. The famous Carnegie-Rockefeller ore leases were the solution of what looked like an irreconcilable impasse.

Other steelmakers, attempting to emulate their foresighted contemporary, rushed to the Minnesota country, only to find that the principal tracts were safely locked in Carnegie's hands and that only the leavings remained for them. The steel company, already the toughest of rivals, was now invincible: the only possible safeguard was combination, and now began that series of "trusts" in steel that marked the last few years of the century. Despite popular fear of an iron and steel "monopoly," the Rockefeller transaction proved to be only a contract to sell and purchase ore.

Sold Too Cheaply

It was a chapter in his life upon which Carnegie liked especially to look back in his retirement. That the bargain was more advantageous to the Carnegie than to the Rockefeller interests is a question on which there is now no dispute. The belief is general today among steel men that, great as were Rockefeller's profits, he sold his ore far too cheaply, both to Carnegie and afterward, when he surrendered ownership of Mesabi to the United States Steel Corporation for $80,000,000 in common stock—a property which Charles M. Schwab, at the time, said was worth $500,000,000 on the basis of ore in sight. At present the Mesabi Range is the corporation's greatest asset and the one thing that makes it supreme.

"Don't you know," Carnegie said, before the Stanley Committee in 1912, "it does my heart good to think I got ahead of John D. Rockefeller on a bargain. Let me tell you gentlemen this, for one moment: Last week we spent New Years night and the next day at our little cottage. We have a golf cottage on the edge of St. Andrews golf links. Rockefeller's place is six miles away. And I said to Mrs. Carnegie, 'Let us go up and call on the Rockefellers.' We went up there. Here was the old gentleman, dressed nicely, tall and spare, smiling, beaming. He had been riding with a paper jacket that preserved him from all colds, and he presented Mrs. Carnegie and me with one of them, each. He said, 'Mr. Carnegie, you don't know what this paper jacket means. I can go out on the coldest day and be fully protected from the cold wind.' And he gave me his large photograph, two of them; one for Mrs. Carnegie and one for myself. Positively it is a delight to meet the old gentleman. But I did not refer to the ore purchase that I had made from him."

Playgirls in Love

By MAY CHRISTIE

Loranda caught his arm possessively as though to radio: "Hands off! He's my man!" and before they reached the table, as the orchestra struck up the first bar of a throbbing waltz, she gave an ecstatic: "Ah-h!" flung her other arm on Barry's shoulder and whirled him off before he could greet Judith.

"Well, this is a pleasant surprise!" Jack Ordway, a white gardenia in the lapel of his coat, hailed the two girls, and shepherded the parties together. "Betty, we'll take those tables here." With an air that was half amused and half in the grand manner, he effected the necessary introductions.

"May I present Mr. Lawton Clissold, my good friend?" An older, very blase-looking, but extremely handsome man bowed to Zella and Judith. He had a high, aristocratic nose, a single eyeglass dangled by a ribbon from his vest, and a beautiful black pearl adorned his snowy shirt front.

"Be careful. The wicked hawk after the pretty little lovebird!" Thus spoke Freddy, to cover his n sudden lack of ease in the esence of so much "swank"— nd nudging Judith.

UDITH UNEASY

But immediately Mr. Lawton lissold was led off to the near- y table by the red-haired wom- n who had been introduced as Mrs. Genevieve Something-or- ther.

"And take it from me she's jealous as hell of anybody that gives the handsome hawk one look!" Freddy counselled Judith in a sepulchral whisper.

Meantime Betty Graves, who had apparently looked upon the wine when it was red at her own dinner table that night—as indeed most of them had—was insisting on ordering champagne for the entire party.

The music came to an end. Barry conducted Loranda to the second of the two tables.

Judith thought wretchedly: "She planned that! She wants to keep him to herself!" She saw Barry help Loranda slip the ermine coat from her shoulders that gleamed like polished ivory. Lorando wore transparent orange velvet, beautifully cut and entirely backless. The dress had no shoulder straps, but was supported by a gleaming rhinestone necklace.

"She takes every bit of color out of me," thought Judith. The rose-pink frock that had seemed so beautiful before, seemed cheap now—cheap and washed-out and ill-cut.

DANCES WITH JACK

A few minutes later, Jack Ordway came over and filled all the glasses at Judith's table with champagne. "I want the next dance, please. I brought the crowd down here because I specially wanted to see you, Pretty Face! Be kind!"

"I'm already booked."

"Goodness! You're squeezing the breath out of me, Mr. Ordway! What are you? A boa constrictor or an octopus?"

"I'm a judge of pretty girls, and when I get hold of a peach I'll let the world know I hold right on to her!"

"Then loosen up!" She forced herself to laugh, though there were two brilliant spots of embarrassment in her cheeks, and her breath was catching. With a sixth sense she felt that Barry's eyes were on her, and Jack Ordway—and that those eyes were disapproving.

"If you could know how tantalizing you look tonight—how terribly tempting — you'd be kinder!"

"What! With the lovely girls you brought—"

"You're different, I tell you."

She knew that but too well. He might flirt with her—Barry might flirt with her—but she wasn't really of their world, those girls of the imperious ways and exquisite clothes and background and money!

BARRY'S TURN

They had easy manners, too. You called it "poise." Nothing ever seemed really to fuss them.

"Now what about a bite of food tomorrow night? And, while I remember, what's the 'phone number of your apartment, Miss Brian?"

She forced herself to laugh. "Ha! I should think the letter B would be crowded out by this time in that little black book of yours, Mr. Ordway!"

Before he could deny this, and tell her she was the one girl who mattered, and all, a hand touched Judith's arm, and she heard Barry Deane say very quietly: "My turn, please."

"It was a lucky break that we came here," Barry Deane said with a sort of forced politeness as they moved over the polished floor.

"Oh no, Mr. Ordway knew. He telephoned me——" began Judith breathlessly, and then stopped short.

What a conceited fool he'd think her! As though her whereabouts mattered to any one of them! Barry had not even asked her where the new apartment was . . . he had not made the least attempt to see her again.

She felt uneasy, conscious that both Jack Ordway and Loranda were watching her.

There was something odd about those two . . . how could one best describe it? . . . undercurrents?

Loranda was extremely chummy with Jack—yet it was Barry she wanted . . .

And ever since he had ogled her with his bold black eyes through the window of the little shop, Jack Ordway had made no bones about wanting to flirt with Judith.

If only she could cope with them! She'd learn! She'd watch Loranda and Betty Graves and that languorous, tragic-looking Genevieve.

Synopsis

Judith Brian, a secretary in the Knickerbocker Bank, and Barry Deane, young executive, are secretly attracted to one another. Judith, however, feels that Barry is above her socially. Zella, Judith's friend, receives an attractive offer from Loranda Tewson, society girl, to manage a dress shop for her. Zella and Judith leave their drab boarding house and rent an apartment. Judith is unhappy when she is transferred to the bank's uptown office where she will not be able to see Barry. Loranda's friends attend the shop's opening. The wily Loranda rushes Barry off to assist her with refreshments. Jack Ordway, playboy friend of Loranda's, flirts with Judith.

REAR AXLE; BRAKES

The auto rear-axle has a differential gear to allow the rear-wheels to revolve at different speeds on a curve. The inside wheel turns slower than the outside wheel because it has a shorter radius and describes a smaller circle. This diversity of speed is accomplished by separate driving shafts, connected by a set of bevel gears.

THE BUNGLE FAMILY

JO, THE MATRIMONIAL RECONSTRUCTION CORP GOT A NIBBLE TODAY. A CUSTOMER WHOSE WIFE DISAPPEARED LAST SUMMER SHORTLY AFTER SHE THREW HIM OFF THE BACK PORCH OF THEIR LITTLE HOME.
GEORGE DO YOU MEAN THAT SOME MAN WHO'S SEPARATED FROM HIS WIFE...?
ABSOLUTELY! IT'S A TOUGH CASE TOO, BECAUSE EVEN IF HE WAS REAL BRIGHT IT WOULD BE A BIG JOB TO EXPECT ANY WOMAN TO TAKE BACK A MAN WITH A FACE LIKE HIS, BUT ANYHOW BUSINESS IS BUSINESS.
IMAGINE THAT MR. MUGG, WHO'S BEEN MARRIED SO OFTEN, BEING A MATRIMONIAL REFORMER.
THAT REMINDS ME. TODAY WAS ANOTHER PAY-DAY. AND ANOTHER CHECK FOR $300! LOOK! I'LL ADMIT MR. MUGG SOUNDS TERRIBLY WOUND UP WHEN HE'S EXPLAINING HIS IDEAS ON REFORM WORK, BUT THIS CHECK SPEAKS FOR ITSELF.
YES SIR! $300! THINK OF IT! OH GEORGE I JUST CAN'T HELP BUT FEEL FUNNY ABOUT YOU ACCEPTING SUCH A LARGE AMOUNT.
ANYONE WHO GETS A GOOD LOOK AT THAT MAN....THE SHAPE OF HIS HEAD.... KNOWS HE'S JUST THE SORT WHO'D DO SOMETHING LIKE START A MATRIMONIAL UPLIFT AFFAIR.
AHEM! WELL JO I'M NOT SO SURE THIS MOVEMENT IS JUST A LAUGH. THIS IS THE SECOND PAY-DAY HE'S MADE OUT CHECKS IN FINE, FIRM HAND-WRITING WHICH I KNOW PROVES HE'S 100% O.K. MENTALLY.

When the bankers refuse to bear down on the mortgaged weed-bender then all we can say is that Acadia has merged with Eden and has first refusal on Paradise.

Did you ever think the day would hatch when the town money lender would get sentimental, blear-eyed and compassionate?

There may have been a time in the dim, undusted past when a banker had a lump in his throat. If he did it was the result of an ear he had just bitten off an elapsed borrower.

But, today, all is changed; like an old lady coming out of a beauty parlor where they spread the complexions on with trowels. The bankers are human beings. They are acting as normal as a boy playing hockey. It took a depression to do it. But it's worth it to see a financier smile and look his fellow man in the eye with a conscience as clear as clam chowder.

The bankers must feel good about it too. For the first time in their careers they can go to sleep without first looking under their pillows for a bear trap. They can rest undisturbed by th throat curses of evicted tenants and the vindicative but futile bick erings of the widow and the orphan.

Gentlemen, we congratulate you. It may have been a rathe hesitating step. But that step is a full marathon in the right di rection. You have made a complete lap in the philanthropi derby.

The glad news came from the middle of Iowa, that state o pioneers, where the first emigrant looked out from the sheltering canvas of the premier covered wagon and hollered to the driver, "Wallop them mules and keep goin'."

Since then other states have followed Iowa's magnificent example. But to Iowa goes the 1933 Nobel prize for tempering the blizzard to the shorn field mouse. Never again shall any American state bear Balzac's indictment of his native heath that it was uninhabitable because of the inhabitants.

We congratulate everybody once around. No more usury on the principle and no more principal on the interest. You can get all the money you want and forget it.

From now on, the village bank is the old town pump.

An Elemental Law

"Buying American" Makes a Strong Appeal Because Self-Preservation Depends Upon It

H. B. Barth, secretary of the East Liverpool Chamber of Commerce, reports that 10,000 school children and adults in that city have pledged themselves to buy American-made goods only to help restore business and put the idle back to work.

Pittsburgh Lodge No. 46, Loyal Order of Moose, has adopted a resolution recommending to its members that they purchase none but American-made goods, "and by so doing stimulate production, which will in turn increase employment among the people of our country."

These developments in the "Buy American" movement in the Pittsburgh District were noted over the week-end. Al- every day brings similar developments, attesting to the larity of the campaign.

The "Buy American" movement is popular because it romises to preserve Pittsburgh and other American industries which the very life of the community depends, and because f-preservation is the first law of nature.

These industries—East Liverpool pottery, Pittsburgh iron d steel, glass and electrical equipment, and many others— e threatened by the cheap products of countries with depre- ated currency and underpaid labor.

Patriotic Pittsburghers are not going to sit by supinely nd see the district's manufacturing plants put out of business y foreign competitors. They are going to resist the invasion f foreign offerings by "buying American."

Modernizing the Navy

The Roosevelt Administration is to be Given the Task of Making it Equal to the Strongest.

Topping the agenda of unfinished business which the Roosevelt Administration will inherit from the Hoover Administration is the imperative task of modernizing our Navy.

To modernize our Navy we must build it up to treaty strength—equality with the strongest—as swiftly as the fiscal condition of the Federal Government will permit.

Under the retiring Republican Administration, our Navy has declined to third place among the modern navies of the world.

This decline is chiefly due to the opposition of the retiring President to the building up of our Navy to equality with the strongest in ANY class of combatant ship.

As a result of this decline, our naval vessels are wearing out, our shipbuilding industry is in a serious condition, and many thousands of skilled workmen dependent upon this industry for a livelihood are in the army of unemployed.

Mr. Hoover was elected President four years ago pledged to build up a Navy equal to the British Navy and superior to the Japanese Navy in every class of combatant ship.

Mr. Hoover will turn over to Mr. Roosevelt on the fourth of March next a Navy that is inferior in strength to the navies of either Great Britain or Japan.

Both Great Britain and Japan have been replacing obsolete ships with modern ships while Mr. Hoover was allowing our Navy to wear out.

Both Great Britain and Japan have kept their shipbuilding industries going and provided thousands of their skilled workers with employment upon new naval construction, while our retiring President and Congress have permitted our Navy o decline until we are today a "poor third" among naval wers.

In destroyers and submarines we are dangerously weak because the number of modern submarines in commission is entirely inadequate and our destroyer force is "virtually obsolete."

Public sentiment demands that the Roosevelt Administration reverse the perilous and fatuous neglect of our Navy for which the Hoover Administration is so obviously to blame.

From the day Franklin Delano Roosevelt takes the oath as President of the United States, building up our Navy to equality with the strongest will be a paramount obligation of the new President and the new Congress.

Lest We Forget

It is Well to Recall What School Conditions Were Before the Present System Was Adopted

Pittsburghers interested in defending the right of Pittsburgh's children to a sound, well-balanced education have prepared a valuable pamphlet entitled "School Facts." It is a reply, and an effective one, to those who are criticizing the public educational system.

Some of the critics are finding fault with the amount and kind of education that Pittsburgh children are receiving. They talk of the "good old days" of a generation or two ago, and would have us believe that children were better educated then than now.

It is well to recall what the real conditions were. Tests made of the mental capacity of millions of American boys during the World War showed much illiteracy. The Russell Sage Foundation was led by the discovery to conduct a nation-wide educational survey. It reported that Pennsylvania, second among the states in wealth, was twenty-first in education!

It found that the average teacher's salary was $860, that less than half the teachers had two years of professional training, that more than 6,000 teachers without previous experience had begun teaching in Pennsylvania schools that year (1920), and that teachers by the thousands were going into other work where the pay was better.

These findings led to the passage of the Edmonds Act and the adoption of other measures to improve education in Pennsylvania in general and Pittsburgh in particular.

Before consideration is given to proposals that these improvements be sacrificed in the interest of economy, let the question be asked if we are willing to return to the old condition.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Far Spaces

On the wind-swept prairies,
On the sage-strewn mesas,
On the sallow beaches sloping to the sea,
I have found an echo,
I have found an answer,
I have found a reason for the songs in me!

Never in the forests,
Never in the mountains
Where the great peaks tower, shutting out the sky,
Can my songs go bravely,
Can my songs go strongly,
Can my songs go swiftly as the white gulls fly.

On the sun-sweet mesas,
On the painted prairies,
On the shelving beaches slanting to the sea,
Only can my soul find
Vestige, glimpse and promise
In a distant echo of its own infinity!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—Greenwich Village, going altogether clownish, is luring the crowd by its cock-eyed absurdities. The Nut Club, with an outside sign in jittery disarray, is a symbol of the new silliness. Also, there are more than a dozen other extravagant exploiters of crack-pots.

The Village's burst of craziness is well-timed, coming when dispirited people are craving anything for a laugh. Instead of the pseudo-Bohemians, such as Tiny Tim and Bobby Edwards, there are muted muezzins, with dead pans, as foils for the shriekingest lot of nut comics ever unloosed. It's all mad.

Dollar-to-two-dollar dinners, with a floor show and no cover charge, are the go. Real talent, just now, is extraordinarily cheap. Many, who once received several hundred dollars a week in vaudeville, will work for their dinner and a few dollars. And appreciate the chance.

The nightly informality has the kickshaw spirit of Halloween. People don paper hats and march through the table aisles, blowing horns and waving ticklers. Just as suddenly, they march to the street and in and out another cafe of the neighborhood. Like the Left Bank, at dawn.

More than any other literary figure of the moment, Sinclair Lewis expresses independence. If he doesn't feel the urge, he indulges in a sabbatical year. Lately, he was enamored with Vienna. Next year, it may be the Connecticut countryside or Timbuctoo. When he works, he works; when he plays, he plays. In the clutch of creation, he buries himself in some vague cloister, drinks cauldrons of scalding coffee, and pounds his typewriter into disrepair. Finished, he's off with a whoop to Heaven knows where!

I was in at the finish of Lewis' novel, "Dodsworth." The completed manuscript was delivered to Alfred Harcourt in my apartment. Lewis arrived in disheveled surliness. He had been working with little sleep for three weeks and needed a shave and hair-cut. The world was a mess and, growing operatic, he'd be double d'd if he ever wrote another line. He paced in angry strides, his red hair abristle and his freckled face sirloin-pink. He fairly threw the manuscript at his publisher and this broke the tension. He was the naive lout from Sauk Center, Minn. "Let's call up Spike Hunt," he roared, "and ring doorbells or something." Next day, as suddenly, he sailed away.

Richly temperamental people, with lizard-like darts of mood, always are fascinating. Flo Ziegfeld was an unpredictable chameleon of the theater. He either was charging like a lion or docile as a lamb. There was no in-between. At a rehearsal one day the safety valve popped and, in a tantrum of possessive indignation, he ran up and down the aisles, screaming. The frazzled company revolted and silently walked from the stage. A few minutes later, Ziegfeld, in hushed resignation, thinly nasaled from a front row: "That's the way you treat me. Won't even let Flo act!"

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Strange problems drifting in these days!

There was the letter from the Private Secretary—cultured, intelligent, hard working, liking gentle things and gentle people. Marriage hadn't come her way, though she would have welcomed it. But she had made a home for herself, a circle of fine friends, a program of worth while interests.

Then—Hard Times. Now, at 35, she's out of work; can't find another position; her last cent gone. Only one situation is open to her—that of a domestic servant. Should she take it?

She wondered. Grew hungrier as she wondered. Tramped from office to office for a few more days. Then wrote, asking if domestic service was really degrading.

Was that question big enough, was the problem wide enough, to merit editorial discussion? You never can tell nowadays. But we took a chance and published it—and we're still trying to crawl out from under the results. Hundreds of letters in the first mail. Illiterate letters on cheap, blue lined paper; carefully worded responses on immaculate stationery.

BUT OUT OF THOSE HUNDREDS, ONLY THREE LETTERS THAT ADVISED DOMESTIC SERVICE. ALL OF THE REST WERE BITTER WITH RAGE AGAINST THE TREATMENT WHICH A HOUSEMAID RECEIVES IN THE TYPICAL AMERICAN HOME.

This, for example:

Dear Miss Robinson:

I think I can answer Lucille's letter, for I have faced her problem and taken the step she is contemplating; and after years of experience in many homes, I can give her a few definite answers. There are, of course, some kindly exceptions to the following rules; but, in general, if you go into domestic service in an American home you may expect these results:

YOU'LL BE TREATED LIKE A SLAVE. The average American wife has never been used to a maid in her own childhood. She is determined to get her money's worth, and gratify her own conceit, when she does achieve a servant. She no longer even tries to help herself. Just watch "the lady of the house" throw her clothes around; or listen to her rage if you hint that the children should be trained to do their own picking up.

PRIVACY, OR CONTROL OVER YOUR HOURS. There's no such thing! Your room is in any odd corner of the house, regardless of its decent sanitary or lighting arrangements. For furniture, you have broken down discards that nobody else can use. I visited the woman's quarter at San Quentin Penitentiary. The cells there are "salons de luxe" in comparison with the average maid's room, and the criminal enjoys 100 per cent more privacy.

A CHANCE TO MAKE OR SEE FRIENDS. Generally speaking, there is no chance. Regardless of the working agreement on which you are hired, you spend most of your nights serving "unexpected bridge parties." It is impossible for you, yourself, to make or keep set dates.

WILL YOU BE BRANDED? Yes you will. No matter what you may say or honestly believe about the wholesomeness and dignity of housework, you will be regarded as a moron if you ever engage in it professionally. Just try to find a job as a private secretary if you've once been a cook! It would be easier for an ex-con to be placed.

AND IT'S THE WIFE WHO IS RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS CONDITION. I'd rather work for a man any day than for a woman. They're fairer, and infinitely more humane. They have no false fronts which they wish to maintain at the expense of another human being.

A DOMESTIC SLAVE.

So there's the low-down on domestic service in this democracy in the year 1933. Or is it? What's YOUR opinion?

The Inaugural Address Three Great Models

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

If, as reported, Mr. Roosevelt's inaugural address is to be brief, he will have the best of precedents for it. There are two excellent reasons for brevity: one is that the enormous standing throng packed on the eastern plaza at the Capitol will not be physically comfortable, and the other, and better, reason is that the best of inaugural addresses are only expected in the broadest lines to foreshadow the tone of the forthcoming Administration.

There have been three very great inaugural addresses, and all three were marked by brevity. The first of these was that of Thomas Jefferson in 1801; and yet this is accepted as one of the finest of all his pronouncements. It was not a partisan screed but a confession of national faith. A bitter campaign had been that of 1800; a desperate and unscrupulous attempt had been made by Federalists to set aside the will of the people, and but for the vehement protest of Hamilton this might have succeeded. Had it succeeded it would have disrupted the Union. Many supposed that Jefferson's inaugural would be all the more partisan on that account. He gave the Federalists the surprise of their lives.

* * *

Set Federalist Tongues Wagging

Being the spokesman and philosopher of democracy, few were prepared to hear him say:

"All will bear in mind this sacred principle, that though the will of the majority is in all cases to prevail, that will, to be rightful, must be reasonable; that the minority possess their equal rights, which equal laws must protect, and to violate which would be oppression."

Coming so soon after the reign of terror under the sedition law, deliberately designed to silence the Jeffersonian press and platform, some show of resentment would not have seemed unnatural; and the following fell like an exploding bomb among the new President's enemies:

"But every difference of opinion is not a difference in principle. We have called by different names brethren of the same principle. We are all republicans—we are all federalists."

That set the Federalist tongues to wagging up in New England, and the letters exchanged at the time between the Federalist leaders show how startling it all seemed. For the first time some of them agreed that perhaps Jefferson had neither hoofs nor horns.

* * *

"Equal and Exact Justice to All Men"

It was in that very brief address that Jefferson set forth in broad lines the thought that would dominate his regime, in his declaration of principle:

"Equal and exact justice to all men, of whatever state or persuasion, religious or political; peace, commerce and honest friendship with all nations—entangling alliances with none; the support of the state governments in all their rights, as the most competent administrations for our domestic concerns and the surest bulwarks against anti-republican tendencies; the preservation of the general government in its whole constitutional vigor, as the sheet anchor of our peace at home and safety abroad; a jealous care of the right of election by the people—a mild and safe corrective of abuses which are lopped by the sword of the revolution where peaceable remedies are unprovided; absolute acquiescence in the decision of the majority—the vital principle of republics, from which there is no appeal but to force . . . the supremacy of the civil over the military authority; economy in the public expense, that labor may be lightly burdened; the honest payment of our debts as sacred preservation of the public faith; encouragement of agriculture and of commerce as its handmaiden; the diffusion of information and the arraignment of all abuses at the bar of public reason; freedom of religion; freedom of the press; freedom of person under the protection of the habeas corpus . . ."

That came near to saying all that need be said on that occasion.

* * *

Lincoln's Was Shortest Address

One of the greatest inaugural addresses in history, and yet the shortest, was that of Lincoln in 1865, and still it could have been made greater by being made shorter still, by the utterance of just the last paragraph which gives it immortality. We were still engaged in internecine war, and men were falling while Lincoln was speaking. There are a few sentences that are as the sting of scorpions, but the general tone was one of toleration and brotherhood among Americans. Thus speaking of the warring peoples:

"Each looked for an easier triumph, and a result less fundamental and astonishing. Both read the same Bible and pray to the same God. Each invoke His aid against the other. The prayer of both should not be answered; that of netiher has been answered fully, for the Almighty has his own purpose."

"With malice toward none, with charity for all, with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in; to bind up the nation's wounds, to care for him who shall have borne the battle, and for his widow and orphans; to do all which may achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace among ourselves and wit all nations."

Here was something not dissimilar to the tolerant note of Jefferson's. "We are all republicans—we are all federalists" and we are all Northerners, we are all Southerners."

* * *

Woodrow Wilson's Great Speech

To my mind neither the addresses of Jefferson nor Lincoln is greater than that of Woodrow Wilson, and, as we read it now, it seems like something written for today. Commencing with a reference to the change in government he began:

"The success of a party means little except where the nation is using the party for a large and definite purpose. It seeks to use it to interpret a change in its own plans and point of view."

Referring to our material greatness as a nation he called attention to what was happening to many of the masses:

"The groans and agony of it all had not yet reached our ears, the solemn moving undertone of our life, coming up out of the mines and factories and out of every home where the struggle had its intimate and familiar seat."

"Who Dares Fail to Try"

An then in a sentence he foreshadowed what he conceived to be the tone and temper of the regime just beginning when he said:

"We have made up our minds to square every process of our national life again with the standard we so proudly set up at the beginning and have always carried in our hearts."

Then he followed with a long paragraph which convinces me that he had studied Jefferson's inaugural for in setting forth, sketchily, the program, he followed precisely Jefferson's method in the long paragraph quoted from him.

It was in the last paragraph however that Wilson, like Lincoln, reached the heights:

"This is not a day of triumph; it is a day of dedication. Here muster, not the forces of party, but the forces of humanity, men's hopes call upon us to say what we will do. Who shall live up to the great trust? Who dares fail to try? I summon all honest men, all patriotic, all forward-looking men, to my side, God helping me, I will not fail them, if they will but counsel and sustain me."

Three Great Models For F. R. to Follow

Three great inaugural addresses—all brief—all sufficient to the purpose—all pitched on a high plane, all having an emotional as well as an intellectual appeal; and all recognizing one outstanding truth—that a new President is the chief of an entire people and not alone of a party.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

At times you are seriously displeased with that son of yours because you think he is not making sufficient effort to procure a position.

In your day it was sometimes difficult, but not impossible, to get a job—it was just to try hard enough and the work materialized.

The remuneration was small, and you knew fellows who would not accept jobs, some of them because of long hours and small wages.

Yet he may be as willing and as anxious to work as you are to have him.

His efforts may be as earnest as yours were, every bit.

Nobody's fault, but too many for each job, and employers, uncertain what to do next, are loath to take on help that perhaps they cannot pay.

Boys should remember that it pays to stay around in their own home town as things are today because men are employing those they know—the home fellows—a first choice if jobs develop.

Boys may find it pays to kee out of bad company when jobs d become more numerous, for th older men are looking for depend ability.

Isn't It So?

Sometimes you know you have the right of way, but a faster car beats you to it.
